LBJ Repeats Government Thrift Plan

Wants Officials To Hold Budgets At Low Levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson backed up Saturday his pledge of thrift and frugality in government.

He told top officials he will hold their new budgets "to the barest minimum consistent with the efficient discharge of our domestic and foreign responsibilities."

Johnson asked the officials for a prompt report on major actions taken during the past year to cut costs—"and a statement of the steps which you propose to take in the next year to tighten your operations and effect savings."

DOLLAR'S VALUE

Once again, Johnson repeated his pledge for getting a dollar's value for a dollar spent by the government and for prudence and economy in government.

He already had hammered this home to the military in a conference Friday with the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He is conferring Monday with Budget Director Kermit Gordon on the spending blueprint for the government for the 1965 fiscal year starting next July 1. This must be ready for Congress in January.

The assistant White House press secretary, Andrew T. Hatcher, was asked whether he expects Johnson's first budget to be smaller than the last one submitted by the late President John F. Kennedy. Kennedy's budget was just under $100 billion for the present fiscal year.

"I wouldn't speculate on that," Hatcher replied.

In a memorandum to heads of all federal agencies and departments, Johnson said the government has reason to be proud of achievements in improving its management.

"But," he said, "We cannot rest on past accomplishments. There are as many savings to be made in the future as never ever been made in the past.

Traffic Deaths Still Move Up; Now Total 346

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thanksgiving weekend highway deaths rose steadily Saturday night.

They held the same pace as an average nonholiday four-day weekend.

Traffic accidents through Saturday evening resulted in 346 deaths.

The counting began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday. It will end at midnight tonight.

The National Safety Council offered not estimate in advance of the holiday because, it said, Thanksgiving is a family holiday and involved little long-distance travel.

There were few accidents in which more than two persons were killed. However, four adults and an infant died in a two-car collision near Burnet, Tex.

At Varna, Ill., four persons died in an accident on a snow-slicked highway Saturday.

The greatest death toll for a Thanksgiving holiday was in 1962 when 514 persons died in a 106-hour observance. The lowest death toll was in 1960 when 442 persons died in traffic accidents.

For comparative purposes, The Associated Press surveyed a nonholiday period from 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13 to midnight, Sunday, Nov. 17, and counted 477 traffic deaths.

473 In Parish Cast Ballots

A total of 473 qualified voters cast absentee ballots here for the Dec. 7 Democratic primary election, announced Harold Gill, deputy clerk of court of Ouachita Parish.

Gill said that 72 voters cast ballots Saturday before the noon deadline. He reported that some balloting was handled by mail but the bulk was done at the temporary polls situated in the basement of the parish courthouse.

On Friday a total of 121 voters cast absentee ballots said Gill.

10 PERSONS DEAD

Winds, Snows Hit Northeast

By The Associated Press

A southwesterly gale battered the northeastern coast with torrential rain, fierce wind and abnormally high tides Saturday while a blinding, wind driven snowstorm moved into western New York State.

At least 10 deaths were attributed, directly or indirectly to the weather.

The coastal storm destroyed at least 25 homes and damaged uncounted numbers of other waterfront dwellings.

The Weather Bureau measured wind gusts up to 71 miles an hour at Portland, Maine, and tides up to 10 feet above normal were reported on Cape Cod.

Snow depths up to 8 inches halted traffic in some sections of New York State.

DEATHS OCCUR

In Rochester, N.Y., where 3 inches of snow fell, two men died of apparent heart attacks, one while pushing a car and the other while shoveling a driveway.

On Long Island, a man fell overboard and perished at Babylon while securing his boat against heavy weather.

Police at Mattapoisett, Mass., reported 25 shore homes were leveled, 17 of them at Crescent Beach, but no casualties were reported. Wind gusts blew a 50-foot section of the roof off the Sands of Time Motel at Woods Hole, Cape Cod, for several feet onto some parked automobiles. Fifteen occupants fled unharmed.

The coastal storm virtually closed the port of Portland, Maine, sank pleasure boats at Groton, Conn., cut a 200-foot swath through Fire Island, N.Y. and caused the evacuation of several families on the southern shore of eastern Long Island, particularly at Mastic Beach.

REFUSES TO LEAVE

American Battles Russians For Girl

MOSCOW (AP)—A lovestruck American calmly awaited developments Saturday night in his battle with Soviet bureaucrats. The prize is the hand of a Russian girl he loves.

Lawrence Brayton, 36, who has overstayed his Soviet visa by 24 days, has vowed he will not leave the country until his wedding day, Dec. 17.

Brayton, from Fairbanks, Alaska, spent Saturday quietly with his fiancee, Miss Rosita Shifman, 25, at her home in Moscow.

Soviet officials Wednesday told him his Soviet visa would not be extended and gave him until midnight Friday night to leave the country. He didn't budge.

Brayton told reporters he still has received no reply to three messages to Premier Khrushchev asking the premier to intercede in the young couple's behalf.

No Soviet officials contacted him about getting out of the country, despite the passing of the deadline.

The Soviet - American love story Brayton as unfolded to Western newsmen began in September on a beach in Yalta. He left the Soviet Union two weeks later, determined to return and marry the blonde Miss Shifman, a children's speech therapist.

Asked Friday about Soviet newspaper articles in 1958 and 1959 rebuking the girl for alleged misbehavior with foreign visitors to the Soviet Union, the couple refused to discuss the matter.

"That was years ago and has nothing to do with this," Brayton said.

Senator Byrd To Influence Budget In '65

Conservatives To Play Role In LBJ Frugality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., will exert great influence on the 1965 budget — but probably without consultation, conference or other action on his part.

When President Johnson makes the final decisions on the budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, one prime consideration will be the $11-billion tax reduction bill and the key man in relation to it, the economy-minded Byrd.

TOTAL UNKNOWN

Authoritative sources say the budget total will not be known for at least a few days, and perhaps not for two weeks or more, since shaping of the budget involves many decisions by Johnson. President John F. Kennedy did much preliminary work but the final word must be Johnson's.

His problem is to trim enough to convince Byrd and other conservative senators a strong effort has been made to eliminate nonessential spending and at the same time to retain the programs he wants.

The only commitment made in this respect by Kennedy was a promise to hold the deficit for the next 12-month fiscal period to $9 billion or less. Johnson apparently can accomplish this without a great deal of difficulty but hitting this target would not necessarily win Byrd's support for the tax bill.

Some government officials say there would be relatively little difficulty in getting the House-passed tax bill through the Senate if it is approved by the Finance Committee, of which Byrd is chairman. Byrd has taken a strong stand against the tax reduction without substantial reductions in spending.

Byrd's strategy all along has been to hold the tax bill long enough so it would come out of committee about when the new budget is being presented to Congress.

Data Is Given On Candidates, Polling Places

You'll find a lot of interesting reading in today's Monroe Morning World.

For example, on page D-4 and D-5 you'll find the Know Your Candidates information on aspirants for the Democratic State Central Committee from Ouachita Parish, plus those running for police jury in each ward.

In addition on D-4 you'll find a handy ballot you might want to mark and take with you to the polls. It will help to speed up your voting. Too, you will find a list of all precincts in the parish and the location of each.

Then on B-4 there is a sample ballot of the kind that will be used in all Ouachita Parish voting machines in the December 7 Democratic Primary.

Be sure and read these, plus a number of other interesting features.

Menzies Reaps Ballot Victory

SIDNEY (UPI) — Prime Minister Sir Robert G. Menzies, Australia's 68-year-old political warhorse, led the Liberal-Country party coalition Saturday to a stunning victory in nationwide parliamentary elections.

With about 70 per cent of the estimated 6 million votes counted, Menzies' government appeared certain to increase its razorthin one vote majority in parliament to at least 15 and possibly 20.

Castroites Battle Police, Burn Busses

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Defying death threats from Castroite terrorists, Venezuelans poured into the streets in above normal numbers Saturday—eve of a historic presidential election. In what appeared the last gasp of a long campaign against the election, the terrorist under ground fought gun battles with police, scattered tacks in the streets and burned three buses —all apparently to no avail..

Terrorists drenched the interior of another bus and its 21 passengers with gasoline, but fled before setting it on fire when they were attacked by the driver. Before fleeing, they shot the driver dead.

VOTING URGED

Above Caracas and other cities, Venezuelan air force cargo planes with powerful air-to-ground loudspeakers urged the people to vote.

The pro-Communist Armed Forces for National Liberation —FALN—which the government charges receives arms and instructions from Cuba, sought by terror to block the balloting of a successor to President Romulo Betancourt. But every indication is the voting will be held on schedule.

FALN leaflets strewn about the city warned the 1.5-million people of this capital to stay indoors until after the election or face the prospect of being shot down by snipers on rooftops. The leaflets said women and

Cyrus Vance Likely To Fill Defense Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is expected to nominate Cyrus R. Vance to the No. 2 Defense Department post within a few weeks.

Vance, now secretary of the Army and before that general counsel for the Defense Department, is slated to become deputy secretary of defense in the latter part of January. Submission of his name to the Senate for confirmation probably will come much sooner.

VACANCY FORECAST

The vacancy in the deputy secretaryship was forecast officially as early as last summer and has no connection with the advent of the new White House administration.

The Pentagon announced months ago that Roswell L. Gilpatric had notified his superiors that he intended to resign. Pentagon officials said Gilpatric had taken the deputy's job with the intention of remaining only about two years and that his resignation then was expected to become effective in October.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara made a point of emphasizing this explanation to counter reports that Gilpatric was resigning because of the flaring controversy over the award of the TFX fighter plane contract in which Gilpatric played a major role.

Since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, rumors have arisen that McNamara himself might quit the government. These rumors have been predicated in part on the fact that McNamara was the primary figure in deciding award of the TFX contract which has been the subject of sharp scrutiny by a Senate subcommittee.

The 29-year-old local charity has helped hundreds of families during past Yultide seasons with gifts of groceries, clothing and toys.

Established in 1934 by Wilson Ewing, late publisher of the News-Star—World and B. B. Martin, local businessman, Goodfellows has always received generous contributions from Twin City residents.

Chairman of this year's drive is Jack Hesketh, director of the Monroe Recreation Department.

"The people have always been generous in the past," Hesketh commented, "and we hope that their generosity will help us reach our goal again this year."

All money received is used for articles for the needy, Hesketh explained. No salaries, fees or other expenses are connected with this drive — all services are donated.

Requests for assistance and contributions are handled through the News-Star—World. No personal solicitations for donations are made.

Canadian, U.S. Experts Seek Cause Of Crash

STE. THERESE DE BLAINVILLE, Que. (AP) — Canadian and American experts joined Saturday in a hunt for the cause of the fiery crash of a Trans-Canada DC8F jet liner that killed 118 persons.

There were no survivors of the tragedy Friday night, the worst aviation disaster in Canada's history.

The victims included Ronald Kerne, about 28, a fur buyer from Brooklyn, N.Y., and Mrs. Zoltan Hankovszky, 40, part owner of a Toronto dress factory and wife of a chef who works on a Sands Point, Long Island, estate.

The rest represented a wide range of Canadian life—including commerce, food-processing, sports, television and police work. The chief of the seven-member crew was pilot Capt. Jack D. Snider, 47, Toronto, a veteran of World War II service with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Wrecked Plane Found By Local CAP; 2 Killed

The wreckage of a plane missing since Thursday with a pilot and nurse aboard, was spotted by a Monroe Civil Air Patrol search plane about 25 miles west of Jackson, Miss., Saturday.

The missing plane, a twin-engine Aero Commander, was enroute from St. Petersburg, Fla., to Dallas, Tex., to pick up an unidentified heart patient. It hadn't been heard from since eight minutes after taking off from Jackson, where the craft stopped for refueling around 9 a.m. Thanksgiving Day.

Late Saturday, the Associated Press reported that two bodies were pulled from the burned wreckage of the plane, located in a wooded area in Hinds County about 20 miles north of Edwards, Miss. The bodies were identified as J. L. Wylie, of West Clearwater, Fla., the pilot of the missing plane, and Miss Phylis B. Clark, a St. Petersburg nurse. The bodies were taken to Vicksburg.

According to Jackson CAP authorities, the wreckage was found by the Monroe CAP squadron members in a heavily wooded area of Hinds County on the banks of the Big Black River.

Leon M. Fife, executive officer with the Monroe CAP and a member of the trio who spotted the wreckage, said debris was

Dream Of Sailing Ends In Tragedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "My father was a dreamer. One of his lifelong dreams was to buy a boat and visit the places in Puerto Rico where he had lived as a child."

So spoke Edward D. Colberg, 41, of suburban Lakewood on Saturday after his parents and a good friend were lost in the sinking of that boat—the 83-foot yacht Judy, on Friday night off the South Carolina coast.

They were Armand Colberg, 63, Lakewood, owner of a trucking company in Long Beach; his wife Ruth, 62, and one of the company's truck drivers George Donald Kidd, 21, of nearby Paramount.

The elder Colberg was a former merchant marine captain who served in the Normandy invasion and in convoys bombed in World War II. Friends still called him "commander" from his wartime title of lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

About two months ago, his son said, Colberg bought the yacht in Norfolk, Va. This was his first cruise in her. Kidd drive Mrs. Colberg east for the voyage through the Panama Canal to Long Beach Harbor.

Whether his father also planned to visit his native San Juan, Puerto Rico, on this voyage, the son said he didn't know.

He said Kidd was a good friend of the family—"We felt he was almost like another son."

"I talked by telephone with Dad on Wednesday, and he was happy that Mom had joined him for the cruise back home," Edward Colberg said.

He said his father served in the Navy in 1918-22 and was civilian superintendent of a Navy power plant at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in 1934-41.

GOODWILL GESTURE?

Soviets Give U.S. Files On Oswald

WASHINGTON (AP) —Premier Khrushchev himself may have ordered the gift to the United States of some Soviet files on Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

Responsible U.S. authorities suggested Saturday night that the act may have been intended as a goodwill gesture by the Kremlin, knowing that the United States is conducting the widest possible investigation of the killing of its chief of state.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin handed the Oswald file to Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Saturday afternoon. The file reportedly contained copies of correspondence kept by the Soviet Embassy here, in the course of its consular duties, in connection with Oswald's application to go to the Soviet Union. Oswald got Soviet permission to visit the country and lived there in 1959-62.

It was noted that no responsible diplomat, Soviet or other, would be turning over his embassy's documents to another power except on orders from home. This would be true even if the papers did not contain great secrets.

Khrushchev has gone out of his way to pay his condolences on Kennedy's death. He personally, along with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, called at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow to express his sorrow.

The Soviet press has hinted that the assassination came from the political right wing of this country.

Moscow might also figure that turning over the Oswald file will help dispel any suspicion that the Soviet Union was involved in the killing. U.S. officials say they know of no evidence linking the Kremlin with the assassinaton.

However, the fact that Oswald called himself a Marxist and lived in the Soviet Union, even though the Russians never granted him citizenship, has raised suspicion in the minds of some people.

The contents of the file presented by the Soviet ambassador have not been made public yet but it can be presumed that the papers contain nothing the Russians deem derogatory to them.

Soviets Tour U.S. Atomic Installations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union should have "economical, competitive nuclear power" between 1968-70, Soviet nuclear experts said Saturday. The prospect is roughly the same for the United States.

A Soviet delegation ended its tour of U. S. atomic installations and is preparing to leave for New York City en route to the Soviet Union on Sunday.

The U. S. Atomic energy Commission held a news conference for the Soviet delegation at its Germantown, Md., headquarters.

The problem with nuclear power in both the United States and the Soviet Union is in making it inexpensively enough to compete with other power sources, such as hydroelectric and fossil fuel—oil and coal—generated power.

Andronik M. Petrosyants, chairman of the Soviet State Committee on the Utilization of Atomic Energy, headed the delegation.

He said the Soviet Union had a number of atomic power installations but, "so far we cannot boast of great profitability of these stations."

One problem, he said, is that they are not of sufficient capacity which he said would be about 500 megawatts per unit. U. S. reactors are not currently this powerful either, but reactors planned now for the next generation of U. S. installations would meet this standard.

Lev A. Artsimovich, head of controlled thermonuclear research at the Kurchatov Institute of Atomic Energy, said Soviet scientists were still a long way from producing the kind of reactions needed to tap thermonuclear power.

Both U. S. and Soviet scientists have had difficulty in designing devices which can hold sufficient densities of superheated gas long enough to produce the energy of the sun and the hydrogen bomb in controlled situations.

Soviet scientists also said they hoped to complete by 1965 a new particle accelerator capable of reaching 70 billion electron volts of power. These accelerators speed up nuclear particles to smash the hearts of atoms in research into the structure of the atomic nucleus.

The Soviet scientists were touring an AEC installation at Berkeley, Calif. When they heard of President John F. Kennedy's death. They suspended their tour for two days, canceling stops at Pleasanton, Calif., and Stanford University.

Chairman Petrosyants said, "Naturally we were quite shaken. We understood the tragedy for the American people and we ourselves were struck by this unexpected tragedy. Our delegation met specially and sent the message of condolences to (Atomic Energy Commission) Chairman (Glenn) T. Seaborg."

Tallulah Police Donate $25 To Tippit Family

TALLULAH (Special) — The family of slain policeman J. D. Tippit of Dallas, Tex., will receive at least $25 from the Tallulah Police Department, Chief Jimmy Rogan announced Saturday.

Rogan said that the sum will be taken from the department's "Policemen's Relief Fund" and will be augmented by monetary gifts from Tallulah residents. He added that some local residents have already donated small sums and others have promised to give undetermined amonuts this week.

Madison Parish Sheriff C. E. Hester said that his department would work with the city police in donating and collecting funds but explained that the project was being directed by the city police department. Both law enforcement chiefs urged that persons desiring to donate use money orders or checks. They said that cash would be accepted by the police department but advised against persons sending cash sums directly to Dallas.

"We here in Tallulah want to show our gratitude not only to policemen but their widows also," stated Rogan. "The policeman's life is often an unheralded one until it is too late. It is our hope that our gift will at least symbolically show to Mrs. Tippit our appreciation for her late husband and breadwinner."

Rights To Ease Under Johnson, Meredith Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The assassination of President Kennedy will have as great an effect on the civil rights movement as did the assassination of President Lincoln 100 years ago," says James H. Meredith.

Meredith, first Negro to graduate from the University of Mississippi, told newsmen on his arrival here that he feels the civil rights program will proceed more slowly under President Lyndon B. Johnson than it would have under Kennedy.

"I think the President (Johnson) is a good man," Meredith said, "but that is less important than the fact he is a Southerner."

This, he said, cannot help but retard the program. He predicted Congress will now pass a compromise civil rights bill.

ASSASSIN ANALYZED

Psychiatrist Give Views On Oswald

NEW YORK (AP)—Lee Harvey Oswald—accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy—was not insane, in the opinion of some psychiatrists.

But he could have been "one of those people on the lunatic fringe, the kind who doesn't have many strings to his bow in reacting to life's stresses. So it could have been that he had finally to shoot," one said.

The key secrets as to what Oswald thought, how he felt, how he reacted to the world he had known for only 24 years, were buried with him. He died before he could be medically examined and studied, or before a court could pass verdict on his guilt or innocence.

For these reasons, most psychiatrists interviewed by The Associated Press asked not to be quoted in giving opinions about Oswald and his motives and personality.

"Judging from scraps of evidence, he was not insane as most people think of insanity," said one authority in Boston.

"Rather he was on the lunatic fringe, one of the twisted, distorted people who have only a limited way of reacting to stress. He can run away—as Oswald did in going off to Russia—or resort to violence.

"The one thing a person of this type cannot tolerate is frustration and anxiety. From reports about Oswald's past, he had both.

"There are certainly unstable personalities and characters who get carried away by all kinds of extremist appeals. Some have more antisocial feelings than others, and can become involved in criminal acts."

Other psychiatrists said the murder Oswald was accused of could be the act of a paranoid, the person ridden by suspicion and hate, who twists situations, who feels persecuted.

Such a person, regarding himself as a self-appointed avenger often does not really try to escape, arranges almost certainly to be caught, one psychiatrist remarked. He seeks the role of martyr.

"Crimes of passion are perhaps different from those of the fanatic," said another specialist. "The fanatic feeds longer on hate and suspicion. By the record now made public, Oswald appears to be of that type. Yet he had his kindly, family side."

From the time he was a youngster, some friends of Oswald have said, he was withdrawn and even seclusive. One quotation as objecting to the criticism from a football coach, and shouting back: "This is a free country. A man is supposed to be able to do what he wants to do."

Oswald was displaying odd behavior, it never came to the attention of persons whose business was to try to help such individuals," said one prominent psychiatrist. "If there had been the right kind of facilities across the nation for aid on mental health problems, perhaps he and others he needed help for his own good, and society's."

Frederick Werthem of New York City divides murderers into five classifications—political terrorists, the killers of rivals, fringe fanatics, the insane who are definitely unbalanced, and "legalized" murder for political reasons carried out by governments.

"The fringe fanatics are a mixture of all kinds of frustrations and differing motives within themselves. They are angry. They often want to kill someone who is big. They usually don't belong to any particular political philosophy. They are not insane," he said.

Nobody examined Oswald, but from details I would think that he, if guilty, would be among the fringe fanatic type of murderer."

Numerous psychiatrists said there is no one single cause for such violence or many murders. The cultural climate and attitudes within society can be one of the basic causes, they said.

187 Absentee Votes Cast In Winn Parish

WINNFIELD (Special) — A total of 187 absentee voters in Winn Parish cast ballots in the Democratic primary here prior to the 5 p.m. deadline Saturday, announced Robert Lee Dunn, clerk of court.

Dunn said that the absentee voting for the Dec. 7 Democratic primary here was a fair average for the past several primaries.

A total of 7,659 are qualified to vote in the Dec. 7 Democratic primary he noted. Of this total 6,628 are white and 1,031 are Negro. In comparison with four years ago this represents a loss of 61 Negro voters and a gain of only 237 white voters qualified. For the Democratic primary in 1959 a total of 7,483 were qualified, 6,391 were white and 1,092 were Negro.

THEY KNOW HIM NOW

UMATILLA, Fla. (AP) — "The bees don't sting me much anymore . . . . now that they've gotten to know me," says 15-year-old Jerry Latner, who has 60 hives of bees now and hopes to have 300 by his graduation day three years from now.

At times Jerry has been treated for as many as a dozen bites on one hand. He has built up an immunity to the stings and wouldn't find them as uncomfortable now as he did in the beginning when the bees attacked him frequently.

Solons Face Crcial Week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first session of the 88th Congress will be known by what it does in the next month. The next seven days will be crucial in making that record.

Civil rights and tax reduction were the big jobs former President John F. Kennedy put before Congress this year. President Johnson last week placed them at the top of his priority list also.

Both bills were supposed to have passed this year. But even before Kennedy was assassinated it was obvious that neither would become law in 1963. It seems highly unlikely that Johnson can change that fact of legislative life.

But the new President made it clear he does not intend to let Congress rest on the oars. His appeal for speedy passage of both bills has set in motion efforts to get both bills ready for early action in 1964.

The Senate Finance Committee is in the last week of hearings on the House-passed bill to reduce federal income taxes by $11 billion. The next stage is closed-door consideration of the bill by the committee. It seems certain the pressure will be on the members to complete this task and have the bill ready for Senate action when Congress returns to work in January after a Christmas - New Year recess.

The civil rights bill, sweeping proposal designed to end racial discrimination in voting, education, employment and public accommodations, technically is ready for House action. But it first must be approved by—or taken away from—the Southern-led House Rules Committee.

Rules Chairman Howard W. Smith, D - Va., is expected to give some indication this week whether he will start the civil rights bill toward the House floor. If Smith will not move, civil rights forces will probably with a movement to force him to act or see the bill taken away from the committee. Whether either course, the bill is likely to be ready for the House before January.

But some legislation does have a chance to pass before Christmas.

Two education bills have been passed by both the House and Senate and could reach the White House in the next few weeks.

A compromise $1.2 billion college classroom construction aid bill already has been approved by the House. It only awaits Senate approval. The college bill is hung up on disagreement over differing House - Senate measures to pump more money into the vocational education program and continue two other existing federal school aid plans. A conference committee will meet on the vocational bill Tuesday, with, for the first time in weeks, some signs of agreement in the air.

Each boy will also make two Christmas tray favors.

A Den Mothers Workshop resumes on January 2, at Westminster Recreation Center (Julia Wossman Center) but sad to relate, not under the leadership of Merle Edwards who will have to relinquish thtis post due to a work promotion. LBJ's Blue Ribbon Investigative Panel Represents All Government Facets WASHINGTON (AP) — The seven men chosen by President Johnson to investigate John F. Kennedy's assassination have engaged in just about every facet of government — legislative executive, judicial, diplomatic, and intelligence.

Headed by the chief justice of the United States, Earl Warren, the bipartisan group includes Sens. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga. and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky; Reps. Hale Boggs, D-La., and Gerald Ford, R-Mich., John J. McCloy, long-time diplomatic troubleshooter, and Allen W. Dulles, former head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

This is the background on each:

WARREN — Now 72, Warren has been chief justice since his appointment to the Supreme Court by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1953. A popular district attorney, he was California's only three-term governor, winning in 1942, 1946 and 1950. He twice sought the Republican presidential nomination and in 1948 was the vice-presidential nominee on the ticket headed by Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1954, Warren read the 9-0 decision in which the court ruled against racial segregation in education. He also read the one laying down the principle of integration "with all deliberate speed."

In recent years he has bee a target of certain strongly co servative groups because of h opinions—and the court's dec sions—on segregation, legisla tive apportionment and separa tion of church and state.

Warren delivered one of th eulogies for Kennedy at t Capitol rotunda last Sunday.

In it the chief justice sai "What moved some misguide wretch to do this horrible de may never be known to us, b we do know that such acts a commonly stimulated by forc of hatred and malevolence, su as today, which are eating the way into the bloodstream American life."

RUSSELL — This 66-year-o bachelor is one of the most po erful members of the U.S. S ate. A master of parliamenta procedure, he has in rece years been the quarterback Southern forces opposed to c rights legislation. Courtly, qu and polite, he has other ba of power besides his parliam tary skill. He is chairman of Armed Services Committee a the second-ranking Democrat the Appropriations and Ae nautical and Space Scien committees. He also serves the Democratic Steering Co mittee.

COOPER — At 63, Cooper h served three separate times the Senate, winning his first t term in 1960. He won an une pired term in 1946 after seve years as a county and circ judge in Kentucky, but was d feated in 1948. He was back another two years of an une pired term in 1952, losing 1954. Then Eisenhower nam him ambassador to India, a p which he filled until late 19 when he returned to run for other unexpired term, winn it in 1956. He is a member the liberal bloc among Sen Republicans.

BOGGS — The No. 3 man the House, Boggs was one the few Southern Democr who worked hard on behalf Kennedy's 1960 Democra presidential campaign. Par because of his efforts, Louisia was solidly Democratic wh several other Southern stat went Republican or withhe their electoral votes from K nedy. He became the young Democrat in the House when won his first term in 1940 wh he was 26.

He lost in 1942 but after wa time service won again in 19 and has been in the House ev since. He's now 49 and a gra father.

FORD — This moderate conservative attorney was first-rate football player for t University of Michigan in 193 34. He practiced law in Gra Rapids following 47 months Navy service during the war.

Ford was elected to the Hou in 1948, easily winning re-ele tion seven times. Earlier th year he was chosen chairman the GOP caucus when a grou of younger Republican mem bers rebelled at the expecte routine re-election of Re Charles Hoeven of Iowa. Whe Republican vice-presidentia possibilities are discussed, h name often is mentioned.

MCCLOY — Now 68, the law yer, banker and diplomat ha spent much of the last 25 year serving Democratic and Repub lican presidents. He was an a sistant secretary of war durin World War II, handling man tough jobs ranging from remov al of Japanese-Americans fro their West Coast homes to help ing plan the Nurenburg wa crimes trials.

Other tours, sandwiched i between brief periods of privat law practice and banking included presidency of the Internation Bank for Reconstruction nd Development, high commissioner for Germany, and unofficial and later official adviser to presidents on disarmament problems.

DULLES — The scholarly appearance of Allen W. Dulles, 70, seems at odds with his background in the world of cloak-and-dagger.

From neutral Switzerland, Dulles directed a huge spy network that operated in both Germany and Japan in World War II. After the war he became deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, the super-secret organization created in 1947.

With the inauguration of Dwight D. Eisenhower as president in 1953, Dulles and his late brother, John Foster Dulles, formed a team in the cold war defense against communism — Allen as CIA director and John Foster as secretary of state.

The beginning of the Kennedy administration saw Allen W. Dulles return to the practice of law. He lives in the Georgetown section of Washington.

Retired Farmer Sprightly Notes 103rd Birthday

YUMA, Colo. (AP)—A lively, hearty retired eastern Colorado farmer who drove his car until two years ago, celebrates his 103rd birthday Sunday.

Fred W. Bushner smilingly lifted high a heavy weight in his right hand to show a reporter how much in the pink he is.

Bushner does his own yard work and says his eyes are still good enough "for me to see that grain elevator six miles away."

His relatives decided to hide his automobile keys when he was 101 and his state driver's license has just recently expired. Bushner was past 50 when he began driving a car in 1911 and he kept on driving for 51 years without getting a single traffic ticket.

During the time he was still at the wheel he used to say, "Drive as if everyone else is crazy."

Bushner was born at Youngstown, Ohio, nearly 4½ years before President Abraham Lincoln was shot fatally in a Washington theater.

"I've always worked hard and tried to live like a Christian," he said.

"He's outlived six automobiles and four trucks, besides the steam tractors he used to operate in his farm fields.

Bushner plans a quiet birthday party with his wife, Jennie.

TRUANCY, PSYCHIATRIC RECORD

Young Oswald Had Mental Disturbance

NEW YORK (AP)—The Post said Saturday that Lee Harvey Oswald, accused as the asassin of President John F. Kenedy, had a psychiatric and truancy record in the Bronx.

The newspaper, in a copyright story, quoted Florence M. Kelley, presiding justice of the Family Court, as saying the information has been given to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"It was learned from other sources that the psychiatric report recommended young Oswald—then only 13—for commitment," the Post said. "The recommendation was turned down by the court.

"The probation report found schizophrenic tendencies and said that Oswald was 'potentially dangerous.'

"The boy's mother testified that she could not cope with him."

Young Oswald had been taken to the court in 1953 for long-term truancy.

Justice Kelley, who was not a member of the court at that time, confirmed that there had been a psychiatric report on Oswald, but declined to disclose the nature of it, the Post said.

It quoted her as saying:

"Our records are always confidential and we never reveal them to anyone. I did give some information to the FBI, as an exception, and contrary to our regular rules, for the simple reason that Oswald is dead and if this kind of report could cast light on what kind of person he was, that would be in the national interest."

Oswald and his mother came to the Bronx from Fort Worth, Tex., and the boy attended two Bronx junior high schools.

The Post said it had been told by Bronx teachers and principals that Oswald spent only 15 days out of an entire term at one school and that he was "below par" at the other.

The mother and son left New York shortly after the court appearance, the Post said.

News stories here said the FBI was checking a report that Oswald in later years was a close friend of an extreme right-winger, a Mississippian who lived at one time in New York City's Greenwich Village.

The FBI refused to confirm or deny the report, but several Villagers confirmed that agents had questioned them in an effort to learn the whereabouts of the rightist.

Chips From The Stump

Kennon

GONZALES (Special)—Louisiana's mentally ill and physically inform citizens are the people to whom the state owes the most responsibility for care and rehabilitation, according to Robert F. Kennon, candidate for governor.

"These people have always been uppermost in my consideration," said Kennon, who cited the many instititutional reforms of his previous term as governor, 1952-56.

"When I was your governor," Kennon said "We modernized methods and facilities throughout the state's system of mental hospitals and gave these people heal hope, dignity and a chance to rehabilitate.

"I think it is our Christian duty to help all those who are victims of mental illness but to me the children are special," Kennon said.

He also said emphasis would be placed on these out patient treatment for those who do not require long periods of hospitalization. "We established several of these out patient centers throughout the state and they proved highly successful."

The former governor also cited the record of his administration on extensive efforts to rehabilitate alcoholics.

"I am convinced that these people are just as sick as those with any other illness. We owe it to them, their families and our society to do everything we can to restore them to normality and rehabilitate them to useful roles," he said.

"Unfortunately," Kennon said," some of the best minds and talents succumb to alcoholism. We need a simultaneous program to educate our young people as to the pitfalls of habitual drinking and a program for those who are already hooked and need help."

Kennon opening the last week of his campaign before the first democratic primary next Saturday, said he would run the state's affairs in every department in a nammer in keeping with sound management prudent spending and honesty."

"And I will run my own shop in Baton Rouge too," Kennon said. He said he was not "committed or tied to any other governor, mayor, political organization or special interest groups.

He said his only obligation as governor for the next four years would be "to the people who pay the taxes, cast the votes, and have the right to expect decency and honesty in their government. That is as it should be."

McKeithen

FRANKLINGTON (Special)—Gubernatorial Candidate John McKeithen in the second day of a three day stomping tour said here Saturday that, "reports from Baton Rouge clearly indicate that the Davis administration is now evenly divided in their support of Gillis Long and Bob Kennon."

McKeithen continued "that's why these two candidates have refused to say a single word about anything that the Davis administration has done. It's just been revealed that all federal matching funds have been stopped, pending an investigation by the United States Department of Justice. It is incredible that Gillis Long and Bob Kennon continue their silence on these sad events."

The current investigation into our highway program brings shame upon this entire state and I find it amazing that either Gillis Long or Bob Kennon refuse to denounce this kind of bad government."

McKeithen went on "as your governor I shall immediately fill all department heads in Baton Rouge with citizens of unquestioned integrity, ability, and first day in office I shall make it obvious to this nation that a new way of life has come about in Louisiana government. I propose to make Louisiana a model state, one that will set the pace for the rest of the country to follow."

"And there is only one way to accomplish this. Dead-headism, waste, and mis-management must be forever removed from state government. The selfish must be replaced by citizens who are eager to serve their fellow men with decency, honesty, and dignity."

Morrison

ERATH (Special) — Launching a weekend of intensive campaigning before dawn Saturday, deLesseps "Chep" Morrison said he sees the task of Louisiana's next governor as two-fold.

"First, he has to clean up the rotten mess in our state government, and secondly he must begin an all-out, positive program to promote, advertise and sell the great assets of our state to the rest of the world," Morrison said.

Speaking both French and English, Morrison talked with hunters and fishermen before dawn at Bayou Sorrel and carried his campaign into Pigeon, Plaquemine, Erath, Kaplan and Oakdale.

"It seems I have exactly the same kind of job ahead that I had in 1946 when I was first elected mayor of New Orleans," Morrison said. "The city badly needed a cleanup and a program to promote its assets, and it got both."

Citing Louisiana's "massive unemployment, our educational system which ranks dead last in the nation and appalling political climate," Morrison charged that for the past two decades the state's political leaders have been occupied "building their own personal fortunes and have ignored the vaster horizons of a real future for our state."

It is time Louisiana had an administration capable and willing to look further into the future than its four-year term of office he said, adding that "a mammoth task awaits your next team of state officials."

Morrison said in his opinion the governor should be the state's "number one salesman."

"Of course, the governor has to be a good team to back him which means a 100 per cent professional, non - political department of commerce and industry with a top-notch, professional director," he said.

Kirkpatrick

NAPOLENVILLE (Special)—Jude Kirkpatrick, independent candidate for governor, spoke in Napoleonville at a coffee at the American Legion Hall.

Kirkpatrick said, "This is the most unusual gubernatorial campaign ever in Louisiana. The candidates have tried all the tactics to attract the support of the voters: stump speaking, sign banners, barbeques, etc. Yet with all the big names in the race and with endorsements of most of the known politicians, there is still 25 to 30 per cent of the voters undecided.

"In the last few days, I have the key to their indecision. The voters are tired of the old political promises, mud slinging, faultfinding, and character defamation.

"All they want is good honest business like government. It is as simple as that. The voters have examined the campaign tactics and promises of the candidates. The response for my candidacy is growing. By letters, the calls and personal contacts they have told me they like my qualifications and my no mudslinging approach. That is why many of the undecided voters are supporting me now."

Long

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Gubernatorial candidate Gillis Long and members of his ticket will make a state-wide helicopter tour of the state during the last week of the campaign for governor, it was revealed Saturday.

Long told a crowd of several thousand supporters at a barbecue and rally here that he, R. O. Haik, candidate for lieutenant governor and Andrew Falcon, comptroller candidate will make stops in 57 towns and cities in every section of the state during the whirlwind tour by air. The air tour begins Monday morning with a stop in Slidell and winds up Thursday in Baton Rouge.

"We have conducted this campaign out in an unusual way — with a fund - raising dinner — so I think it's fitting that we end it in this fashion", Long commented.

Long said he or a member of his ticket would be making brief speeches and hand-shaking stops at each of the towns on the "sutmping" route.

The barbecue and rally where Long made the announcement climaxed a parade of several hundred automobiles which wound through downtown Baton Rouge and ended at the farm of Dr. E. J. Herpich.

Long took to the back of a flat-bed truck to declare that "the die is cast — we're going to win this election."

"The hate merchants, the policitcal opportunists, the hypocrites and would-be deadheads are going to get a shellacking next Saturday, because the Long-Rush ticket is out in front and running strong."

Long said he is committeed to five specific programs "desperately needed by the people of Louisiana." He identified the programs as: (1) elimination of all fees in state colleges; (2) a $10 per month increase in old age assistance benefits; (3) charity hospital services extended to more people; (4) programs of long - term, low interest college loans, expanded scholarship programs and grants - in - aid for people attending private schools; and (5) pay increase for teachers in line with United Schools committee recommendation.

"I know how we can get the money for these programs, and I pledge to you that we will carry out these programs when I become governor," he said.

His cousin, Senator Russell B. Long told the rally that, "Gillis Long is putting something into this Long name — not just taking something out. I'm sick and tired of these character assassins insulting the man who has brought nothing but credit to the Long name since he entered public life."

PARENTS' MAGAZINE AWARD for outstanding service to a community by a youth group has been presented to the high school hospital aides of the American Red Cross, Ouachita Parish chapter. Receiving the plaque is Claire McGee, chairman of the parish high school Red Cross council. Dr. James Padgett, chairman of high school Red Cross activities, makes the presentation, while Parish Chapter Chairman Louis E. Gruber looks on. Members of the aides volunteer their time and service at all local hospitals.

GET SERVICE AWARD

Youthful Hospital Aides Commended

The high school youngsters of the Ouachita Parish Red Cross Hospital Aides have been commended by a national publication for "outstanding service to the community."

The Parents' Magazine "achievement award" was presented to Miss Claire McGee, chairman of the aides' organization, soon after its receipt here by parish high school Red Cross activities chairman, Dr. James Padgett.

Formal presentation is set for a Red Cross Chapter board meeting at 6:30 p.m., Dec. 11.

The plaque cites "outstanding service to the community by a youth group." Included in the magazine's considerations were 7,604 hours of volunteer service in three Twin City hospitals last year, as well as work in nine local nursing homes and clinical assistance during the recent polio immunization drive.

Organized in the summer of 1958 with only 11 volunteers participating in exclusively summer work, the organization had extended its services by 1960 throughout the school year and on weekends.

Last year's membership had grown to 77 hospital aides, with other high school youngsters helping in the nursing homes.

Aides receive special training at classes conducted three times each year in cooperation with hospital officials. After completion of the course, the aide receives an assigned schedule and works directly under the supervision of the hospital staff.

Their duties run the gamut of virtually every non-technical assignment performed at a hospital.

Service to the parish's "senior citizens" include everything from chatty visits to year-around correspondence, and assistance at monthly parties for the aged at chapter headquarters on South Grand. The youngsters write letters to relatives for the "old folks."

At Thanksgiving, they bake cookies, package and deliver them to the approximately 350 nursing home patients. More hours are logged at Christmas, filling Christmas stockings, wrapping gifts and helping with entertainment. At Easter, baskets are made and they join in the egg dying hel dat the chapter, filling baskets with real and candy eggs and again making trips to the homes.

"The hospital aides are truly young 'angels of mercy,' standing ready at all times to serve their community," says Red Cross Chapter Director Mrs. Taunton Veazey.

"They are devoted to their work and will make good citizens, as they are learning early the importance of community needs.

"Many are interested in the field of medicine and their experiences as hospital aides may some day be valuable to them in their professional lives as well."

Series Of Snags Hampers Italian Coalition Move

ROME (UPI)—Premier-designate Aldo Moro, a Christian Democrat, ran into a series of minor snags Saturday in his attempt to form a new center-left Italian government. He was expected to succeed, however, by today or Monday.

The anciticipated new government faced twin threates of inflation and a Communist-led wave of strikes.

Moro, 47, had been expected to have the new government ready by Saturday. A series of minor hassles over the distribution of positions kept it from getting off the ground.

Confronting the four-party government, which will include Pietro Nenni's Socialists for the first time since 1947, will be a wave of labor claims which, if accepted, might deal the final blow to the long tottering Italian lira.

A series of railroadmen's strikes are scheduled in various cities next week and other state employes may join in the fight for salary raises that would cost the state an estimated $672 million a year.

The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero warned that such raises, coming on the heels of annual "13th month" payments to workers which total $1.24 billion, would plunge Italy into inflation. This, it said, was exactly what the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor (CGIL) wanted.

A CROWD of onlookers quickly gathered at the scene of this accident at Twin City Glass, upper photo, Friday night when the car shown below rammed the rear of a second vehicle and then skidded into the front of the glass company. The car, driven by Miss Sharon Sims, Pensacola, Fla., skidded for about 150 feet after the first impact with the other auto, breaking down part of a steel-beam supported sign and smashing the plate glass window in the front of Twin City Glass Co. Victor Ditto, president of the glass company, said damages inflicted would run in excess of $6,000. Driver of the other car, Douglas Sipes, Crossett, Ark., was uninjured while Miss Sims sustained minor bruises and lacerations. The accident occurred at the Louisville Avenue-Breard Street intersection around 10 p.m. Friday, and police charged Miss Sims with reckless driving and damage to property. NLSC To Host Export Conference

Mid-South businessmen interested in learning more about opportunities for trade abroad are invited to participate in the Northeast Louisiana State College Export Conference here on Dec. 3, according to Wilbur L. Perkins, conference chairman and a member of the Louisiana-Mississippi Regional Export Expansion Council.

The day-long program opens with registration at the College Union Building from 8:30 to 9:15 a.m. Handling registration and serving coffee will be members of the Northeast State chapter of Pi Sigma Epsilon sales and marketing fraternity.

The opening session, with Prof. Perkins presiding, begins at 9:15. Dr. George T. Walker, president of the College, will welcome campus visitors. Dr. Edwin A. Leland Jr., manager of the New Orleans field office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, will respond.

After a showing of a 14-minute film, entitled "The Trade Fair Story," Harry X. Kelly of New Orleans, director of customer relations for Delta Steamship Lines and chairman of the two-state Regional Export Expansion Council, will discuss "Department of Commerce Trade Fairs and Trade Centers and Mobile Trade Fairs."

"The Role of the Banker in Foreign Trade" will be discussed at 10:30 a.m. by another member of the Council, John B. Tullos, vice president of the First National Bank of Jackson, Miss.

Another shipping expert, Walter C. Flower II of New Orleans, president of Lusk Shipping Co., will tell the "Functions of the Freight Forwarder." He will be followed on the program by John A. Barry, also of New Orleans, vice president of William H. McGee and Co., Inc., who will report on "The Foreign Credit Insurance Association and Export Credit Insurance."

H. K. Thatcher of Camden, Ark., executive secretary of the Ouachita River Valley Improvement Association, discusses "The Ouachita River Channel and What It Means to Monroe" at the noon meeting.

Highlighting the conference program is a luncheon address at 1 p.m. by Arthur B. Ball, Consult of Great Britain at New Orleans. He will tell of "Experiences in the Middle East."

The Export Conference, second in as many years at Northeast State, has been arranged by the College's Division of Business Administration in cooperation with the Louisiana - Mississippi Regional Export Expansion Committee, Small Business Administration, Monroe and West Monroe Chambers of Commerce and the New Orleans office of the Department of Commerce.

Interested parties are invited to attend. The registration fee is $2.50, which includes the luncheon. Chairman Perkins encourages advanced registrations, although payment may be made at time of registration.

Banned Book Goes On Sale

LONDON (AP)—A deluxe edition of the 200-year-old novel "Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure—Fanny Hill" went on sale in London Saturday at $6.50 per copy. Thousands of copies of a paperback edition, designed to sell for 49 cents each, were seized by police before they could be put on sale three weeks ago and adjudication is pending. There was no immediate police action against the deluxe edition.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

Prelates Become Key Protagonists

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council has brought into prominence a handful of prelates as key protagonists in Roman Catholicism's search for renewal and reform.

Perhaps the two most dominant figures to emerge from the council, aside from Pope Paul VI, are Belgium's Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens and Italy's Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani.

They have come to represent the main tendencies in the council, an assemblage of 2,200 cardinals, patriarches, archbishops, bishops and abbots from around the world.

In the press terminology that has developed around the council, Cardinal Suenens is a progressive, and Cardinal Ottaviani is a conservative. The progressives say they prefer to be called "updaters" and the conservatives call themselves "traditionalists." Many prelates do not clearly belong to either group and might be called "moderates."

These descriptions have reflected divisions that have developed in the council during its two sessions, the first last fall and the second now just four days away from conclusion.

Cardinal Suenens, 59, the vigorous archbishop of Brussels, makes no secret of his feeling that the Church must renew itself in this century of new Christian unity efforts.

"The Church up to now has lived in a limited cultural world, which we could define as mediterranean," Cardinal Suenens said in a lecture in Florence Friday night. "The situation is radically changing today. Every man has his own way to admire God's creation and this way of His must be respected."

Cardinal Ottaviani, 73, secretary of the Vatican's powerful Holy Office, has been the most articulate spokesman of the conservatives, or traditionalists. They are worried that there could be too much reform, too much renewal — more than might be good for Church tradition. Cardinal Ottaviani says many of the world's half-billion Catholics might be scandalized by too much change.

Other prelates have also emerged as prominent figures at the council, which has demonstrated to the world a diversity of opinion within the Roman Catholic Church. Clearly no one cardinal, no one bishop can speak for the Church in its current period.

HOT POLITICAL RACE

Warrant Served On Area Sheriff

RAYVILLE (Special) — Sheriff Earl E. Hill, engaged in a hot battle for re-election, has been charged with violation of a state statute which requires major parish officials to file a financial report with the police jury and the clerk of court.

Hill is in a race with six other candidates in the De. 7 Democratic primary. His opponents are A. Douglas Booth, J. W. Cardin, Maynard A. Chambers, C. C. Dopson, L. C. (Jack) Hogan and Allen L. Silk.

Roy V. Norman of Oak Ridge filed the warrant, which was served on Hill by Coroner J. C. Ellington Thursday.

Assistant Dist. Atty. William R. Coehen said that the clerk of court, D. B. McKay and Richard Downes, police jury secretary, told him that no official in Richland Parish has ever filed such a report.

But Coehen said that "This warrant will be processed in the usual fashion; my investigation and report will be attached thereto."

Conviction o f violation of the statute calls for $1,000 fine or imprisonment for six months or both.

The case was expected to be submitted to the next semi-annual meeting of the Richland Parish Grand Jury.

The last examination of the accounts of the sheriff's office by J. B. Lancaster, supervisor of public funds, brought this statement from Lancaster:

"The revenue of the sheriff's salary fund for the year under review exceeded expenditures by $3,072.45. This increased the surplus in the salary fund to $33,868.30 at June 30, 1963. . ."

The supervisor continued, "We are pleased to report again that the records have been maintained in a very satisfactory manner, and we acknowledge with appreciation the courtesies extended our representatives during the examination."

Hill issued this statement:

"Anticipating that I would be asked to make a statement in connection with recent charges made against me by Roy V. Norman, that I had violated the statues by failing to file an annual report listing expenditures of my office, I have prepared the following statement:

"True, there is a law on the statute books which requires all clerks of courts, assessors, coroners, registrar of voters, board of health, levee boards and sheriffs to furnish annually to the police jury and clerk of court of their parish, a written itemized report showing the expenditures made by their office. I have been sheriff for 12 years and there have been sheriffs before me from 1869, and to the best of my knowledge no sheriff has ever filed such a report.

"While I have no right to comment on any of the other offices listed, I have been advised that neither do any of the other parish offices file similar reports. This does not indicate that there is any dishonesty on anyone's part, and I assure you there is no dishonesty in my office.

"I am thoroughly audited by the supervisor of public funds, and I have been given a complete clearance for every year of my 12 years in office.

"My audit is published in the newspaper by the supervisor of public funds. I have never received any criticism about the way I have handled my office. My office deputies who handle expenditures are bonded and trustworthy and of the highest caliber.

"Strange to me this arrest came on Thanksgiving Day and 10 days before my bid for re-election. This indicates to me that it is purely political in nature and does not come from a sincere heart. However, I am no more than a citizen such as is each individual who reads this article. I stand arrested, I have made bond, the matter will be presented to the grand jury for consideration.

"I again wish to emphasize I have no hidden expenditures and I think this whole matter is simply a trumped up political scheme to attempt to slander my reputation."

State Fire Marshal John E. Coon has been named for the fifth consecutive year to serve on the Arson Committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

IACP President Dan Liu, of Honolulu, Hawaii, requested Coon to serve another term on the committee. The request was made in a letter from Liu on November 22.

Coon accepted the appointment in a letter in which he advised Liu he considered it "a great honor and privilege to serve on this most important committee and will be very happy to devote the time requested in carrying out the duties that will be imposed upon me by accepting this appointment."

Coon, from Monroe, has been state fire marshal for over seven years.

14 Building Permits Are Issued Here

Monroe builders apparently celebrated the Thanksgiving holidays last week, as only 14 building permits were issued, according to Dale Martha, coordinator of the City of Monroe inspector's department.

Six new structure permits brought the total amount up to $68,655, a substantial increase over the $46,820 of the previous week. During that week 20 permits were issued for a three-month low, but the 14 issued from Nov. 25-29 set a new record low for one week.

A further breakdown of the past week's activities lists three permits for additions to existing buildings, three for moves and one each for remodeling and demolition.

The largest single permit was issued to Thames and Hartness to construct a new brick veneer residence at 807 Eason Place, amounting to $16,000. This firm also received a permit for a $12,000 brick veneer residence at 2019 Spencer.

BH&I Building Corp., Inc. got a permit for a $13,000 new brick veneer residence to be built at 1709 Ford.

Two permits were let to Community Homes for new brick veneer residences, both for $6,000, to be located at 3907 and 3909 Cooper.

The other permit for a new structure went to Bob Anderson for a new frame used car office at 606 Winnsboro Road, costing $350.

Willie Cain received a $10,000 addition permit for work to be done on his motel and lounge at 1207 Griffin.

A permit for a $3,000 addition to the block and brick cafe at 2000 Milhaven Road was issued to Columbus Dunn.

A $2,000 addition permit was obtained by J. S. McWilliams for his frame residence at 811 K St.

G. W. Welch received permission to demolish a frame residence located at 505 6th St.

Mrs. Carl S. Cheatham plans to do $305 worth of remodeling work on her residence at 304 Colliier.

Permits for moving frame residences were issued to: Bill Beckstrom, from 605 Calypso outside the city, and two to Henry Carroll, from 605 Calypso and from 701 Oak, both outside the city.

New Tulsa Bank To Open After Financial Snarl

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—A brand new bank with a slightly used name opens for business Monday, ending more than three weeks of financial frustration for thousands of Tulsans.

The Southern Hills National Bank of Tulsa won't be the same Southern Hills National Bank that shut down Nov. 8 because business got ahead of bookkeeping.

Southern Hills opened Aug. 5 offering "no service charge for life" to initial depositors — and the rush of customers quickly swamped it. Temporary quarters were expanded. The staff of 50 multiplied to nearly 300 at one point.

Staff and equipment could not keep up and Comptroller of the currency James Saxon suspended the bank's business. He named William H. Greenfield of Dallas as conservator.

The bank's assets are being sold at Saxon's direction.

The bank's 31,000 depositors probably won't be able to tell much difference. The 312 stockholders will get what's left after all liabilities are paid.

Just how much that will be is not known. The bank opened with a capitalization of $909,000 and at one point listed more than $5 million in deposits.

Accounts will automatically be transferred to the new bank —also known as Southern Hills but with an "of Tulsa" added.

For most customers, the big difference will be that the new bank will have a service charge for checking accounts.

Next January Deadline For Veterans Data

Louis Smith, chairman of Home Service, Ouachita Parish Chapter, American Red Cross, announced that questionaires sent out by the U. S. Veterans Administration with November checks must be completed and returned before January 31, 1964 to avoid suspension of payments.

This applies to all veterans, widows and children of deceased veterans receiving pension, and to dependent parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. Smith said if there are any questions regarding these forms call the Red Cross office.

Series Of Snags Hampers Italian Coalition Move

ROME (UPI)—Premier-designate Aldo Moro, a Christian Democrat, ran into a series of minor snags Saturday in his attempt to form a new center-left Italian government. He was expected to succeed, however, by today or Monday.

The anciticipated new government faced twin threates of inflation and a Communist-led wave of strikes.

Moro, 47, had been expected to have the new government ready by Saturday. A series of minor hassles over the distribution of positions kept it from getting off the ground.

Confronting the four-party government, which will include Pietro Nenni's Socialists for the first time since 1947, will be a wave of labor claims which, if accepted, might deal the final blow to the long tottering Italian lira.

A series of railroadmen's strikes are scheduled in various cities next week and other state employes may join in the fight for salary raises that would cost the state an estimated $672 million a year.

The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero warned that such raises, coming on the heels of annual "13th month" payments to workers which total $1.24 billion, would plunge Italy into inflation. This, it said, was exactly what the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor (CGIL) wanted.

A CROWD of onlookers quickly gathered at the scene of this accident at Twin City Glass, upper photo, Friday night when the car shown below rammed the rear of a second vehicle and then skidded into the front of the glass company. The car, driven by Miss Sharon Sims, Pensacola, Fla., skidded for about 150 feet after the first impact with the other auto, breaking down part of a steel-beam supported sign and smashing the plate glass window in the front of Twin City Glass Co. Victor Ditto, president of the glass company, said damages inflicted would run in excess of $6,000. Driver of the other car, Douglas Sipes, Crossett, Ark., was uninjured while Miss Sims sustained minor bruises and lacerations. The accident occurred at the Louisville Avenue-Breard Street intersection around 10 p.m. Friday, and police charged Miss Sims with reckless driving and damage to property. NLSC To Host Export Conference

Mid-South businessmen interested in learning more about opportunities for trade abroad are invited to participate in the Northeast Louisiana State College Export Conference here on Dec. 3, according to Wilbur L. Perkins, conference chairman and a member of the Louisiana-Mississippi Regional Export Expansion Council.

The day-long program opens with registration at the College Union Building from 8:30 to 9:15 a.m. Handling registration and serving coffee will be members of the Northeast State chapter of Pi Sigma Epsilon sales and marketing fraternity.

The opening session, with Prof. Perkins presiding, begins at 9:15. Dr. George T. Walker, president of the College, will welcome campus visitors. Dr. Edwin A. Leland Jr., manager of the New Orleans field office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, will respond.

After a showing of a 14-minute film, entitled "The Trade Fair Story," Harry X. Kelly of New Orleans, director of customer relations for Delta Steamship Lines and chairman of the two-state Regional Export Expansion Council, will discuss "Department of Commerce Trade Fairs and Trade Centers and Mobile Trade Fairs."

"The Role of the Banker in Foreign Trade" will be discussed at 10:30 a.m. by another member of the Council, John B. Tullos, vice president of the First National Bank of Jackson, Miss.

Another shipping expert, Walter C. Flower II of New Orleans, president of Lusk Shipping Co., will tell the "Functions of the Freight Forwarder." He will be followed on the program by John A. Barry, also of New Orleans, vice president of William H. McGee and Co., Inc., who will report on "The Foreign Credit Insurance Association and Export Credit Insurance."

H. K. Thatcher of Camden, Ark., executive secretary of the Ouachita River Valley Improvement Association, discusses "The Ouachita River Channel and What It Means to Monroe" at the noon meeting.

Highlighting the conference program is a luncheon address at 1 p.m. by Arthur B. Ball, Consult of Great Britain at New Orleans. He will tell of "Experiences in the Middle East."

The Export Conference, second in as many years at Northeast State, has been arranged by the College's Division of Business Administration in cooperation with the Louisiana - Mississippi Regional Export Expansion Committee, Small Business Administration, Monroe and West Monroe Chambers of Commerce and the New Orleans office of the Department of Commerce.

Interested parties are invited to attend. The registration fee is $2.50, which includes the luncheon. Chairman Perkins encourages advanced registrations, although payment may be made at time of registration.

Banned Book Goes On Sale

LONDON (AP)—A deluxe edition of the 200-year-old novel "Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure—Fanny Hill" went on sale in London Saturday at $6.50 per copy. Thousands of copies of a paperback edition, designed to sell for 49 cents each, were seized by police before they could be put on sale three weeks ago and adjudication is pending. There was no immediate police action against the deluxe edition.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

Prelates Become Key Protagonists

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council has brought into prominence a handful of prelates as key protagonists in Roman Catholicism's search for renewal and reform.

Perhaps the two most dominant figures to emerge from the council, aside from Pope Paul VI, are Belgium's Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens and Italy's Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani.

They have come to represent the main tendencies in the council, an assemblage of 2,200 cardinals, patriarches, archbishops, bishops and abbots from around the world.

In the press terminology that has developed around the council, Cardinal Suenens is a progressive, and Cardinal Ottaviani is a conservative. The progressives say they prefer to be called "updaters" and the conservatives call themselves "traditionalists." Many prelates do not clearly belong to either group and might be called "moderates."

These descriptions have reflected divisions that have developed in the council during its two sessions, the first last fall and the second now just four days away from conclusion.

Cardinal Suenens, 59, the vigorous archbishop of Brussels, makes no secret of his feeling that the Church must renew itself in this century of new Christian unity efforts.

"The Church up to now has lived in a limited cultural world, which we could define as mediterranean," Cardinal Suenens said in a lecture in Florence Friday night. "The situation is radically changing today. Every man has his own way to admire God's creation and this way of His must be respected."

Cardinal Ottaviani, 73, secretary of the Vatican's powerful Holy Office, has been the most articulate spokesman of the conservatives, or traditionalists. They are worried that there could be too much reform, too much renewal — more than might be good for Church tradition. Cardinal Ottaviani says many of the world's half-billion Catholics might be scandalized by too much change.

Other prelates have also emerged as prominent figures at the council, which has demonstrated to the world a diversity of opinion within the Roman Catholic Church. Clearly no one cardinal, no one bishop can speak for the Church in its current period.

HOT POLITICAL RACE

Warrant Served On Area Sheriff

RAYVILLE (Special) — Sheriff Earl E. Hill, engaged in a hot battle for re-election, has been charged with violation of a state statute which requires major parish officials to file a financial report with the police jury and the clerk of court.

Hill is in a race with six other candidates in the De. 7 Democratic primary. His opponents are A. Douglas Booth, J. W. Cardin, Maynard A. Chambers, C. C. Dopson, L. C. (Jack) Hogan and Allen L. Silk.

Roy V. Norman of Oak Ridge filed the warrant, which was served on Hill by Coroner J. C. Ellington Thursday.

Assistant Dist. Atty. William R. Coehen said that the clerk of court, D. B. McKay and Richard Downes, police jury secretary, told him that no official in Richland Parish has ever filed such a report.

But Coehen said that "This warrant will be processed in the usual fashion; my investigation and report will be attached thereto."

Conviction o f violation of the statute calls for $1,000 fine or imprisonment for six months or both.

The case was expected to be submitted to the next semi-annual meeting of the Richland Parish Grand Jury.

The last examination of the accounts of the sheriff's office by J. B. Lancaster, supervisor of public funds, brought this statement from Lancaster:

"The revenue of the sheriff's salary fund for the year under review exceeded expenditures by $3,072.45. This increased the surplus in the salary fund to $33,888.30 at June 30, 1963. . ."

The supervisor continued, "We are pleased to report again that the records have been maintained in a very satisfactory manner, and we acknowledge with appreciation the courtesies extended our representatives during the examination."

Hili issued this statement:

"True, there is a law on the statute books which requires all clerks of courts, assessors, coroners, registrar of voters, board of health, levee boards and sheriffs to furnish annually to the police jury and clerk of court of their parish, a written itemized report showing the expenditures made by their office. children were included in the warnings.

Four pedestrians and a policeman were wounded in gunplay in a slum district Saturday morning. Police said the pedestrians were hit by stray bullets fired in a gun fight between police and terrorist snipers.

Machine-gunners strafed the Trinidad Embassy from a speeding car, apparently to retaliate for Trinidad's release to Venezuelan authorities of six terrorists who hijacked an airliner Thursday. Damage was slight.

The FALN imposed its curfew by death threat as of the Friday midnight deadline that closed the campaigning of seven candidates for Betancourt's job. He is prevented by the constitution from seeking a consecutive term, but his candidate is expected to win.

During the night, terrorists slipped about the city tossing tacks into streets in an attempt to keep motorists at home. But soon afterward, street cleaners went into operation, scooping most of them up. Motorists began appearing in heavy numbers by noon — many with brooms and tree branches attached to their front bumers to sweep away remaining tacks.

In separate parts of the city, terrorists halted two buses, ordered their passengers out and set the vehicles afire. A third bus was burned as it stood parked and empty.

But the central parts of Caracas buzzed with activity. Housewives streamed into stores and supermarkets to do their weekend shopping.

Traffic picked up in the afternoon after appearing slightly below normal during the morning hours.

About 10,000 police, reinforced by National Guard troops, were deployed throughout this capital. An estimated 40,000 other troops were stationed at polling places throughout the nation.

Tension grew Friday with a government disclosure it had uncovered a huge cache of arms on the Paraguana peninsula in guerrilla-infested Falcon State in the west. U. S. and Venezuelan officials said the arms came from Cuba. Venezuela plans to lodge an official charge of aggression against Cuba before the Organization of American States in Washington Tuesday. The United States joined the Betancourt government in demanding stricter measures against the regime, of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

On Wednesday, FALN terrorists kidnaped Col. James K. Chenault, deputy chief of the U. S. military aid mission to Venezuela, and now were demanding the release of 71 terrorist prisoners as ransom. Officials expressed the belief, however, that the terrorists would release Chenault after the election.

Of the seven candidates, the front-runner is Raul Leoni of Betancourt's Democratic Action party, known here by its Spanish initials AD. He is a supporter of Betancourt's policy of working closely with the United States in opposing the Castro regime. Betancourt has become Castro's worst enemy in Latin America.

scattered over a mile - square area.

After the wreckage was spotted and the area pinpointed by CAP members, Jackson authorities sent in a ground search crew to make positive identification of the downed craft. The wrecked craft was found a few miles off the route Wylie would have flown between Jackson and Monroe enroute to Dallas.

Paschal Norris, a Major in the Monroe Air Reserve Squadron working with CAP piloting the plane that first sighted the wreckage, said the plane they spotted must have exploded in the air and then burned after hitting the ground.

According to owners of the twin-engine craft ,it was valued at $200,000 and was equipped with around $75,000 worth of radio equipment.

House To Study Protection Bill For Jacqueline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House is expected to pass a bill Monday to provide temporary Secret Service protection and other benefits to Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of the late President, and her two children.

The bill was introduced only Friday by Chairman Tom Murray, D-Tenn., of the House Civil Service Committee. It was announced that it would be brought to a quick vote Monday.

Under an existing law, enacted in 1958, Mrs. Kennedy is entitled to a $10,000 annual pension for the rest of her life.

Murray's bill would authorize:

Lifetime franking privileges for Mrs. Kennedy, enabling her to send mail postage free.

B. B. Martin, past chairman of the Goodfellows drive, has had to relinquish most of the work this year because of his health, Hesketh said, adding that Martin will continue to help with the project.

As in the past, the Morning World and News-Star will print a list of the contributors to the fund.

Already Goodfellows are receiving requests from needy people. Several letters came in the past week.

Cuban Press Denies Arms In Venezula

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban press denied Saturday that Cuba sent arms to Venezuelan terrorists in an attempt to scuttle Sunday's presidential election. Newspapers claimed the charges made by the United States and Venezuela were forerunners to an attack on Cuba.

Said the newspaper Revolucion: "To insist on armed aggression against the Cuban people is simply playing with atomic fire."

This apparently is a reference to the Soviet Union's announced vow to defend Cuba against any attack.

The Venezuelan government of President Romulo Betancourt announced a large cache of arms was found in Venezuela's Falcon State and U. S. and Venezuelan officials said the arms came from Cuba for use by the pro-Communist Armed Forces for National Liberation —FALN—to scuttle Venezuela's presidential election Sunday.

"That assumed discovery of arms and the accusation that Cuba sent them is a course trick which our country flatly rejects," said the newspaper El Mundo. "The Cuban state, as our government has repeatedly said, maintains a policy of strict respect for the sovereignty of states and does not intervene in their internal affairs."

Revolucion was vitriolic in denunciations of Betancourt and the United States.

It called Betancourt a "great dragon Birchist . . . imperialism's chum . . . Nelson Rockefeller's harlot."

(The reference was to the ultraconservative John Birch Society.)

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York is a friend of Betancourt and his family has holdings in Venezuela.

Revolucion said the events since President John F. Kennedy's assassination have led to a "hysterical climate against Cuba."

It said the Venezuelan charges had a threefold purpose:

—To launch an attack against Cuba.

—To divert world attention from "the irregularities and justified suspicions surrounding Kennedy's assassination."

—To divert world attention "from the electoral farce taking place tomorrow in Venezuela."

New Zealanders Give Approval To Ruling Party

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — About 1.5 million New Zealand voters turned out Saturday to give Prime Minister Keith Holyoake and his ruling National party a solid vote of confidence in elections for the one-house parliament.

Returns counted here indicated that the National party might lose one or two seats in the legislative body to the opposition Laborites. Terms are for three years.

It appeared that the new lineup would give the National party 44 seats, the Laborites 35 and the Social Credit Party, one.

The election was one of the quietest in years with most candates agreed on New Zealand's former ambassador to the United Nations, won re-election by a comfortable margin but Interior Minister Frank L. A. Gotz was defeated by the Labor candidate in the race for a newly created constituency from Manurewa.

Election observers blamed Gotz' defeat on his methods of controlling state lotteries.

Police Activity Remains Quiet In Twin Cities

Police activities remained unusually quiet in the Twin Cities Saturday, with only two minor theft investigations made and one booked on a driving count.

Monroe police apprehended four juveniles in connection with thefts. Two boys, ages 14 and 12, were taken into custody late Saturday for pilfering cars in the vicinity of Wood and Catalpa Streets. One of the youths admitted taking a carton of cigarettes from one car and a flashlight from another.

Two Negro youths, both aged 15, were taken into custody at Safeway Store in Eastgate shopping center for shoplifting a 69-cent package of luncheon meat. All four of the juveniles will be handled by juvenile authorities.

West Monroe police booked a 37-year-old man, Clifford S. Henley, 310 N. 3rd St., for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. Henley was booked at 5 p.m. after being apprehended in the 400 block of N. 3rd Street.

West Monroe officers also filed a number of other counts on minor traffic violations and disturbance calls.

Vets' Pension Hike Refused

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and his West German Cabinet refused Saturday a demand by war veterans for a pension increase of $300 million by the end of this year.

Veterans' groups have threatened to call 40,000 of their members to a march on Bonn Dec. 10 unless the demands are granted.

Present plans call for an increase in pensions amounting to $162.5 million in 1964.

Storm Keeps Kennedys In Seclusion

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) —A roaring storm kept the Kennedy clan in seclusion Saturday in the seaside homes where they gathered for their traditional Thanksgiving weekend family reunion, and to mourn the loss of the oldest son, the late President John F. Kennedy.

The storm, with torrential rain and winds up to 60 m.p.h., beat at the shore in front of the compound, with salt spray showering the houses.

The wind ripped the plastic dome which covers the heated outdoor swimming pool built last year so former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy could get the exercise prescribed after the shock he suffered in 1961.

For the second day the weather forced cancellation of plans to take the dozen or so Kennedy children to the artificial skating rink the Kennedy foundation built and gave to the town of Barnstable as a memorial to the oldest son, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., who was killed in a bomber mission in World War II.

The rain melted the ice, and it was too windy anyway for outdoor play.

The children remained indoors all day as far as it could be determined from outside the high fence which surrounds the Kennedy homes.

There is ample room for them in the house. The children sometime are entertained during bad weather in the small movie theater in the basement of the elder Kennedy's home.

Mrs. Rose Kennedy, the mother of the late President, attended two masses this morning at St. Francis Xavier Church in nearby Hyannis as she has done since her return from the funeral last Monday in Washington.

Her youngest son, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, joined her for the second mass as he has done since he came to Hyannis Port with others of the family on Wednesday.

R. Sargent Shriver and his oldest son, Thomas, also attended the second mass. He is married to the Kennedy sister, Eunice.

No certain plans were disclosed, but Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and most or all of the others are expected to return to Washington late Sunday.

The citizen's faith in free government is strongly influenced by the extent of his confidence that public servants are alert and efficient in conserving the nation's resources entrusted to their care.

"For this reason, we must work hard to reduce the cost of government, not only for the sake of the savings to be made, but also in the interest of vindicating the people's confidence in the institutions of democracy."

Johnson began the day slowly. He arrived at the office late, for him, conferred with members of the White House staff, and omitted, the White House said, any formal appointments.

And except for the memorandum on economy in government, the only bits of official information were leftovers from Friday.

To carry out his frugality pledge, Johnson said that in addition to scrutinizing all budget requests in order to keep them to a minimum, he intends to:

1. Support fully efforts of his top-level officials to obtain administrative or legislative changes which will get rid of unnecessary procedures, curb or end programs of minor value, begin consolidations or other economies in organization, and make savings in purchasing.

2. Support salary scales for government employes and officials, including the military, which will permit recruiting and retaining talented, energetic and imaginative workers.

3. Give greater recognition to federal units and individuals for notable advances in providing better service at lower cost.

The President also had a six-point request of federal officials to help him carry out his policy of thrift, including the one for reports on cost reductions and a statement of additional steps proposed.

He asked them to:

—Push ahead vigorously with control and use of manpower.

—Hold employment at or below current targets.

—Make clear to government employes that each is responsible for working out ways to improve his performance.

—Go to congressional committees and private organizations and individuals for advice on how to do public business more economically.

The new President plunged deeper into the day-to-day routine of his office.

Johnson signed the third and fourth bill as president—one of them to keep government agencies whose appropriation bills have failed to clear Congress in spending money until Jan. 31. The other would increase authorizations for appropriations for the Atomic Energy Commission so it can carry out nuclear weapons research and other safeguards in the wake of the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

As a result of the meeting with his adviser on District of Columbia affairs, Charles Horsky, Johnson got out a statement calling for self-government for the national Capitol and promising to do everything possible to make the city beautiful.

The White House also released the text of the executive order, signed Friday night, setting up a seven-man commission under Chief Justice Earl Warren to investigate the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The order said the inquiry will be financed from the presidential emergency fund.

It omitted any reference to subpoena powers, although the White House said Friday night that the commission would have them. The word Saturday, however, was that the commission itself will have to determine whether it needs or wants subpoena authority; if it does, Congress would have to enact a law to grant it.

Johnson had left the White House at 10:27 Friday night and returned Saturday morning at 10:13 after spending the night at his home in the Spring Valley section of Washington. He is not expected to move into the White House before the close of this week.

Monday it will be back to the business of formal appointments again, with the topics ranging from civil rights to national defense and the upcoming budget, which must go to Congress in January.

Viet Nam Girl Protests Strife By Burning Self

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A 20-year-old girl said to be protesting the war in Viet Nam sat down in front of the villas of an international truce mission Saturday, soaked herself in gasoline and burned herself to death.

Vietnamese sources said she left behind a note protesting "Vietnamese fighting Vietnamese."

Viet Nam is split in two, with Communists in control of the North and a pro-Western government operating in the South —much like Korea. The South Vietnamese are fighting a hard war against Communist guerrillas, the Viet Cong.

One political source said the girl, Tran Bath Nga, possibly could have committed suicide on behalf of the Communists.

Work on the system is scheduled to start next spring and is expected to be completed by 1971.

Longs, Assassination Figure In State Election

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana, still saddened by the death of President Kennedy, will ballot for a new governor next Saturday after a harsh campaign which made him an issue.

Ten candidates, including a Kennedy administration ambassador, a former governor, and two rival heirs of the once mighty dynasty of the late Huey and Earl Long, entered the Democratic first primary.

A runoff Jan. 11 is almost certain.

The final choice could already back into power the alrady scattered, feuding Long clan. Or it could build a different political era, breaking away completely from the old election square-off of Longs vs. anti-Longs.

Seven candidates are pushing statewide campaigns. They are:

—DeLesseps Morrison, dapper, former New Orleans mayor, twice defeated for governor, more recently serving as U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American states.

—Former Gov. Robert Kennon, who toppled the Long Machine in 1952 and turned into an Eisenhower Democrat.

—Rep. Gillis Long, the young, crew-cut choice of Sen. Russell Long to carry on the family political name.

—John McKeithen, a public service commissioner backed by old Earl Long followers because he was Long's House of Representatives leader.

—Shelby M. Jackson, tough, veteran state education superintendent and arch segregationist.

—Public Works Director Claude Kirkpatrick.

—State Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette, filled with young political ambitions and plans for the state's future.

Three lesser known candidates are Hugh Lasseigne, Baton Rouge; A. Roswell Thompson, New Orleans, and Wilford L. Thompson Sr., Zachary.

In this one-party state, Democratic nomination for governor normally means election. The general election comes March 3.

The Democratic primary could test the statewide influence of the Kingfish's son, Sen. Long, now a powerful member of the Senate Finance Committee.

The dynasty Old Guard had hoped Huey's son would seek office in the skyscraper capitol his father built. Instead, Sen. Long turned to Gillis, a distant cousin.

The senator, stunned by the assassination of his personal friend, the President, perhaps was touched more deeply than others because his father, Huey, died in a similar violent fashion.

Ol' Earl died in 1960 after winning the Congressional seat that Gillis later took over.

Because of the recent civil rights drive, and a rash of Negro demonstrations, Kennedy was a tense state issue. The intensity of the attacks varied but nearly all candidates were critical of the President and his program.

Kennedy's death produced hasty revisions in campaign tactics.

Morrison had argued against what he termed "Hate Kennedy" campaigning, but had denounced his civil rights approach. Most politicians expect Morrison to lead in the first primary. Most polls support this view.

Key issues have been ways to upgrade education in a state shamed by its high rate of adult illiteracy, and how to strengthen Louisiana's political image to woo industry.

Also, Morrison and others, suggested that southern Louisiana, with two-thirds of the state's 1,182,676 registered vote, should remember governors for 23 years have come from the thinly settled, Protestant north.

Morrison is a Roman Catholic, and in past campaigns drew the heart of his support from heavily Catholic southern regions.

The old Long vs Anti - Long factionalism was jarred apart in 1960 when Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, a Baptist, defeated Morrison and promised to install political harmony. He cannot succed himself.

AIR CONDITIONER NEEDED

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — The Polk County School Board has reluctantly denied a father's plea that a first grade classroom be air-conditioned because his son has a "one in a million" condition — no sweat glands.

W. L. Garner of Winter Haven asked for the air conditioning because his son cannot be outside it for more than 30 minutes without suffering. The cost, he said, would be about $693.

Board members said that it would be impossible to air condition only one room. They said policy is that if an air-conditioner is furnished at no cost to the schools, it could be installed and used.

Prince Phillip, Others To Attend Services For JFK

LONDON (UPI)—Prince Phillip, five other members of Britain's royal family and leading Britons will attend a national memorial service for the late President Kennedy at St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday.

The archbishop of Canterbury will lead the Angelican service, which will be broadcast to the United States by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Among those scheduled to attend are Prime Minister Sir Alex Douglas-Home and ex-Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, and her husband also will be there.

A FEW OF the 509 billion cigarettes which Americans smoke in a year roll out of a machine at a plant in Durham, N.C. Smoking is big business: $7.5 billion spent annually by smokers, $3.2 billion going into state, local and federal taxes. A federal panel's soon-due report on effects of smoking on health will affect all sorts of people, from tobacco farmers and workers to advertising personnel and stock market investors. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The ritual is simple and personal. You reach for a cigarette and light it. The average American smoker does this about 20 times a day—well over 7,000 times a year, at an annual cost of about $100.

Now this ritual is on trial.

Ten medical and statistical experts—chosen for their lack of bias on the issue—are weighing evidence that smoking is or is not harmful to health.

This jury, gathered by the federal government, will deliver its verdict soon.

The jury will make no recommendations. It will merely evaluate the scientific work to date to measure the risk to health—if there is one.

Money Observes

To many observers there seems little doubt that the panel will indict smoking as harmful in a number of areas—from impaired lung function to heart and artery disease.

This view is based on a body of statistical data which certain researchers say shows shortened lives for smokers, increased risks of cardiovascular disease and lung cancer, and poorer lung function.

Not all of the data has supporting hard evidence. There have been findings of changes in the linings of the bronchial tubes of smokers—and these changes have been called precancerous. There have been findings of higher cholesterol levels in smokers. There have been findings of cancer-causing chemicals in tobacco smoke.

The bits and pieces are many. The federal panel digested well over 7,000 scientific reports on the effects of tobacco to set forth its own conclusions.

To the evidence condemning tobacco, the tobacco industry and its research committee offers this line of argument:

There is no direct proof of any of the charges. The body of the evidence is statistical. There are too many other factors that can enter in to a complex disease like lung cancer to assume that smoking has any more connection than, say, air pollution.

For example, Dr. Robert C. Hockett of the tobacco industry research committee has rejected flatly the hypotheses that smoking caused any of the varieties of ill health.

He said a number of plant materials have been chewed and smoked to make use of certain elements in them—and "human experience also suggests that tobacco may be one of the most benign."

Neither side in the controversy has budged an inch in the past five years or more.

The implications of the federal panel study are far-reaching.

It concerns a fantastically huge industry that produces yearly some 509 billion cigarettes, 7 billion cigars, 71 million pounds of smoking tobacco, 65 million pounds of chewing tobacco and 33 million pounds of snuff.

If you wrapped up all of the tobacco produced in a year on U.S. farms, you'd have a cigar weighing 2.3 billion pounds, worth $1.3 billion, and providing livelihood for 750,000 farm families. So says the Tobacco Institute.

Smoking tobacco is one of the most conspicuous items in the American economy — from its use of its stockpiling, from cigarette butts in the gutter to displays and vending machines.

If you still have any doubts, count the number of tobacco advertisements you see and hear each day in newspapers, television, radio, magazines.

American smokers spend over $7½ billion a year for tobacco products. Various governments, state, local and federal, collect $3.2 billion in tobacco taxes.

It is a big business built on a big habit.

Adverse Report

What would an adverse report by the federal panel do?

Undoubtedly there would be an immediate — although perhaps temporary—drop in tobacco sales. But considering the remarkable resiliency of the tobacco industry over the years, snapping back from bad publicity and public disfavor, there might be a question as to how long it would last.

But such a report could have important secondary effects.

It could arm the Federal Trade Commission in the regulation of tobacco advertisements.

It could provide a new avenue in the courts for persons seeking damages against tobacco companies on charges that smoking was bad for health—and not so labeled by the tobacco companies.

Then, also of concern are tobacco stocks on the stock market, and employment in tobacco towns. These are all problems in the minds of government officials, awaiting the scientific verdict.

The argument for and against smoking is almost as old as tobacco itself. England's Queen Elizabeth was for it. But King James I was against it.

He called it "loathsome to the sight, disagreeable to the smell, noxious to the brain, injurious to the lungs, and by its clouds of black smoke, nearly resembling the horrid steams of hell."

"O citizens," he cried, "if you have any sense of shame, or dread of infamy, left in your bosoms, lay aside the use of tobacco, a custom attended with ignominy, received through error and established by stupidity."

People kept on smoking.

With remarkable timing, a new book is out on the American scene. Written by Sen. Maurine Neuberger, it is called "Smoke Screen."

She is a woman who smoked, but quit. She knows the personal arguments for smoking, but thinks others should quit too.

In the book she has compiled a list of grievances against the tobacco industry. They range from advertising to what she feels are unchecked profit motives.

She suggests efforts to control tobacco advertising, and to seal off youngsters from the brunt of such advertising.

She is against prohibition of cigarette sales—based on the last great failure at prohibition.

She suggests that cigarette ads carry cautionary notes that they might not be completely safe.

Perhaps, she says, final control of advertising by the Federal Trade Commission may revive the war of the filters—with companies competing anew on reducing the tars in cigarette smoke. This, she feels, would help.

But on the problem as a whole she is frankly pragmatic.

"The measures which I have recommended, even if fully implemented, would not destroy the cigarette industry," she wrote.

"Neither would they eliminate all smoking-connected diseases. They should serve to dampen the growth of cigarette sales and perhaps to cause even a moderate tapering off in absolute sales as properly informed adolescents determine not to adopt a habit which has no rational appeal to them, and strong-willed adults exorcise their own addiction.

Will Continue

"Others, I know, will continue smoking. Still others will become smokers. Hopefully, the cigarettes they consume will yield a continually diminishing hazard."

Finally, she leaves it where she found it—on the old, personal basis, the battle between a smoker and his habit.

There are no good statistics—but there doubtless are innumerable Americans today who are experienced at quitting—having, like Mark Twain said, done it many times.

Just recently, Surgeon General Luther Terry—who ordered the federal panel report—quit cigarettes for a pipe. He said it had nothing to do with the upcoming report.

There are certainly innumerable aids, advices, programs and incentives to quit smoking.

There are preparations to ease the withdrawal symptoms—to help supplant nicotine and cut down quitting jitters.

You can choose any of a number of regimens to help you quit—from exercise to cold showers, from brisk towel rubs to scare movies on lung cancer.

The only thing so far not packaged and available over the drug counter is will power.

There are, however, monetary motives. There is cheaper life insurance for non-smokers that some firms are offering.

The big insurance companies have not yet entered this field, which is based on the statistically predicted longer lifetimes for non-smokers.

For one reason, they explain, there are 63 million Americans who smoke cigarettes, which cuts down on your non-smoking market.

Besides, one actuary said, the lifetime difference translated into insurance dollars and cents isn't too great.

A major effort is being made—although without any national organization—to convince teenagers against smoking. The state of Pennsylvania has a program in its schools. The American Cancer Society produces educational material to be distributed through schools.

The alliance against smoking has grown. The American Cancer Society has been joined by the American Heart Association, the National Tuberculosis Association and the U. S. Public Health Service. They vary in the strength of their feelings, but they all have issued warnings against cigarettes.

The American Medical Association has still not made a stand. It says it will await the result of the new government panel.

Americans Ask Questions About Details Of JFK's Assassination

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — While Americans grope with the enormity of a presidential assassination, they also are asking questions about the details of John F. Kennedy's slaying Nov. 22.

The questions evidently asked most often:

Was the assassination a conspiracy followed by the silencing of the accused triggerman so he could not reveal the plot?

Could one man have fired three bullets that rapidly from the bolt-action rifle police say is the assassination gun—in other words, did another man stand beside accused Lee Harvey Oswald and fire with him?

Some answers were given by Dallas police before FBI agents took over both the investigation and the physical evidence and immediately halted progress reports.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade, who like other officers has said repeatedly that Oswald killed Kennedy, also repeatedly has said:

"We have no concrete evidence that anyone assisted him (Oswald) in this."

The mass of evidence indicates that a single man conceived and carried out the assassination, at least so far as is known publicly.

What group of conspirators, for instance, would entrust such a mission to a troublemaker who never got along with people while he lived in New York's Bronx, Fort Worth, New Orleans, occasionally in Irving, Tex., and for a brief, tragic time in Dallas.

There is evidence that the Russians were glad to let him leave their country with his Russian wife after he lived there three years and renounced his American citizenship—and then had a change of mind.

Certainly had some conspirators used Oswald, they would have provided him with a finer weapon—to reduce the margin of error—and one which could not be traced to him within hours.

When Jack Ruby darted out of a crowd 48 hours after Kennedy died and killed Oswald, the question arose:

Was this the silencer for a conspiracy, ordered to seal Oswald's lips with death?

Investigators promptly probed this possibility and Wade was asked if there was any connection.

"I know of none," Wade said.

There have been reports that Oswald was seen once in Ruby's stripper joint, the Carousel Club but this is of questionable significance to the case. They both lived in the same general section of town but about a half-mile apart in a heavily populated area.

What about the rapidity with which the three shots were fired from the bolt - action rifle? Would it not have required two men to fire that rapidly?

The shots perhaps were not as rapid as some persons may imagine.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., riding three cars behind Kennedy, said the sound was "bang-bang-bang."

The senator, a war veteran, said it wounded like measured fire, not a fusillade. He described the sounds before the type of rifle was known by him.

New Type Yule Trees Grown In Area

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

There will be something different in the Christmas season setting in many area homes this year. It will be a new type of Yule tree known as the Arizona Cypress, which is grown in the forest lands of northeast Louisiana.

Americans too busy to take the time to cut their own Christmas trees are the largest consumers of commercial trees in the world.

Every season trees of all kinds, from hemlock to spruce to scotch pine, and all shapes, large or small, are grown in the northern section of the United States or Canada, then shipped by the millions to market.

Gone are the days when most people took the trusty axe in hand to select their Christmas tree, which in this area was the native pine or cedar. A few people still cling to the custom, but not many.

Monroe Morning World
SUNDAY FEATURES
Editorial — Spotlight — Sports
Monroe, La., Dec. 1, 1963 1-B

BIG BUSINESS

The Christmas tree business has become a big business.

But even it is changing. Metal trees, which will last from season to season, have been introduced to the satisfaction of many consumers, although most Americans still prefer a bonafide tree.

The northern-grown tree is being challenged.

Now, in Northeast Louisiana, a new Christmas tree is being introduced with all the features of a prospective new farm crop for landowners throughout the area.

Already tested on the markets of other southern states, the Arizona cypress, which doesn't have any resemblance in appearance to the native cypress of Louisiana, may catch on in the Monroe area also.

It will be introduced on the local market for the first time this Christmas season.

For the past four or five years some 10,000 Arizona cypress trees have been growing on 14 acres of the sprawling Epps Plantation, owned by Deltic Farm & Timber Co., near Delhi.

SIMILARITY NOTED

Viewing a plot of the new Christmas trees is like looking at a pecan orchard. They are grown in much the same way, in alignments, on much the same type of land.

In fact, W. B. Cooper, a Louisiana Tech graduate who serves as chief forester for Deltic, says, "I feel like a man could make as much or more out of these trees as he could out of pecans."

He explained that the Arizona cypress could be grown in this area on cotton land, in sandy soil or in the bottom lands. Actually he has had better luck with the tree on the Macon Ridge.

"Higher soil makes better production," Cooper said.

Growing the trees is really not much of a problem, according to this forester. He said it takes three years to grow one to three or four feet, but emphasized that fertilizing would help.

Another outstanding aspect of the Arizona cypress is its ability to spring back after it's been cut, if enough of the stump is left. Deltic also owns property in Arkansas where the trees were grown in 1951 and 1952.

Cooper said each year the trees are harvested for the company's employes, noting that many are harvested from the same stump.

LOOKS LIKE CEDAR

Shaped like a Christmas tree, the Arizona cypress looks like a cedar, but perhaps is fuller and stays green longer. While it doesn't drop its needles, the most pleasant feature of the tree is its aroma. It smells good.

"This tree doesn't stick you either," said George Miller, a Winnsboro forester.

He added, "But the nicest aspect of this tree is this; we can cut the trees a day or two before they are put on the market. This means they'll last longer and will be prettier."

Northern trees cut several weeks ago have begun arriving already for the Christmas season. They are shipped in tightly-bound bundles.

With Georgia growing the Arizona cypress for Christmas consumption as far back as 1945 and Florida following suit, the tree is actually not a newcomer to this area.

SOLD IN AREA

Cooper says Deltic has been selling the trees around Rayville, Delhi, Lake Providence and Tallulah for the past two or three years.

"We are confident that this new Christmas tree will be accepted by the public and in time will cut deeply into the northern tree market," Miller believes.

If it does, a new farm crop will emerge in Northeast Louisiana. The success of the northern-grown tree has proved that the Christmas tree business is a good business.

A GOOD FEATURE of the Arizona cypress, as shown here, is the fact that the tree will re-grow from its original stump. This is what forester W. B. Cooper (right) is pointing to as James Siddon (left) and George Miller take a close look at a big tree. About 10,000 trees are growing on the Epps Plantation near Delhi. The trees are being sold throughout the district as Christmas trees.

FORESTER W. B. COOPER of Deltic Farm & Timber Co. is demonstrating here that the limbs of the Arizona cypress tree are strong enough to hold Christmas tree decorations. The trees, growing in all sizes, are harvested according to the needs of the market. Cooper believes landowners can make eventually as much money from Arizona cypress as they can from pecans.

AN ARIZONA CYPRESS TREE is inspected by foresters who predict the tree will catch on in this area as a Christmas tree and in turn will become a new farm crop for Northeast Louisiana. The tree looks like a cedar, but is fuller and stays green longer. Foresters George Miller (left) and W. B. Cooper (center) and James Siddon inspect the tree on the Epps Plantation near Delhi where they are grown. Note the native pines in the picture and compare them with the Arizona cypress.

Rediscovery Is Tuneful

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—"One thing I can't stand is a has-been who tries to make a comeback."

Lou Black, now 62 years old and a banjo player who worked with some of the great bands of the Roaring Twenties, is being rediscovered by old time jazz buffs and is reluctant to return to the limelight.

"I keep hearing from people, 'I thought you were dead,' and 'I thought you'd passed on,'" Black said. "Well, I've been very much alive and at work since I retired from show business and I have no intention of making a comeback."

Lou said he thought the sudden interest in him was first generated some months ago when he took a part-time playing job at a local nitery.

During a recent trip to New York City, Black made tape recordings at the request of Tobert J. Mantler, prominent music researcher.

"Then, some old timers contacted me and the next thing I knew I was sitting in at some New York night spots," Black said.

Later he made some records for Columbia. Then an invitation came from Brian Rust, British music critic, to make a series of appearances in London.

"I haven't decided whether I want to make the trip to England and I don't know how many trips to New York I'll be making. I know one thing, I'm not going to make any comeback," Lou said.

IN SELLING JOB

"I'm happy in my selling job, with my little part-time music job and living with my wife in Rock Island."

Black was born in Rock Island and began fingering a banjo at the age of 7. He played well enough in a few years to "work small local jobs."

Lou joined the Carlisle Evans dance orchestra in 1920. They played a number of Midwest spots, a season in New Orleans and for a time offered entertainment on the excursion steamer, the Capitol, which then plied the Mississippi River between St. Louis, Mo., and St. Paul, Minn.

On one of these trips he met Natalie Hart, then of Clinton, Iowa, and a candidate for the title of "Miss Iowa." They married in 1921 and made their home in Chicago.

During the next few years, Lou played with the New Orleans Rhythm Kings, the famed Dixieland Jass Band, King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band, Jean Goldkette's dance orchestra and other bands in many of the nation's biggest cities.

Later came a season with a band formed by Jack Teagarden. There also were side jobs with other great names, among them Bix Beiderbecke, a native of Davenport, Iowa.

In 1928, Lou said, he tired of traveling and with Mrs. Black and their two children moved to Des Moines where he took a job as assistant program director with radio station WHO. His boss was Eddie Sheasby, musician and arranger for many of the great bands of the era.

Black left WHO in 1931 when ownership of the station changed, came to Rock Island and "put away my banjo." He worked at several jobs before he came to the Moline Consumers Co., as a building material salesman in 1943.

A few months ago, the daughter of an old family friend asked Lou to teach her to play the banjo and he agreed. He decided he had better try to loosen up his cramped, aging fingers and started practicing himself.

The Race For Governor

The death of President Kennedy has not changed one single basic political issue in the Louisiana gubernatorial race any more than it has changed one single political issue in the federal government at Washington.

When The World endorsed Robert F. Kennon for Governor on last October 20th it stated:

"He (Mr. Kennon) is a genuine conservative who has been in the trenches fighting the wars against federal and state socialism for more than a decade . . . "

What Louisiana needs in the Governor's chair for the next four years is a man provenly conservative by his record and inherent philosophies . . . We need men who saw the evils of the Democratic Party's Washington Welfare Statism as it was born and shunned it from the start: not men who swallowed sugar-coated socialism and now seek to regurgitate."

We now reaffirm those basic principles on which endorsement of Mr. Kennon was made. They are not related to President Kennedy as an individual. He was not the originator of political philosophy we or Mr. Kennon opposed but merely a vehicle — one vehicle — for continuation of what others conceived.

It was on basic principles of conservatism, and the departure of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the national Democratic Party from them, that The World did not endorse Mr. Roosevelt for a third term in 1940, and that Mr. Kennon led the Louisiana delegation out of the national Democratic convention at Chicago in 1952. It was at that convention 11 years ago that Mr. Kennon's opposition to national Democratic Party "isms" at Washington was born.

At that time Mr. Kennedy was a Representative in the House at Washington professing conservative principles — such as attacking Franklin D. Roosevelt on his Red China policy, and deriding the Americans for Democratic Action. "Those people are not for me," he said. The ADA was and is the organization of extreme Democratic liberals such as Senator Hubert Humphrey, the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, and Adlai Stevenson, all of whom have been among its leaders.

* * *

ROBERT F. KENNON offers true conservatism and proven leadership to Louisiana. His first legislative steps as Governor, was to abolish the Earl Long 2 cents per gallon gasoline tax which John McKeithen helped push through the previous Earl Long legislature. He then raised exemptions on state income tax in a manner to average $125.00 in savings per year per family.

JOHN McKEITHEN is a product of Earl Longism and its high taxing and high spending. As one of Earl Long's hand picked House floor leaders, he helped push through the original Earl Long program of high taxing and high spending in 1948. He voted for a bloc of 10 major Long tax bills which had been written under the guidance of Senator Russell Long, sponsor of Gillis Long in the present gubernatorial campaign. He co-authored some of these bills as well as voting for all of them. He introduced additional tax bills which even Earl Long would not support.

Mr. McKeithen is running now as one representative of "the Longs." He is supported by Mrs. Earl Long, by two of Earl Long's sisters, by Mary Evelyn Parker — also a product of Earl Longism — who resigned per post as Welfare Department Director to assist in the campaign, and by various Earl Long leaders around the state.

GILLIS LONG is a product of "the Longs" both by blood and politically. He proclaims himself as an advocate of "the Long" philosophies. He certainly does not list high taxing and high spending in his platform, but there has been no Long administration in Louisiana's history which was not one of high taxing or high spending or both.

It was under "the Longs" that Louisiana became the highest taxed state in the nation in relation to the proportion of average income paid for taxes.

CHEP MORRISON has been a staunch supporter in recent years of various national Democratic Party "isms." He has moved farther and farther in that direction, and thus away from the basic principles of conservatism, of late. His record and his philosophies on such matters are too well known to need detailing here.

When it comes to genuine conservatism, these three candidates are, in general, on the opposite side of the earth from the true conservatism of Robert F. Kennon. Shelby Jackson is a shouting segregationist, which is not necessarily conservatism. The professional political polls give him only 9 per cent of the statewide vote, despite his North Louisiana following. He doesn't count, statewide.

* * *

The effort to picture the Louisiana gubernatorial campaign as one built on who is the most imbued with some mythical 'hate Kennedy' philosophy has to be based on untruthfulness or ignorance. Especially absurd is the statement by a North Louisiana educator in a Kennedy memorial service that ". . . the platforms of several gubernatorial candidates seem to have only three words: 'I hate Kennedy.' One platform has four words: 'I hated Kennedy first.'"

Each of these statements is untrue, especially the last in its obvious reference to Mr. Kennon.

It is inconceivable to look on Chep Morrison, a part of Mr. Kennedy's administration, as "hating" Mr. Kennedy.

We do not believe that either Gillis Long or John McKeithen had any hatred in their hearts for Mr. Kennedy because of their disavowal of policies of his administration.

There is not one word in the platforms of these three men or of Mr. Kennon that can in any way be interpreted as "hate."

Mr. Kennon's platform states specifically — we quote it:

"In 1952, I opposed the nomination of Adlai Stevenson because of his stand (national Democratic Party socialistic liberalism). In 1964, I will oppose Mr. Kennedy for the same reason."

If that is hate, then any political criticism of a public office holder immediately makes the critic some kind of fiend incarnate.

Congress Pay Raise

Some of those who are in favor of giving members of Congress a $12,500 annual increase in pay argue that unless there is a boost it will be hard to find men willing to run for seats in the House and Senate.

On this subject, Senator Frank Lausche, D., Ohio, expressed his opinion this way:

"For every senator in Congress, there are 100 persons who would like to displace him. For every member of the House, there are 500 persons who would like to have the job. If anyone should come here with a loaded shotgun and threaten to use it, he could not get the members of the House and Senate out of the Capitol."

Congressmen already receive salaries of $22,500 plus $2,500 in tax-exempt expense money for which they are not required to give an accounting. They also receive other large sums for office and other expenses and a good many of them pay good salaries to relatives out of these funds. Their emoluments may already reach some $30,000 a year.

Based on their flat salary of $22,500, the proposed $12,500 raise would be more than 50 per cent. To nearly everyone in the United States it would seem nice indeed if he could get a 50 per cent jump in salary, especially if no one else were doing it, so his 50 per cent boost actually would be worth about that much to him. But how many of us are expecting a 50 per cent jump in pay?

Small Craft Program

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

For many years we at Northeast State have needed to institute a small craft program in our physical education activities; our students have a special interest in water sports and water safety.

Since our area is so wonderfully blessed with excellent water ways and there is a surge of interest in all forms of activities on the water, our departmental staff has followed the clearing of Bayou DeSiard of trees and stumps with keen interest and appreciation.

We heartily commend the tremendous effort in this direction made by Mr. Howard Griffin and others in the cutting of trees and stumps in the Bayou in the College area. This work was done at our request, and our neighbors owning property along the Bayou were most cooperative.

Coming Year

Baton Rouge, La.

To the Editor:

The coming year will be among the most crucial in the history of our nation. The tragic death of President John F. Kennedy leaves us, in a sense, aimless. No one really knows in which direction we are headed. The resultant turmoil makes almost any result possible.

From the "left," some of those who have been advocating radical changes in this country will seize, in fact have seized, on this terrible act of a crazed Marxist as justification for passage of all manner of legislation. As despicable as it will be, we will see some "liberals" absurdly trying to turn this national tragedy to their own political advantage. Emotional talk about "bigots" and "spreaders of hatred" will be coldly used to promote a not germaine legislative attack on the traditional rights of Americans.

From the "right," some of those whose vaunted anti-communism is exceeded by their lack of good political judgment will demand that repressive measures be taken against those suspected of not being sufficinetly anti - communist. We can expect to hear advocated precipitous action against persons perhaps politically similar to the assassin, in disregard to constitutionally protected rights.

Sensible people should resist attempts from any side to turn this emotional outpouring into partisan political benefits.

If ever there was a time for moderation, that time is now. This is a time to pause and calmly think through the consequences of any proposed action. We must not be stampeded. Posterity will be the loser.

Emotional, impulsive action now will almost certainly be wrong.

As we look ahead, certain things appear inevitable. No longer, for instance, can reasonable men maintain that "there is no internal threat." Laws now on the books will be enforced concerning persons who in fact advocate violent overthrow of the government and/or are agents of a foreign power. We have a grave responsibility to see that rights are not violated with a justification such as "they had it coming to them."

Events are now largely in the hands of the new President. We should pray for him.

We live in the most free, most open society the world has ever known. Let not an insane act cause us to forsake our heritage.

Meaning Of Christmas

To the Editor:

What has happened to the meaning of Christmas? You can hear many people asking that question. The answer is — it has gone strictly commercial and to trying to keep up with what the Jones's next door have.

Just a few years back people started decorating about a week before Christmas. Now the whole town is decorated a month before Christmas. And since all the Christmas decorations are up before Thanksgiving, everyone is too busy preparing for Christmas to give much thought to Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving is just as important as Christmas. And, also, by the time Christmas Day arrives most of the people have lost most of their Christmas spirit.

What I am trying to say is the Christmas decorations of Monroe are truly beautiful. But they would be even more beautiful if they were put up about two or maybe three weeks before Christmas and not Thanksgiving.

I hope you do not think that I am criticizing Monroe downtown business associations, because I am not. I am only sixteen years old and I have lived in Monroe most of my life, and to me Monroe is truly a wonderful city to live in.

Don't think I just picked out Monroe from all the other cities in the United States. There are thousands of other cities that have started advertising Christmas a month before hand.

In Webster's Dictionary, Christmas is defined as: An annual church festival, kept on December 25 in memory of the birth of Christ. Thanksgiving is defined as: (1) a day (usually the last Thursday in November) set apart each year for thanksgiving and praise to God, (2) act of rendering thanks to God. In my mind I believe God wants those two definitions left unchanged.

'Right To Work' Laws

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In recent articles of the Monroe Morning World and News-Star World, much has been said on behalf of the so called "right-to-work" laws, and more recently on November 22, 1963, the editor of the Monroe Morning World gave his distorted views on this misnamed legislation.

I have referred to this legislation as "so-called" and "misnamed" because "right - to-work" legislation never gave anyone rights to any other job, nor does it create jobs for anyone. It doesn't give one a right if there is no job available, and it does not give one a right if one can't meet the employers' qualifications. The "right-to-work" label is both misleading and inaccurate. Many states, realizing this legislation was misnamed, have taken steps to prevent the use of this palatable title in connection with this malicious legislation. The supreme court of one state, Idaho, has already ruled it a "misnomer."

Much was said in the editorial of November 22, 1963, about minority rule and individual rights. Let's get the record straight on these two counts. Under the provisions of the Taft-Hartley law, unions are permitted to have union shops if they meet certain requirements. One of the requirements is that they must be in the majority. The union shop must be by mutual consent of management and the union. In other words, the majority of the employ's and management must be agreeable before there is a union shop. Is this minority rule? No, this is the same democratic and fair principles this great country was founded on.

Speaking of individual rights, each freedom we have carries with it a social and a moral responsibility. When we drive a car, we must obey traffic laws. When we go hunting we must adhere to our game laws. Our democracy recognizes that individual rights cannot be asserted to the detriment of others. When we talk about freedom we must mean freedom within the accepted rules and laws of society which are made by the majority.

Under the provisions of the Taft-Hartley law, the non-union employe is entitled to the same representation, wages, and working conditions as the union employee. "Right-to-work" legislation exempts the non-union employee of his social and moral obligation, but still the law forces the union to represent the non-union employe in bargaining and on grievances. This permits the non-union employee to be a free rider or parasite.

Another of the fallacies of the so-called "right to work" is that it attracts new industry and raises the standard of living.

One needs go no further than our neighboring state of Arkansas to exploit this misstatement. In this state proponents of this legislation promised the things I have mentioned above. Did these promises materialize? Let's look at the statistics as furnished by the Department of Labor and the Bureau of Census Series. From 1947 to 1958 Arkansas had a gain in expenditures for new plants and equipment of $17,472,000 while Louisiana had a gain of $66,834,000 or over three times as much as "right-to-work" Arkansas.

Now let's look at the average hourly wages in manufacturing for the two states for the 1950 to 1960 period. In 1950 the average hourly wage in Arkansas was $1.02. In 1960 the average was $1.56, a 10 year increase of 54 cents or 52.9 per cent. In Louisiana the 1950 average was $1.25 per hour in 1960 the average was $2.24, a 10 year increase of 87 cents, or 69.6 per cent.

This "progress" cost the workers of Arkansas over a billion dollars in wage increases for the 10 year period, and since working men spend what they make on living expenses, this meant a loss in sales to retail merchants of at least 50 to 58 million dollars annually. These figures exemplify the perniciousness of "right-to-work."

This insidiously mislabled legislation is nothing more than an attempt by twisted minds to exploit the working people. These laws are intended to weaken unions to the point of rendering them ineffective in collective bargaining, to raise profits at the expense of the working man through lower wages. They are intended to tear down good management - labor relations, breed chaos, and tear down union security.

Hopes For Peacefulness

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Let us hope that the assassination of President Kennedy does not effect the South as did the assassination of President Lincoln. The hate-Kennedy political program of the south and the assissination taking place in the South in all probability will tend to create in the minds of some people hate for the south. This attitude would be unfair and unjust as it was unfair and unjust after the assassination of Lincoln but it happened and could happen again.

The bright stars in this picture is the fact taht the South has such able men like Senator Ellender and many others like him in the House and Senate who have not and would not allow themselves for political or other purposes to be associated with a hate program and who have the respect of the general national public.

The brightest star in this picture is Lyndon Johnson. He can do more to arrest unfair and unjust opinions to form in the minds of the people that the south as a part of this nation had any part in this act against the nation through words or deeds. Lyndon Johnson can, by his acts, show to the nation and the world that this nation is not and will not be divided. We are united as one body of people for the good and good only of this Nation.

I being a so - called Yankee and knowing the South, having lived here for the past five years, am willing to place my trust in Lyndon Johnson and the Congress of the United States.

In my time I can remember when there existed hate for Jews. A Jew could hardly find a job or be elected to a public office. The Jews who through years and by the acts of the Jews who by appointment or election to public office by their honorable faithful service to this nation, arrested that hate.

I can remember when a hate a Catholic program existed when such accusations that the Catholic President would receive his orders from the Pope.

I can remember when a southerner would not even be considered as a potential for President or a member of the Cabinet, and in the Congress southern members had little influence in legislation.

In my life we have had a change for the better. Hate has been arrested to a considerable degree. At the head of our nation we have a southerner and in our legislative branch we have all type of people, men and women from all factions of a people that make up this nation.

Jack Murphy,

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

THERE ARE TIMES when critics of this country look with obvious scepticism upon statements that the nation comes first, even in partisan considerations. The political good sense and good manners that were so apparent from the first announcement of last week's tragic event should do a lot to lay that scepticism to rest.

It was not words alone that marked the time. The Republican Party's decision to declare a moratorium on political statements was an act and deed of real meaning, whose significance should not be lost on anyone who has doubts about the overriding patriotism of the political processes in this nation. I was very pleased to have joined in the moratorium suggesiotn along with Sen. Hugh Scott.

How different this display of support for the new President, support for the time he needs to form his administration's ranks and purposes. How different this is from the unthinking and unfortunate criticism that has been heard from some who still seem to doubt the basic integrity of the nation and its citizens.

Of course, all Americans feel a sense of shock. But the shock should not drive away the realization of the great strength, sanity and good will of our political system. Unlike some nations in the world, America has a political system that fully respects dissent and opposition. And from that respect it reaps such unity and support as that for which we now should be thankful.

NO ONE WHO HAS watched consensus and cooperation develop daily on the floor of the Senate, for instance, can fail to realize that this great nation's great political debates are not inspired by hatreds, but are inspired only by convictions, and that they are resolved in good time by honest reason.

If there is any feeling of national guilt involved in this tragic, senseless event, that guilt should not involve the political process itself. It should not involve the very orderliness and basic humanitarianism that President Johnson knows he may count upon and upon which he is counting.

We do not serve the memory of President Kennedy or the demands of the immediate future under President Johnson by failing to recognize these facts. It is precisely at such times of testing and trial as we now face that needed strength and needed resolve can be formed by fully recognizing the historic rightness of our way of doing political business.

IT WAS NOT THAT way that led to the terrible event in Dallas. It was not the way of Texans. It was not the way of Americans. Their way, our way, is the way that leads us out of the shadow of such a terrible death, not into it.

America's face, of course, is one of sorrow now. But America's heart is sound. And America's conscience, though deeply troubled, must clearly see and clearly sound America's lasting and unshaken strength.

This is not the end of American dreams. John Kennedy least of all would have it so. We have halted in sorrow before, taken the time to form our ranks, then moved ahead with the business of tomorrow and the unending business of free men.

There is nothing in this of shame for America. There is in this the great glory of America. It is, in fact, the great story of America and of the good hearts of the citizens who are America and who give it its light, no matter the darkness of the day.

How do you stand, sir?

Robert Proposed As Running Mate

ATTORNEY GENERAL Robert Kennedy looms as a distinct possibility as President Johnson's running mate next year.

This dramatic political likelihood was a major topic of discussion among the scores of Democratic governors, national committeemen and other party leaders who poured into the Capital for the funeral of the assassinated President. In between the tragic obsequies, the politicos conjectured worriedly about their own and the party's prospects in 1964.

Uppermost in these muffled discussions was the question of the vice - presidental choice. On that, three factors appeared to be taken for granted:

— President Johnson will head the ticket. None of the Democratic chiefs indicated the slightest doubt about that. There were no hints or any other intimations that he might be challenged for the nomination. All the talk assumed he is now the top party leader and will be its standard - bearer.

— Johnson's preference will be decisive in the selection of tne No. 2 man on the ticket. There was much talk about anticipated jockeying and maneuvering for his favor; that potent pressures will be exerted in behalf of various candidates. But the feeling was general that whoever Johnson gave the nod to would be approved by the convention.

— The Attorney General 38-year - old brother of the late President and his closest adviser and confidant, must be considered a leading aspirant for the vice presidency. Among his intimates it has long been no secret that "Bobby" harbors ardent national political ambitions and hopes to emulate his slain brother.

The view also was general among the Democratic politicos, particularly from the West and industrial North, that the Attorney General has some ace cards in his aggressive and determined hands.

As one key Midwestern leader put it, "Lyndon Johnson will have to make the same kind of a deal with Bobby Kennedy that his late brother made with Johnson in 1960 to assure victory. A Johnson - Kennedy ticket is going to be the answer to what our party needs in next year's very uncertain election."

THE WAY THEY SEE IT — A highly influential Democratic leader from Philadelphia, which gave the late President a phenomenal 330,000 majority that swung Pennsylvania into his column and thus nailed down his hairline election, analized the Attorney General's prospects this way:

"As a result of President Kennedy's death, next year's election is now wide open. As he himself said, he expected a 'long and hard fight,' and with him out of the picture, it will be infinitely more so. Johnson is going to need every ounce of support he can muster to win.

"Two large and possibly crucial groups Kennedy could have definitely counted on were Catholics and Negroes. I know that is absolutely true in my county. Those blocs were a cinch for Kennedy, and I would say the same is virtually true in every other metropolitan and industrial center. But that isn't the case as far as Johnson is concerned. He still has to win these groups as consluviely as they were for his predecessor.

"One of the best ways he can do that is by having a Kennedy as a running mate. And that Kennedy is Bobby, because in the public mind, and particularly these voter blocs, he is inseparably associated with his brother.

"Bobby is a Catholic and he is a foremost champion of civil rights. That will hurt in some areas and with some elements. But on the basis of the overwhelming sentiment of my electorate, that hostility is greatly offset by the other two considerations.

"For us, a Johnson - Kennedy ticket means a winner from top to bottom. And that's what I'm going to tell the President as soon as I can. And you mark my word, a lot of others will do the same thing. Some of them have already told me so."

A well known border state leader added another point: "One way to both keep Bobby in and out would be to run him for Vice President, that would take him out of the Justice Department — and a lot of other things, too."

Sen. Soaper Says

Before we let the phone company take the old directory away we always shake it to see if a 100-dollar bill will fall out. Don't laugh; we've read about people who didn't and were sorry later.

More leading businessmen are becoming concerned about the vast amount of paperwork that is drowning their operations, but they are afraid to mention it for fear all the vice-presidents will start issuing quintuplicate memoes on the subject.

It often seems that the closer together two cities are in some respects, the more intense the feud between them, like Moscow and Peking, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

The Week In Focus

by Jack Gates

In Retrospect

The biggest news event — and perhaps the most shocking— since the outbreak of World War II — continued to dominate the scene the past week, although its actual beginning came on a sunlit Dallas, Texas street at 11:30 a.m. last Friday week. It was at that time that three shots were fired at a car carrying President Kennedy and Texas Governor John Connally and their wives on a seemingly triumphant political tour.

Two of the bullets hit the President and he died a brief 30 minutes later. The other hit Connally, wounding him seriously but not fatally.

Those three shots, fired in a span of a few seconds with a cheap Italian-make rifle, shook the world — and the crashing waves may not cease for years to come.

Arrested in the brutal assassination was Lee H. Oswald, a 24-year-old former Marine and an avowed Communist and Marxist and an admirer of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Then on Sunday while the nation was in deep mourning for the late President and while his body was being taken to Capitol Hill for viewing by the public, an almost ironic, but unexpected twist was added to the almost unbelievable assassination. It came when Oswald was being transferred from the Dallas City jail to the county jail — when a man later identified as Jack Ruby, owner of a Dallas strip-tease joint, walked up to Oswald in the basement of the jail and fatally wounded him while he was surrounded by at least 50 officers.

Oswald died two hours later in a Dallas hospital, 10 feet from the emergency room in which President Kennedy had died. Ruby was charged with murder and police and FBI agents are trying to find the connection, if any, between Ruby and Oswald. The latest evidence show that Oswald and Ruby were neighbors at one time. Some officers — while not associated with the case — believe there was a connection between the two, but not the assassination. They believe dope smuggling possibly was involved. Only the evidence of the complete investigation will reveal what it was all about.

Meanwhile, on Monday, the late president was given a hero's funeral and burial in Arlington National Cemetery. The greatest number of heads of other nations ever assembled for a single event attended the rites. And all the countries of the world were represented except Cuba, Red China and North Viet Nam.

An eternal flame, at the request of the widow, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, was placed at the head of the late president. She and the two small children of the president, Caroline, 6, and John F. Kennedy Jr., who was three the day his father was buried, won the hearts of the nation during the trying days.

From Monday through Thursday, Mrs. Kennedy made five visits to the grave of her slain husband, the last coming on Thursday shortly before she and her two children flew to the Kennedy family home at Hyannis Port, Mass., for Thanksgiving, while Americans by the tens of thousands filed past the late President's grave, some crying, some praying and some, like tourists everywhere, simply looking . . .

Mrs. John Kennedy in Prayer
. . . Beside grave of her husband

Meanwhile, governmental activity continued. President Lyndon Johnson who was sworn in as the 36th President on the plane that carried the late president's body back to Washington, moved swiftly on a number of fronts. At week end Americans and the world tried to assess the impact the late Chief Executive left on history and what course the new president would pursue.

Minutes after the burial, President Johnson met with a succession of key world leaders and spokesmen to lay the groundwork of his foreign policy. The first tangible step was to arrange to confer formally next year with French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Sir Alex Douglas-Home.

He then asked all of the Kennedy cabinet officers and ambassadors around the world to not hand in the customary resignations.

Then on Wednesday, he went before a joint session of Congress and pleaded for quick passage of the Kennedy Civil Right bill and tax cut proposal as a monument to the late president. He also laid before the world his pledge to continue a foreign policy which strikes a balance between maximum military preparedness and willingness to negotiate tension-easing settlements which can be accepted with honor and safety.

Most congressmen received the address well, but said some of what he was asking would be just about impossible to achieve at this session of congress. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said the speech was good, but said he could se no possibility of tax reduction or civil rights legislation this year. House Democratic leader Rep. John McCormick, said he would do every thing possible to get the civil rights bill out.

Opponents of the measures generally said they would continue to oppose it. That while they were extremely sorry over the assassination,their feelings as to the policies of the late president in this respect had not changed.

On Thanksgiving Day, President Johnson addressed the nation and called for an end to what he "termed the overflowing" of hate and strife in the nation. He also announced the renaming of the space shot base of Cape Canaveral to Cape Kennedy.

While casting an eye to the days ahead, most Americans were still trying to analyze Kennedy's record and what type of president Johnson would make.

The Kennedy Impact

Only time will tell what the Kennedy impact will be. Some believe the assassination will help advance his ideas, assure him of a lasting place in history.

John Kennedy's eyes were always fixed on what he called the future. He spoke often of "great works" undertaken, but unfinished. And there was no doubt but what he wanted more time to work. It was his quest for a second Presidential term that took him out on the streets of Dallas, where the idiot bullet cut him down.

Therefore, one is bound to speculate whether the Presidency which the late President intended to build to what he called greatness in his own image, may not yet be built as he wanted it "with martyrdom magnifying his brief and inconclusive impact on events and sustaining its reverberations more meaningfully into history."

Mr. Kennedy left his desk piled high with architectual drawings for remodeling America, for restoring and expanding alliances to the South, East and West and even for building a new community of cautious cooperation with the Communist world. These may or may not be carried out now.

There were many who disagreed with him on foreign and domestic issues. Yet there were equally as many who agreed. Some saw in his stand on Cuba during which Premier Khrushchev pulled out part of his nuclear missiles at least as an example of cold Kennedy courage. Others saw in the subsequent negotiations with the Soviets over the missiles as a backdown after he had won. Some saw him as a gentle man always willing to reason things out. Others saw him as a cold, arrogant man, ruthless in his determination to get his way.

In life, although liked as a person, Kennedy's policies were better received overseas than in the U.S. Therefore in death only time will tell what size niche he will have in history because only by the long-range and ultimate response to his beliefs and ideals can the greatness of a president or any man be measured.

The New President

Three candid shots of new president

The big question now seems to be what course the Johnson Administration will pursue and just what steps and action the new president will take. Many believe he will be a strong president; that he will rely more than did Mr. Kennedy on Cabinet members and other trusted advisers. He is described as impatient with discussions of theory and long-range effects; that he wants to concentrate on facts and on immediate problems and soulutions.

Ironically, one White House insider said that "Kennedy was more conservative than most of his political enemies realize and that Johnson is more liberal than most people realize."

The new president has been described as one who probably will get more from Congress than Mr. Kennedy and that he will show a greater willingness to compromise on some matters than Mr. Kennedy.

This procilivity for negotiation and compromise is only one of the factors making it difficult to predict just what the new administration will be like. Even more troublesome is the difficulty of sorting out what in the Johnson record has developed from true belief and what has developed from ambition for higher office. He accomplished much while he was Senate leader in regard to obtaining passage of administration bills. He hsa voted as a liberal, and as a conservative. He expressed his beliefs this way:

"I am a free man, an American, a United States official and a Democrat, in that order."

Friends say he always has had a distrust and perhaps a distaste for intellectuals. His trusted advisers and staff men usually have been "operators" rather than thinkers.

He seems to get along better with the tough military type of leader than the intellectuals such as India's Nehru.

Still from all indications, Johnson personally is a complex, almost enigmatic, human being. He can be self-confident to the point of arrogance. He is described as vain and sensitive to criticism, particularly from liberals. He can be petty, moody, sarcastic, given to scolding subordinates in public. Yet he can worry deeply over the personal problems of friends and associates. His favorite saying has been the Biblical injunction to "come let us reason together."

He came to Washington in the 1930s as a New Dealing Congressman, an ardent Roosevelt fan; FDR and the New Deal, of course, commanded the avenues to advancement then. Later, when he ran for the Senate, he gradually became more conservative; he voted for the Taft-Hartley Act with its curbs on union power. Still later, when he began to have visions of seeking the Democratic Presidential nomination, he turned more liberal again. As Vice President, he was a strong New Frontiersman, both as a loyal deputy of the President and as a man who still wanted to try for the Presidential nomination again in 1968.

"The problem is," says one anti-Johnson Republican Senator, "which Johnson took the office of President?"

People who have long worked with him insist he is deeply and sincerely committed to rapid civil rights progress, both because he is a tolerant man who believes in equality and because he is convinced the national good and his own political self-interest point in that direction. As head of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, he pushed hard to expand job openings for Negroes, and was a consistent advocate of a strong civil rights bill in the days after the Birmingham upheaval earlier this year. "In the employment committee," an associate says, "he had five opportunities every day to hedge his stand, and he didn't."

Most of his close associates insist he is basically a liberal on domestic economic issues, possibly to the right of Mr. Kennedy on some and to the left of him on others.

As Vice President, he has been a down-the-line supporter of the Administration's domestic programs, from medical care for the aged and aid to education to the tax cut and job retraining plans. "We cannot accept the proposition that it is wrong or dangerous to use the full Constitutional powers of the Federal Government to meet the needs of the American people," he said in a recent speech to the Liberal Party in New York.

As Senate Majority Leader, his tendency was to compromise between the liberals in his own party and the conservatives in the Republican Party and the Democrats' Southern wing. Liberals charged that "Lying-down Lyndon" was too ready to give in to the conservatives, yet friends say he frequently accepted a bill less far-reaching than he wanted because he felt it was the best that could pass and believed the party's best interests lay in assembling a positive record.

Over the years he has been a consistent advocate of bigger spending on dams, rural electrification, conservation and other public works projects dear to his Texas constituents. He always has favored more liberal Social Security payments and other welfare spending. He has consistently advocated and voted for Federal aid to education, and some officials believe he may now be in a much better position than was Mr. Kennedy to get such a program enacted. They reason Mr. Kennedy's Catholicism inhibited him from working out a compromise to include Federal aid to parochial schools and that Mr. Johnson will be free to explore this avenue.

His fiscal philosophy is, at best, blurry. In Congress he tended to push for anti - recession pump - priming when things looked bad, but for balanced budgets when the economic outlook was less cloudy. His political heritage — his grandfather was a Populist state legislator in Texas and his own Texas area is more Western frontier than Southern — has made him favor easy credit and low interest rates.

As a Texan, he's always worked well with oil executives and other business leaders. Nonetheless, he took part in meetings at which the Kennedy Administration formulated tactics for fighting the steel industry's price increases in April, 1962 and backed Mr. Kennedy's attack all the way.

As Vice President, he's gone down the line for Kennedy foreign policies: The nuclear test ban agreemen, the proposed sale of wheat to Russia, a large foreign aid program. He's repeatedly attacked the argument of many conservatives that the Kennedy Administration made too many concessions to Russia. Some of this could be Mr. Johnson talking as a loyal President lieutenant rather than from personal conviction.

On some other issues here are his stands:

1. Red China and Cuba — "Although we should not now recognize Red China or agree to its admission to the UN without a genuine change in her belligerent attitude toward her Asian neighbors, we must nevertheless work to improve at least our communications with mainland China."

2. On Khrushchev — The Khrushchev I met was a tough-minded, articulate hard-reasoning spokesman for a system . . . in which he thoroughly believes. In dealing with him there is no Democratic, no Republican way."

3. Birth Control — "It would be a mistake for the U.S. to attempt to advocate the limitation of the population of the undeveloped countries. I believe birth control as a national policy is a matter to be determined by the country itself."

4. On farm policy — He previously attacked the agricultural policy of the Eisenhower administration and spoke in favor of high price supports.

5. On the military — He believes in a strong military, an all out drive in the space program, particularly the military aspect of such a program.

Therefore, all in all, most experts sees no immediate change in any policy or in the cabinet with the possible exception of Attorney General Robert Kennedy, at least not before Johnson has had a chance to be elected in his own right next year.

What's Ahead

Most of those who should know, believe Johnson may face a new era of troubled relations with the Soviet Union — as his first major test. They claim the recent period of relaxed Cold War tensions was the direct result of Khrushchev's belief that in dealing with President Kennedy he was dealing with a man as tough as himself. Johnson is a man Khrushchev does not know and one he rates several points below Kennedy in skill and toughness.

Therefore, Khrushchev may, to test Johnson's mettle, make Cold War jabs in Berlin, Cuba and Southeast Asia.

Presidential Assassination

The Incredible Days

"The fact (is) that those who excel in virtues pass on to their fate while young, as though beloved of the gods."
Plutarch

By FREDERICK H. TREESH
United Press International

The weather fitted the events to follow. It was miserable.

So dawned the day, Nov. 22, over Fort Worth, Tex. A chill wind whipped rain across the parking lot of the Hotel Texas where a crowd of 5,000 waited to see the President of the United States.

A bareheaded man stepped to the platform, no raincoat against the wet. He smiled but sensed disappointment in the crowd. No Jackie.

Flashing his big smile, he explained:

"It takes her longer to get organized in the morning, though she looks better than me when she is finished."

Then he turned serious, telling the crowd that next month the Saturn rocket would put the United States "ahead of the Soviet Union" in the space race.

Smiles. Hand shakes.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was politicking on this, the last day of his life. One of the blackest days for America in the 20th Century.

DEFENDS TFX CONTRACT

Mrs. Kennedy later made her appearance in the hotel dining room where 2,200 waited. She was stunning in pink. The President complained in jest that nobody much noticed how he and Lyndon were dressed, then launched into a ringing defense of the TFX fighter contract awarded to General Dynamics in the West Texas city. The audience loved it.

At 10:30 a.m., the youthful President and his wife drove to nearby Carswell Air Force Base to make the eight-minute jet hop to Dallas, center of Texas Republicanism and a place where the political right - wing tended to gather.

It was the big test for President Kennedy in his two-day tour of Texas. The U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai Stevenson, was struckand spit upon in Dallas 30 days earlier and Kennedy's vice president, Lyndon Johnson, himself a Texas native, was hissed and jeered there in the fading days of the 1960 campaign.

At the Dallas airport, there were anti-Kennedy placards, even hate placards. But there also was a warm crowd of 2,500, cheering, and waving a Lone Star flag and a Confederate flag in welcome.

The Kennedys left Air Force One, the presidential plane Jacqueline first, then the President. Mrs. Kennedy was handed a big bouquet of roses. The crowd closed in and both the President and First Lady beamed and shook hands all around as they moved toward the big, blue, bubble-top limousine flown from Washington to carry the first family on their motorcade trip to downtown Dallas.

The car heads for city also carrying Mr. Kennedy and Texas Gov. and Mrs. John B. Connally. The automobile, bubble top lowered, wheeled out of the airport and headed for the city. It was 11:50 a.m. CST. (12:50 p.m. EST).

A quarter of a million people lined the way; cheering, waving people.

The Kennedys and the Connallys chatted, smiled and waved.

Mrs. Connally turned to the Kennedys and said:

"Mr. President, they can't make you believe now that there are not some in Dallas who love and appreciate you."

"No. They sure can't," replied the President.

The crowds were heavier now and the cheers more boisterous. The slowly moving limousine, followed by a car full of Secret Service men, approached an underpass on Main Street in downtown Dallas.

The clock had 12:31 CDT.

Crack! It sounded to some like an automobile backfire.

Crack! Crack! No, unmistakeably, it was rifle fire.

The first shot hit Kennedy.

The second struck the governor as he turned toward the President and the third and last hit Kennedy again.

"My God, they're going to kill us all," Connally shouted.

"Oh my God! They've killed my husband!" Mrs. Kennedy screamed. "Jack! Jack'"

Charles Brehm, 38 of Dallas, was standing at curbside when the first shot hit Kennedy only 15 feet away.

"He was waving as the first shot hit him and then that awful look crossed his face," Brehm said.

Kennedy slumped sideways toward his startled wife. Jackie cradled the bloody head of her husband in her lap. Then clambered in desperation onto the trunk of the car. A Secret Service agent pushed her back.

GOVERNOR FALLS FORWARD

Gov. Connally fell face forward to the floor of the car —he had been riding in a jump seat in front of the Kennedy's — and his wife knelt beside him.

Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Connally were not wounded.

Panic seized the crowd. Policemen drew their guns. A photographer saw a rifle being withdrawn from a sixth story window of the Texas School Depository building — about 100 yards or less from the spot where the rifle volley rang out. Secret Serviceman Bill Greer swung the big Lincoln limousine in the direction of Parkland Hospital.

Ten doctors gathered in Parkland's emergency room one, but when they saw the President the first time, they knew.

The medical team tried desperately — oxygen, heart massage, insertion of a tube in the President's bullet-torn throat, blood, fluids — but they found Kennedy was "critically ill and moribund" with wounds of the throat and back of the head.

The Rev. Oscar Huber of the Holy Trinity Church administered Last Rites to the only Roman Catholic ever elected to the presidency.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy only 46, was dead. 1 p.m., Nov. 22, 1963 is the time officially listed for the President's death. Doctors admit, however, that in their frantic effort to revive him they lost all track of time. He may have died a few minutes earlier.

CLOTHING BLOOD STAINED

Mrs. Kennedy clung to her husband and helped lift him onto a stretcher when they arrived at the hospital. She waited stoically until doctors confirmed the worst. Her pink suit and stockings were stained with her husband's blood.

Gov. Connally suffered a serious chest wound but he would recover.

The remains of the fallen President were lifted into a bronze casket and it was conveyed back to Love Field in a hearse.

Vice President Johnson, who had been riding two cars back of the Kennedys in the motorcade, also had come to the hospital. After 30 minutes, then, flanked by a tight Secret Service guard, he went to the airport.

Back aboard Air Force One, Johnson, the former senator from Texas and leader of the Democratic majority, was sworn in as the 36th President of the United States at 2:38 p.m. CST (3:38 p.m. EST).

With both his wife and the widow of President Kennedy watching, Johnson took the oath from a tearful woman judge. At 2:46 p.m. CST, the former farmboy and school teacher, now Chief Executive, ordered the presidential aircraft back to Washington.

POLICE SEARCH BEGINS

In Dallas the search for the killer began. Police surrounded the book depository building but a few persons were permitted to leave. One, a slim young man, was okayed "because he works here."

Within the hour, an unidentified man called in on a police car radio from northwest Dallas, about four miles from where Kennedy was assassinated. The caller said the officer from the car had been shot.

Police reinforcements found officer J. B. Tippit lying dead on the street, two .38 caliber slugs in his head. He had been gunned down by a man he stopped to question.

Not long after, the cashier of the Texas Theater, five blocks away, telephoned police headquarters that a man had run into the theater. Four officers were dispatched.

A dozen or so people were watching a double feature. An usher led officer M. N. MacDonald to a man in a seat at the rear.

The man leaped from his seat and yelled, "This is it!" He drew a snub-nosed revolver, a .38, and tried to kill MacDonald. The gun misfired.

After a fierce struggle, the four police subdued and handcuffed the man.

His name: Lee Harvey Oswald.

His age: 24.

His occupation: Warehouseman in the building from which President Kennedy was shot.

His politics: Marxist.

DISCHARGED FROM MARINES

A former Marine, discharged as an undesirable, Oswald once defected to Russia, lived there three years, asked but was denied Soviet citizenship and returned to the United States with a Russian wife. He was pro-Castro, serving as local chairman of a "Play Fair with Cuba" committee.

Police, with witnesses and the death gun, charged Oswald with the murder of officer Tippit.

At 11:40 p.m. Chief of Police Jesse Curry announced Oswald had also been arraigned for the murder of the President. The formal charge: murder with malice. The maximum sentence: Death in the electric chair.

Said Oswald: "I haven't shot anybody."

On Saturday, the 23rd a saddened President Johnson eulogized his predecessor as a "great and good man," taken from his fellow Americans by an act that outrages decent men everywhere. He declared the following Monday to be a day of national mourning.

President Kennedy's body lay in repose in the White House and plans were being made for his funeral.

Heads of state, heads of government and diplomats from around the world came to Washington to honor the fallen young leader of the free world. Little people wept in the streets of London and Saigon as well as in Main Street, U.S.A. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev visited the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and somberly paid his respects.

PICTURE OF COURAGE

Mrs. Kennedy, her two young children left fatherless, was the picture of courage. So were the President's brothers and others in the close knit Kennedy family. The news finally was broken Saturday morning to Joseph O. Kennedy, the President's father, who has been an invalid since suffering a stroke two years ago.

The nation came to a standstill. Its grief is not describable.

In Dallas, a mountain of circumstantial evidence linked Oswald to the President's assassination but through hours of questioning he denied everything.

Police said they had more than enough evidence to convict him. It included:

—Witnesses placed Oswald in the book repository building at the time Kennedy was shot.

—His handwriting was on an order form for a $12.78 rifle ordered from a Chicago firm the previous March. The weapon was like the one which killed Kennedy.

—The return address was a post office box Oswald rented under an assumed name.

—The murder weapon, a 6.5 mm Italiam-made carbine, was found and Oswald's palm print was discovered on it.

—Oswald's palm print also was found near the window from which the assassin's bullets were fired.

—Paraffin tests disclosed gunpowder on Oswald's hands and cheek — indicating he recently fired a rifle.

—Oswald's wife said a rifle stored in the garage of their living quarters disappeared the night before the assassination.

A co-worker saw Oswald carrying a long package into the book repository.

But Oswald steadfastly denied he was the assassin.

NATION PAYS RESPECTS

Sunday, the nation went to church. It prayed for its departed leader and implored God's blessing for President Johnson.

The world's mighty began coming to Washington to pay their respects.

Then the impossible was heaped on the incredible.

Suspect Oswald was to be transferred from the Dallas City Jail to the County lockup which is better equipped for long-term detentions.

He would be brought down in an elevator to the bottom floor of the city jail, walked under guard a few yards to an armored car and then driven to the county jail.

Live television recorded the scene:

Oswald, flanked by detectives, stepped out of the elevator about 11 a.m. CST and began walking down a corridor. Scores of newsmen and photographers gathered around.

Then, a squat man in a big hat broke from the circle of newsmen, stepped up to Oswald, placed a gun about four inches from his body and fired.

OSWALD MORTALLY WOUNDED

Oswald, struck under the heart, recoiled and dropped — mortally wounded.

In the city jail! Before a nationwide television audience!

Police wrestled the gunman to the floor and disarmed him. Oswald was taken swiftly to the same hospital where President Kennedy died 24 hours earlier.

The single shot damaged most of Oswald's internal organs. He arrived at Parkland Hospital unconscious.

Nov. 24, 1:07 p.m. Oswald was dead.

The man history probably will record as Kennedy's assassin never confessed. A fanatic's bullet denied him the due process of law the U.S. Constitution guaranteed. Perhaps the full and complete story of the death of the President may have died with Oswald.

The Outlook For The Alliance For Progress

What has happened to the Alliance for Progress, the program the United States is depending upon to bring prosperity to Latin America and solidify its relations with that region? John M. Hightower, AP's chief diplomatic correspondent in Washington, made a 6-week tour through South America to try to find the answer to this and related questions. Here is his report.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — From all over South America demands are building up on the United States to loosen the purse strings and speed up the operation of the Alliance for Progress.

If the $10 billion U.S. aid program is to overcome the failures of its first two years and realize the high hopes of its launching, the new administration in Washington will have to find some way to deal with these demands in the near future.

Caught Up

South America is caught up in a revolutionary wave of social, economic and political change keyed to industrial expansion and land reform. This is a crucial moment and perhaps a moment of great opportunity. Millions of people are looking for higher incomes and better living conditions. They want houses, schools, hospitals, roads, telephones—and hope for the future. Some are showing an interest in more stable governments and honest officials.

The Alliance for Progress is the spearhead of U.S. policy for Latin America in this restless age. It was designed to encourage the revolution, to support reform leaders, narrow the gap between rich and poor, and build a base for political stability.

So far the Alliance for Progress has meant little to the people of South America, however. Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Zavala Ortiz of Argentina said, in one widely typical remark, that it had failed to capture popular imagination.

President Fernando Belaunde Terry of Peru said it was hampered by red tape. What the alliance needs, he said, is to build some great "landmark of history." He has advanced the boldest proposal yet, a huge highway system to open new frontiers in empty land east of the Andes, in the South American interior.

South American leaders put the burden of alliance shortcomings on Washington. But the program was set up as a partnership, and they have as much responsibility for its success as the government in Washington. They all say they like the purposes of the alliance. The only question is whether they can make it work.

The challenge to Latin statesmanship, however, is severe. Some countries have irresponsible if not corrupt governments. Some presidents are caught between powerful nationalist sentiments against the United States and their need for U.S. assistance. Some nations are so poor their leaders claim they have little money for development. They want the United States to put up a bigger share.

THE PROJECT

The late President John F. Kennedy projected the alliance in 1961 as a 10-year, $10 billion U.S. aid program coupled to $90 billion worth of self-help and capital from other sources, including private investors. In the first two years the United States has committed loans and grants totaling $2.3 billion and paid out an estimated $1.8 billion.

The biggest recipient has been Brazil. Though it is South America's largest country the government has proved uncooperative with the United States. Under the Alliance for Progress, the United States is not supposed to pay out more than 20 per cent of aid costs. In Brazil the U.S. share has been running nearer 50 per cent.

To Latin American leaders Brazil gives evidence that the United States can be pressured by circumstances and political hostility into relaxing its rules. They have other criticisms. One is that the United States is more concerned with building immediate defenses against communism than with eradicating the basic conditions of misery and want that encourage communism.

Another criticism is that the United States uses its aid program as a means of enforcing a kind of colonialism in protection of U.S. business interests. That was the reaction to the congressional threat to cut off aid to Argentina over cancellation of U.S. oil contracts. The same applied to the threat to halt aid to Peru because of a conflict with U.S. fishing fleets.

One effort to deal with the whole range of U.S. - South American issues involved in the alliance program has resulted in the recent creation of a seven-nation committee to give the Latin governments a greater voice in policies and operations.

The first effect of this new step undoubtedly will be to concentrate the pressures on Washington to speed up alliance operations and to reduce U.S. terms for assistance. But the new mechanism will also give the United States a better opportunity to prod Latin American governments into making greater contributions.

The result may be to get the alliance moving more productively and give it more meaning in Latin America. At least it may work more as a partnership and less as a U.S.-dictated program. That should improve cooperation with the highly nationalistic Latin governments.

Nationalism is the most powerful force in South American politics today. It stands as a bulwark against the Communists' drive to expand beyond Cuba and it is the reason Fidel Castro so quickly lost prestige in South America after the U.S.-Soviet missile crisis last year exposed him as a Kremlin puppet.

But nationalism also irritates relations between South American countries and the United States. Its effects are magnified when advocates of extreme anti-U.S. action in Latin America provoke punitive nationalistic counter - action in Washington.

This situation seems more difficult for Latin presidents than for the U.S. chief executive. They rule over smaller countries and depend upon more sensitive congresses. Political parties split up into small factions which are often completely irresponsible.

Complicating the South American situation is the fact that governments are frequently contaminated by corruption and graft. Even when honest they are often impractical. Political leaders usually would rather debate issues than solve problems. National pride and economic dependence on the United States stand in bitter conflict with each other.

"We got our freedom from Spain 150 years ago," said a Latin newspaperman. "But we still don't have our economic independence—and that means we don't have independence from the United States."

PEASANTS OF Ecuador trudge down dusty road outside Quito, carrying huge loads on their backs. It is primitive conditions such as these in some South American countries that the U.S. sponsored Alliance for Progress projects are trying to improve. (AP Wirephoto)

These views on the problems and dangers confronting the United States and its Latin American allies are among general conclusions drawn from a six-weeks' tour of half a dozen South American countries and from interviews with five presidents.

The first thing a visitor to South America is told is that North Americans misunderstand the continent and its people. They think of it as a single huge country. The U.S. government, it is said, tends to cover the area, in spite of its diversity with a single over-all policy.

In spite of the Spanish language and Spanish traditions, no image of South America could be more misleading. Even the Spanish language and heritage are limited in unifying effects. The biggest Latin American country, Brazil, speaks Portuguese and is built upon Portuguese traditions. It is proud of its easygoing, rather carefree ways. Most of the population is a mixture of European, Negro and Indian ancestries.

Argentina springs from the Spanish tradition, yet the modern Argentine finds his cultural mecca in London or Paris, not Madrid.

He has made his capital, Buenos Aires, in the image of the two great capitals of Western Europe. He boasts a large middle class and South America's highest literacy rate, 86 per cent. Chile and Uruguay, like Argentina, are oriented to Europe.

The Spanish tradition runs most strongly in the Andean Mountain countries where the original conquistadores built their capital, what is now Lima, Peru. In these countries—including Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia and Colombia — the dominant sport is bullfighting, political differences easily develop into feuds, illiteracy is high because of the long suppressed Indian populations, and the gap between rich and poor is wide.

Yet there are characteristics in common among the South American countries, especially when seen from as far away as Washington. One is the carry-over of the feudal concept—now apparently fading—that governments exist for the benefit of the governors. This notion still seems strong in Brazil where the main purpose of politics is frequently personal advantage.

Brazilian President Joao Goulart is known as a leftist with Communist links. Yet he is also an extremely wealthy rancher. He has made land reform the central theme of his political doctrine, but he has become one of the greatest land owners in the country.

Brazil's preoccupation with politics of this highly personal kind has been a source of despair to U.S. policy-makers who worry about future of Latin America's most populous nation. Americans in fact, worry more that Brazilians who cheerfully make a parlor game of speculations about corruption in government.

Corruption and irresponsibility are frequently among the charges levelled by a new Latin government at its predecessor. Sometimes they are among the reasons given by military leaders for ousting civilian administration.

THE PRACTICE

The practice of military seizures of power is another general Latin characteristic — one which will not be quickly abandoned.

The reasons for this were developed in two interviews with military leaders — Argentina's army commander Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, and the president and three members of the military junta ruling Ecuador.

Because he stood up for democracy during political crises in 1962, Ongania is more responsible than any other man for the fact that Argentina is ruled today by an elected civilian president, Dr. Arturo U. Illia. Ongania said, nevertheless, that "there are times that action of the president or of the congress or even of the judiciary may over a long period result in a matter of national security."

The armed forces in Argentina, he added, are responsible for "internal and external security."

He made it clear, without directly saying so, that when the military leaders decide the country is threatened by an inept civilian administration, a weakness toward communism, or a return to Peronism, they will move in—and there is no force to stop them.

In Quito, Ecuador, Rear Adm. Ramon Castro Jijon, president of the junta, was asked why military rule was necessary.

"We do not believe that such rule is necessary," Castro replied, "but sometimes it is inevitable."

He and his associates, two army generals and an air force colonel, ousted Carlos Julio Arosemena Monroy last July, saying his lax leadership had let communism gain a foothold in the countryside.

BIG REFORMS

The junta has now committed itself to a sweeping reform program, including the return to power of a freely elected government. It has no intention of handing the presidential palace back to civilian occupants until it has finished with their reform program, which may take two years or more.

The situation in Ecuador defines the issue of Latin military rule as it must be faced by the United States—not according to the preferences of idealists in Washington, but according to the realities of South American politics.

The central fact about Ecuador in this respect is that it lacked a stable democracy under an orderly succession of responsible leaders.

The junta claims it took power because of Arosemena's default and that it is building a new base for democracy. The United States had the choice of breaking contact with the militarists or maintaining its diplomatic ties and trying to encourage return to civilian rule. In this case the United States chose to keep contact.

Much of the pressure on the United States to crusade against rule by junta has come from President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela who saw the cost of one-man military dictatorship at first hand.

Betancourt says his experience has proved that political extremes in Latin America work together to try to destroy democracy. Yet he is convinced that the fight for democracy can be won, even against Red terrorism, if elected political leaders will carry through reforms designed to share the national income among more people and to raise living standards.

"The effort in this decade to face these problems is decisive," Betancourt said, "but the experience of Venezuela demonstrates it can be done."

Communism is to some degree a problem in every Latin American country. The decline of Castro's popularity does not mean that the more traditional threat of a Communist rise to power by subversion and conspiracy—or by legal means—has been eliminated.

RED DANGER

One of the most serious Red dangers exists in Chile, where the Reds may rise to power legally. The party has teamed with Socialists to back Salvadore Allende in the next presidential election. Allende missed election by only 30,000 votes in 1958. The man who then defeated him, President Jorge Alessandri Rodriguez, could likely defeat him again. But under the Chilean constitution, Alessandri cannot succeed himself.

Chilean politicians are speculating on several possible maneuvers to assure Allende's defeat.

One way, they say, would be to change the constitution so Alessandri can run again; Latin Americans are much more casual about changing their constitution, than are North Americans. Another possible move is to get several non-Communist candidates to join forces in support of one candidate instead of dividing their strength. A third possibility, if all else fails, would be for the military to take over the government.

Alessandri declined to talk specifically about the Communist problem in his country. But he talked about politics in a manner significant for much of South America. What he said was noteworthy particularly because he is classed as a conservative. He declared he has found that people are "tired of old-fashioned, sterile politics and . . . hungry for a healthy political approach to basic national problems."

The formula he described for political success was at the opposite end of the spectrum from the "politics as usual" policy Goulart seems to be following in Brazil. It may be taken hopefully as a measure of the change coming over South America that new presidents in both Argentina and Peru also spoke out in interviews about their hopes for solving basic national problems.

Alessandri put forward two ideas for change in the Alliance for Progress. He said that years ago when Latin countries borrowed directly from banks in New York, they developed private enterprise. Now with virtually all U.S. financial help coming from the Washington government, Latin countries spend major sums on public works, even when private companies might be more effective. Alessandri wondered if the United States could not find ways to make possible more private development in Latin America.

His other suggestion was that the United States should agree to a "greater independent use of foreign aid resources by those countries which have proved their willingness and ability" to use the aid effectively.

A similar appeal is made by Peru's president, Fernando belaunde Terry. He started a 6-year term last July. Right off he failed to get a $10 million U.S. loan to buy picks and shovels for Indian peasants whose living standards would be improved by such simple help.

From this and other experiences Belaunde concluded that the Alliance for Progress is being strangled by its own red tape. He found it usually takes two years—barring an earthquake or other catastrophe—to get a specific aid project approved.

Appearance Deceptive In Presidential Succession Act

WASHINGTON — The succession to the Presidency of the United States is not as simple a matter as it appears at first glance.

A widely cited 1947 law provides that in the event of the death or disability of the President and Vice President, the succession to the Presidency would be, in order: The Speaker of the House, the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Defense, and on down the Cabinet list.

With the death of President Kennedy and Vice President Johnson's ascendency to the Presidency, the nation no longer has a Vice President. Speaker of the House John W. McCormack (D-Mass.), 71, is next in line for the Presidency.

SPEAKER ALWAYS NEXT

But if McCormack himself were to become President and then die, the man in line to be President would not necessarily be the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, currently 86-year old Carl Hayden (D-Ariz.).

A close reading of the 1947 law makes it clear that McCormack's successor as Speaker of the House of Representatives would be next in line.

In fact, the succession would never go further than the Speaker of the House, unless the House had failed to elect a Speaker, or the new Speaker was ineligible because he was foreign born or not old enough.

Probably a national catastrophe, killing most of Washington officialdom, would be the only event in which the Senate President Pro Tempore or one of the Cabinet officers would become President.

Moreover, if a Cabinet officer did become President, he would be forced to relinquish the Presidency just as soon as the House chose a Speaker or the Senate chose a President Pro Tempore who qualified to be President. However, a Senate President Pro Tempore would not have to step down should the House subsequently elect an eligible Speaker.

TEMPORARY POWERS

In order to succeed to the Presidency, the House Speaker or Senate President Pro Tempore would, under the 1974 law, be required to resign those posts and their seats in Congress.

Thus, if Speaker McCormack were to become President because of a temporary disability of Mr. Johnson, and Mr. Johnson were then to recover, Mr. Johnson would resume the powers of the Presidency but McCormack would no longer be Speaker—or even a Member of Congress.

Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy made agreements with Vice Presidents Nixon and Johnson providing for temporary assumption of the full powers of the Presidency by the Vice President in the case of physical "inability" of the President. The President would resume full powers when he declared himself able to do so.

In their 1961 agreement to this effect Messrs. Kennedy and Johnson pointed out that prior to the Eisenhower - Nixon agreement, "Vice Presidents have hesitated to take any initiative during the period when the President was disabled. Obviously, this is a risk which cannot be taken in these times."

The risk may well be run again, however, if the 1947 law remains on the books. The law would require McCormack to resign from the Speakership and Congress if he assumes the powers of the Presidency even temporarily.

The law does provide that a man may resign the Presidency or decline it. The prescribed procedure is by written declaration to the Secretary of State of the United States.

EARLIER LAW

Until 1947 members of the Cabinet followed the Vice President in line of succession to the Presidency. In one of his first messages to Congress, President Truman in June 1945 pointed out that under the 1886 succession law he would be in a position to name his own successor by his Cabinet appointments.

He requested that the law be amended, suggesting that next in line after the Vice President should be the Speaker of the House and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, who as elected officials might be closer to the people. The Democratic Congress in 1945 failed to enact such a measure.

A Republican Congress in 1947, however, looked with more interest on a bill which might place a GOP member in the Presidency. A bill was sponsored by Senate Majority Whip Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Neb.), to place the House Speaker and the Senate President Pro Tempore after the Vice President in the line of succession. It was passed by the House (365-11) and Senate (50-35) in 1947 and was signed into law July 18, 1947 by President Truman.

President Johnson, who was then in the House, voted for the bill, as did McCormack, the current Speaker. Hayden, the current Senate President Pro Tempore, voted for an amendment to place that office ahead of the Speaker in the succession. The amendment was defeated, and Hayden voted against the bill.

Jacqueline; A New Profile In Courage, Writer Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Profiles in Courage," the title reads.

And before the next edition of John F. Kennedy's book comes off the press, some one should prepare a new chapter—a chapter leading all the rest.

This—the world would agree—should bear the simple title: "Jacqueline."

Only who shall write it? Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides are dead these two millenia and more.

We must, one feels, search out a new master of tragedy—a man privy to the souls of noble personalities erect under the bludgeoning of fate.

A writer in a London newspaper tried, and fell short. For he seemed to relinquish reluctantly the notion that only those who wear visible crowns are queens.

"Jacqueline Kennedy," he said, "has given the American people from this day on one thing they have always lacked—majesty."

Typical of the comment relating the dead president's book to the courageous woman is this editorial from the Washington Evening Star:

"John Fitzgerald Kennedy wrote a book in 1954 which thousands of Americans have read and which usefully could be read by others.

"The foreword to "Profiles in Courage" states that, 'Courage is a diamond with many facets.' " A truth which none will deny.

"The then Sen. Kennedy was writing of political men and the enrichment which has come to our political system because some of them were courageous men. But the book, appropriately enough, was dedicated 'to my wife.' In the last sentence of the preface John Kennedy, recuperating from a major operation, wrote these words: 'This book would not have been possible without the encouragement, assistance and criticisms offered from the very beginning by my wife Jacqueline, whose help during all the days of my convalescence I cannot every adequately acknowledge.'

"Yes, courage is indeed a diamond of many facets. And of many profiles. If courage can be defined as fortitude, as grace and dignity, as a strength which rises above seeming frailty, then Jacqueline Kennedy in her public demeanor during these past few days of ordeal has written her own chapter of profiles in courage. It is fitting that John F. Kennedy should have dedicated this book to his wife."

Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, has likened Mrs. Kennedy's courage to that of valiant women of the Bible, adding that, "Few if any women in all history had more than she had."

Some said only a little while ago that she was merely a high-echelon glamor girl. This winsome girl who: born of wealth, became a linguist, an inquiring photographer for a newspaper, a horsewoman, a water skier, a lover of the arts new and old, a person who gazed long at the Mona Lisa while her husband champed to be off to his high duties, a woman who only last month sailed through the fabled isles of Greece dreaming "the dream of my life."

She is authentically a woman, too, for she sometimes has tarried over her toilette.

As on Friday, the black 22nd of November, 1963.

The president and she had been barnstroming Texas—she making perhaps a deeper impression than he. Coming out in a drizzle from their Fort Worth hotel, the president made a little speech to a street crowd.

He was sorry his wife was late, he said with a grin. "She is organizing herself and it takes a little longer for her, but of course she looks a lot better than we do."

When she appeared, for a breakfast of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, she wore a woolly, two-piece fuchsia suit—and this was the garb that was to be stained by an assassin's infamy.

The world knows now how, when the shots struck in Dallas, she cradled his head and cried out: "Oh, my God! They killed my husband! Jack! Jack!"

That was the last public lament she was to utter—though the beautiful cheeks have become slightly swollen from weeping in private.

It is well known, too, how she accompanied her fallen husband every tragic step—to the Dallas hospital, to the jet plane bearing the corpse back to Washington, down the yellow cargo lift to the concrete of Andrews Air Force Base while the purple lights of the runways seemed to blink in horror.

Everyone knows, too, how—garbed in black—she walked behind the coffin from the White House to St. Matthew's Cathedral, followed by many of the world's great. This was the kind of procession the martyred Lincoln had had, and this was the kind she felt was due to the nation and the world.

And she visited the bier and the grave again and again, sometimes bringing the children—Caroline to kiss the flag and John-John to give the scarcely comprehending military salute of a 3-year-old.

As if to bring order out of woeful chaos, she found time to attend to many things:

She consented to her husband's burial in Arlington National Cemetery rather than Brookline, Mass., as if to emphasize that he belonged to the nation. She designed the memorial cards for the Mass of requiem; asked that his most loved passages from Scripture be recited, that his inaugural speech be quoted.

She suggested that she herself receive the foreign leaders who came from beyond the seas to do homage; and when the new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, assured Latin-American diplomats that the Alliance for Progress would go forward, she too spoke to them, thanking them in Spanish for their sympathy.

Such is the character and faith of this woman that, as she sat with the Kennedy family at the Thanksgiving table in Hyannis Port, she could undoubtedly thank God for his mercies. And even find it in her heart to forgive the man who, in the blind brutality of his unerring aim, struck down the man she loved.

Racial Ruling In Baton Rouge Is Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court was asked Saturday to throw out a federal court ruling which upheld the right of the Congress of Racial Equality to promote civil rights demonstrations in Baton Rouge.

A petition challenging the jurisdiction of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals was filed with the high tribunal by John V. Parker, Baton Rouge attorney.

He acted on behalf of the city's mayor - president, John Christian, and two other citizens, Bryan Clemmons and Wingate White.

The suit stemmed from civil rights demonstrations staged in Baton Rouge on Dec. 15, 1961 by Negro students of Southern University in Scotlandville, La. They had marched to nearby Baton Rouge. When a large crowd of Negroes, including the students, gathered in the courthouse area police made a number of arrests, charging demonstrators with blocking traffic.

The suit subsequently was filed by the mayor and the other two men in the federal district court. They sought to enjoin CORE from financing, encouraging or sponsoring demonstrations.

The defendant, CORE, filed a counter claim.

On Feb. 5, 1962, the district court ruled in favor of Mayor Christian, Clemmons and White.

CORE appealed the case to the 5th Circuit, which handed down a decision in New Orleans Sept. 121, 1963 reversing the district court.

Morrison Gets Nod From Paper At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — DeLesseps S. Morrison, candidate for Democratic nomination as governor, was endorsed editorially by The Times-Picayune in its Sunday editions.

"In our judgment, he would be, among the contenders, the most vigorous in the pursuit of what the state needs most—policies and especially economic," the editorial said.

The newspaper backed Morrison, a former New Orleans mayor, when he first ran for governor in 1956 and opposed him in the 1960 runoff.

The editorial said The Times-Picayune opposed Morrison in '60 because it felt he was not "in a position to rally various political factions and consolidate diverse political elements in support of a forward - looking and effective program."

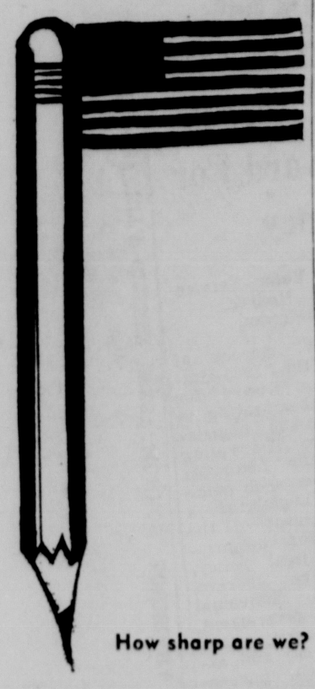
"We still believe that was true," the editorial continued. "But now, it seems to us, there has been a change. There is more agreement and less conflict."

Morrison was praised for his record as mayor here from 1946 to 1961.

U.N. Food Group Outlines Budget

ROME (AP) — A commission of the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization proposed Saturday a budget of $38,838,300 for the agency for 1964-65.

The FAO conference, which meets every two years, will consider the commission's budget proposal at a plenary session here this week.



How sharp are we?

Sharp in brainpower, that is. It's the sharpness we need to hold America's lead in science, in business, in living standards.

How sharp we are depends on how much we back higher education. Colleges develop our brainpower. And leaders.

But the cost of leadership is skyrocketing. Many colleges are in a squeeze. They need help . . . for new classrooms, laboratories, teachers.

We will be sharp if we back our colleges. College is America's best friend.

World War Juxtaposed With Story

ERNESTINE. By Pauline Innis. Robert B. Luce. $3.95

The English have a remarkable talent for writing whimsical comedy which throws an oblique light on deadly serious subjects.

The Deadly Serious in this small book is the deepest danger of World War II, the period of the Battle of Britain, the period when food was down to a two-week supply because so many transports were being sunk. The whimsy is about Ernestine the pig.

The author was 16 at that time, living with a grandmother and a sniffy aunt near the Devonshire villages of Hackam, Dackham and Coffinswell (doesn't that sound British?).

The young girl's contribution to the war effort was the raising of pork or bacon out of pink, squealing, six-week-old Ernestine.

The female porker had a personality. She wouldn't take a ring in her nose, and special measures had to be taken to get the curl back into her tail. She was as eccentric, in her way, as some of her human mentors, who included an octogenarian, old-style colonel.

Light, frothy and amusing, the story of Ernestine is a gentle reminder of the deadly bombs that hit nearby Exeter, and finally wrecked the author's home.

It is a story to reflect upon, even though it just seems to be a pig's tale to smile about.

Witty Social Satire You'll Want To Read

A DAY IN LATE SEPTEMBER. By Merle Miller. Sloane. $4.50.

Miller's witty social satire reaches a smashing pitch in this novel.

It is a corrosive commentary on life among the prosperous phonies who betray each other for money and power, and a jarring recital of the ways in which marriages become loathesome traps in such a social jungle.

The action takes place in a fashionable corner of Connecticut, near New York City, on a Sunday late in September. Its numerous revealing flashbacks vividly place many of the characters in more plebeian surrounds of an earlier period.

Mac, a fortyish writer of uncertain success, has returned from his chosen exile in Spain to carry two people back to Europe with him. One is his young son Jont, who he finds has become nastily delinquent as the result of living with his mother and the heel she had married after shedding Mac.

The other is Phoebe, whom he had met and loved when she was touring Spain. But the neurotic Phoebe happens to be married to Gordon Shepley, a sleek, cultural stuffed shirt who has pompous notions of becoming a white tie celebrity.

Among the other characters is an 80-year-old, sentimentally cynical sage of the nonconformist school, whose observations serve as a counterpoint to the dissonant vocal melodies created by the fashionable phonies.

There also is a devastating picture of a weekend at the fancy home of Phoebe's very wealthy friend Janice. The latter had bought a husband, who promptly started using her money to climb a political ladder.

Most of the characters think and speak in a dazzling flow of smart cracks.

Interesting Book About Famed Lawyer

CLARENCE DARROW: VERDICTS OUT OF COURT. Edited By Arthur and Lila Weinberg. Quadrangle Books. $6.95.

Darrow, certainly one of the most written-about and talked-about men in American history, speaks for himself in this 440-page collection of writings and speeches by the famed trial lawyer.

Perhaps the most significant thing about the book is the reminder it provides that Darrow was a determined and eloquent fighter for many causes and beliefs that had little or nothing to do with the courtroom appearances that made him famous.

The 33 selection deal with everything from recollections in his childhood to a defense of his agnosticism, to literary criticism, to labor and racial problems. Many have aspects which still seem pertinent.

They give weight to the observation of noted lawyer and best-selling author Louis Nizer, quoted in the introduction: "He was more of a philosopher, humanist (despite a cynical demeanor) whose views spilled over into the legal realm."

The selections also emphasize Darrow's use of the shock technique; that is, saying something calculated to antagonize or alarm his audience in order to obtain and hold their attention.

He was quite willing, for example, to tell a mass meeting on Labor Day that most of the working men who marched in the parade that day didn't know why they were marching; to tell an Irish audience that Irishmen weren't any worse off under British rule than many other people in the world, including some Americans; to tell Negroes "Nobody will come to boost you up; you must suffer and many of you will die before the victory will be won."

The introduction recalls, briefly, Darrow's historic work in the Leopold-Loeb case, Scopes monkey trial, Los Angeles Times bombing trial and other cases. But the reader who lacks familiarity with the courtroom side of Darrow's life will appreciate this book more if first he reads a Darrow biography.

Reporters In Lively Shop Talk

JOURNALISTS IN ACTION. Compiled by Edward W. Barrett. Channel Press. $5.95.

For everyone who reads or listens to the news, there is a fascination in going behind the scenes with the men and women who are engaged in reporting it.

This unusual volume is an opportunity to catch the triumphs and frustrations, to savor the anecdotes of the working press, in the intriguing, sometimes hazardous and always challenging job of covering the world and its people. To read it is like sitting in on an after-hours, rag - chewing session in which newshawks swap reminiscences about the electric moments, the hilarious or rewarding experiences they have undergone.

There are 62 contributors, all of them alumni of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University. Their brief essays were assembled by the school's dean in observance of its 50th anniversary. The range of experience is really astonishing.

There are pieces about the Big Stories of our era, of war, revolt, disaster and remarkable personalities. There are old-timers who recall great journeys to report such things as the murder of the Russian czar, as well as newcomers confronting new problems of the 1960s. There are articles from those who have worked on big and middle-size papers, as well as the small ones devoted so heartfully to community service.

There are items from radio and television men, magazine writers and a wire service executive. There is shop talk, about fighting wartime censorship, the hazards of communications systems and the matter of expanding spot news through interpretive writing.

The specialized fields have not been neglected. Writers on such topics as finance, nature, sports, aviation, space travel, the churches and small town life are represented here.

Some of these reports are straightforwardly factual, some nostalgic, or questioning or wryly humorous, and some are exciting, even poetic, or quietly dedicated. In sum total, they offer an enticing revelation of the stir in our present day society.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

Musical tributes during last weekend's period of mourning for the late President John F. Kennedy were appropriate and beautifully performed.

Some of the music was rehearsed and presented for the immediate occasion, and much more came by way of recordings. Such works as the "Symphony No. 2" by Gustav Hahler and the "Requiem" by Johannes Brahms were high points of consolation and inspiration among much broadcast information which was repeated too often.

Both the late President and Mrs. Kennedy did much to forward fine music on our national scene, thus the performance of the more noble musical utterance was particularly fitting for the occasion.

Our only hope now is that we won't have to wait for another shocking occurrence to bring about more performances of the classics over the broadcast channels. Fine music covers many moods, and it would be unfortunate indeed if those making the programs as well as the general public came to associate serious music only with tragedy and death.

LITTLE THEATRE

The second Little Theatre production of the season, Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie" closes its "first shift" of three performances at Strauss Playhouse this evening. The play will resume for three more performances on Friday.

SCHOLA CANTORUM

Appearing Saturday for matinee and evening performances on the Louisiana Tech concerts series will be the Schola Cantorum Choir of the University of Arkansas.

This is the group that was denied federal assistance to make the trip to Italy a year or so ago in order to compete in the international choral festival in Arezzo.

The director of the group from Arkansas had sent a tape recording of selections as sung by the choir to the State Department bureau in charge of such matters.

The verdict of the bureau: "Sorry, your chorus does not meet the standards."

Undaunted, the chorus sang concerts and extended outstretched hands. They raised funds sufficient to reach Arezzo and defeated 26 other choruses to take first prize.

With such an accomplishment tucked away in the name of private initiative, the group has not wanted for concert billings since. So they have earned a spot on the Tech series along with top flight ensembles and soloists from around the world.

War Reporter Writes Timely Vietnam Diary

VIETNAM DIARY. By Richard Tregaskis. Holt, Rinehart. $5.95.

A combat story about the thousands of American military personnel in South Vietnam, this is a day - by - day (and at times hour-by-hour) record of what Tregaskis saw, heard and felt on the Vietnam front between last October and January.

Best known for his "Guadalcanal Diary" and other war reporting, the author practiced his skilled trade by getting out where the gunfire was. He found the Americans have developed several new techniques in the battle against the guerilla fighters of the Communist Viet Cong.

He flew in the helicopters of the Marines in the northern mountains and in the Army helicopters in the southern delta. He learned their principal mission was to move Vietnamese troops and supplies; they could fire when fired upon, and armed helicopters were used to protect the troop - carrying "choppers."

He waded through a rice paddy with Vietnamese led by an American military adviser, and saw a prisoner captured. He went on patrol with a junk fleet in the rivers, and crawled with a combat patrol of the Special Forces who were training mountain people to resist the Viet Cong. He flew with Air Force strafing and observation planes, and with Vietnamese pilots.

What he describes is an American task force taking chances — a few of them killed or wounded, many of them counting bullet holes in their aircraft — in order to stiffen the Vietnamese resistance.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Book Buying Is Very Interesting

By FRANCES FLANDERS, Ouachita Parish Librarian

In purchasing new books for the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, we usually order several copies of each title, so that there is always one copy in the Headquarters Library and one in several of the branches. If a book is in great demand, or if it has enough lasting importance, we often order copies for each branch. However, the books I am discussing today are single copies and are found only in the Headquarters Library. Many of them were memorial gifts and the others were older books which we bought to fill in the gaps in the collection. If you use one of the other branches of the Library, the book can be borrowed for you on a temporary loan.

"Medieval Mystics of England" by Eric Colledge is an interesting and unusual book about religion in England before the Reformation. "Dawn and Twilight of Zoroastrianism" by Robert Zaehner is a thorough discussion of this interesting religion. "The Illustrated History of the Jews" is a beautiful new book and the only copy is found at the Anna Meyer Branch. "The Good City" by Lawrence Haworth should be useful to city planners. "How to Multiply Your Real Estate Sales" by Eugene F. Di Paola is a very useful book, given in memory of a recently deceased realtor. "Department of State, 1963" is a government bulletin of current interest.

"Discovery" by John K. Terres is an account of great moments in the lives of outstanding naturalists. "The Art of Seeing" is an excellent essay by Aldous Huxley. "Copywriter's Guide" by Elburn French should be very useful to anyone writing advertising for newspapers.

There are two lovely new books in the architecture field: "Chinese Houses and Gardens" by Henry Inn and "England in Brick and Stone" by Christopher Trent. "Design Motifs of the Pueblo Indians" by Beulah Wadsworth is interesting and useful. "American Painting" by Virgil Barker is a very complete study of the subject and "Cezanne" by Henry Perruchot discusses the work of one artist. "Dan Emmett and the Rise of Early Negro Minstrelsy" by Hans Nathan is a real contribution to the music collection. "Portrait of a Sport" by Elizabeth Eliot is an account of the spot of steeple chasing in Great Britain and the United States. "Field, Skeet and Trap Shooting" by Charles E. Chapel is of great interest to sportsmen.

In the literature field there are several new titles. "Spirit of Man" is an excellent collection by Whit Burnett. "American Literature and the Dream" by Frederic I. Carpenter is a good discussion of the history of our literature. "Renaissance in the South" written by John M. Bradbury is a critical history of the literature of the South written between the years of 1920 and 1960. It is a very scholarly study and was published by the University of North Carolina Press. Menachem Ribalou is the author of "The Flowering of Modern Hebrew Literature" which is an excellent volume of literary evaluation. Your library has a variety of material on many subjects and is eager to ohelp you find the item you need.

A Biography Of 'Oldest' Navy Vessel

OLD IRONSIDES. By Thomas P. Hogan. Burdett $4.95.

It's doubtful whether any ship has gone through the trials and tribulations of USS Constitution, the oldest fighting vessel in the U.S. Navy, forever knighted "Old Ironsides" by an appreciative member of her crew.

The threats to her well-being didn't all come from the enemy. She handled the Britishers Guerriere and Pava and the Barbary pirates with such dispatch that a young America became a sea power to be respected almost overnight.

It was neglect by her own people that almost caused her downfall.

Launched on Oct. 21, 1797, and fought with distinction through the War with Tripoli and the War of 1812, Constitution was condemned to the scrapheap 33 years later, when a young law student named Olive Wrendell Holmes roused the public conscience with a poem that began:

"Aye, tear her tattered ensign down. . ."

Again, as her 100th birthday approached, she was discovered quietly rotting away at a pier in Portsmouth, N.H., by no less a person than Rep. John F. Fitzgerald (D-Mass), grandfather of President John F. Kennedy.

Fitzgerald didn't write a poem but he did the next best thing. He made a speech about her on the floor of Congress and the venerable ship was resurrected in time to celebrate her centennial.

Today, Constitution — still a commissioned ship of the U.S. Navy, incidentally — is a well-preserved tourist attraction at the Charleston Navy Yard in Boston, a mile or so from where Horgan lives in a refitted sail loft on Long Wharf.

Horgan, who has divided 40-odd years between sailing (he's a retired Navy captain) and writing (he's also a retired Associated Press reporter and war correspondent), retells her battles with gallant enemy and forgetful ally in springthly and tender fashion, as if she were an old and honored friend.

President Kennedy, a one-time Navy man himself, suggests in the foreword: "I hope that as many Americans as possible will visit the Constitution in years to come, and I hope that those who cannot will read Captain Horgan's book."

It's good, non-political advice.

Senator Adcock Wins Award For Consistency

By Louisiana Voter Service
Harney E. Hooper,
State Chairman

Senator J. W. Adcock of Monroe has won the "1963 Outstanding Legislator Award" for obtaining the highest rating in the annual Louisiana Legislative Voting Index. The voting index, put out by Louisiana Voter Service, gives each member of the state Legislature a rating on the percent of the time they voted for the principles of sound fiscal policy, private competitive market, private ownership, individual liberty, local self-government, governmential integrity, and security from internal and external threats to our government. A Consistency Index combines all these principles into one overall rating.

The range in the Consistency Index for the Senate was from Sen. Adcock's 68.8 percent to 40.0 percent for Sen. E. J. Diesi of Opelousas. The range in the State House was from Metairie Rep. John Schwegmann's 63.9 percent to a low of 18.7 percent for Rep. J. E. Jumonville of Plaquemine.

Besides being tops in the state in the Consistency Index, Sen. Adcock led the Senate in favor of Local Government, Private Ownership, and Security. Rep. H. L. Gibbs scored 48.9 percent followed by Rep. Mike John's 7.5 per cent for Ouachita's House delegation.

This years index covered 86 roll call votes from the 1962 session of the Legislature. Anyone may obtain a free copy by writting to: La. Voter Service; Box 208B; Luling, La.

What do ELECTRIC CO-OPS do for people like me?

ELECTRIC CO-OP MONEY goes to work in your community, resulting in more jobs for men and women, growth for industry and strength for all Louisiana.

Rural progress means Main Street prosperity. No town, city, farm or rural community is an "island apart" in our modern economy. Each is dependent upon the other. That's why rural electrification is so important — to both Town and Country.

Home-owned and operated Electric Cooperatives are the only way ALL rural folks can have electricity with rates ALL can afford. Think how important that is to business, industry — jobs . . . to every citizen in Louisiana.

Passman Endorses Stevenson In District Radio Hookup

Over a fifth district wide radio hookup, Congressman Otto E. Passman last night heartily endorsed Democratic Presidential Nominee Adlai Stevenson because of his great knowledge of governmental affairs"

Hinting at Governor Robert F. Kennon's recent endorsement of Eisenhower, Passman suggested, "It may well be that one or two southern governors are supporting General Eisenhower because they believe he has a chance to be elected. Could it be that these governors know they could never again be elected to public office and have their eyes on a federal judgeship?"

Passman concluded by stating that he believed continued prosperity and peace for the world can best be assured by electing Governor Stevenson.

Kennon Praises Naming of Warren

BATON ROUGE, October 1 — Louisiana Gov. Robert Kennon today praised selection of Gov. Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States, saying Warren "understands the business of government on a state and local level."

Kennon, pro-Eisenhower Democrat, used the president's phrase in describing the California chief executive as a man who will make "a great chief justice."

"He is a fine, practical man. I think it is highly important that the U. S. court contain men who understand the basic principles of government."

Kennon, a former state supreme court justice, said Warren had a rich background of experience as attorney general of the West Coast state for many years — better experience than that of some of the recent appointees."

Kennon Interest in State Oil Lease Revealed

Ex-Governor Receives Royalties From Acreage Under Caddo Lake

An oil transaction in which former Gov. Robert F. Kennon and an official of his administration acquired an interest in an overriding royalty under 6,500 acres of state-owned lands in Caddo Parish was disclosed today in an examination of records in the office of Clerk of Court Dozier B. Webster.

Admits Part in Transaction—

Kennon Says Disclosure 'Much About Nothing'

Former Gov. Robert F. Kennon admitted today that he and Sherwood Lee, who had been a high official in his administration, received an override royalty interest under state owned water bottoms in Ferry (Caddo) Lake, but he said the state's interest was in no way affected.

Kennon Assigned Royalties During Term as Governor

By BILL BAILEY

Royalty over-rides on oil production in a Caddo Parish oil field were assigned to former Gov. Robert F. Kennon during his 1952-56 term of office but Kennon says he would sell his interest today for $100.

Records in the Caddo Parish Clerk of Court's office show that while the transactions were made during Kennon's term of office, they were not publicly recorded until after he left office.

The former governor declined in his statement to explain reasons for this. Nor would he comment on indications that he did not pay any money for the assignment.

The assignment was first made to Kennon's sister in Albuquerque, N.M. and conveyed to him approximately 30 days later.

Kennon today called the revelations of the records "political hay."

The sister, Mrs. Sally Kennon Mason of Albuquerque, N.M., received the royalty overrides on the Caddo Lake (sometimes called Ferry Lake) field in 1955.

OVERCOME FUMBLES

Jackets Clip Georgia; Decide Against Bowl

ATLANTA (UPI)— Favored Georgia Tech overcame a fumbling handicap with speed and power Saturday to beat archrival Georgia 14-3 but promptly counted itself out of a possible bowl bid.

Tech, winding up with a 7-3 record, decided immediately after the game it would not go to a post-season bowl this year. The Yellow Jackets were among the candidates for the Gator Bowl which had a scout on hand. But on learning that bowl officials were not going to make a decision until Dec. 7, Tech ruled out any bowl trip.

The Yellow Jackets lost the ball on fumbles four times and bobbled it on numerous other occasions. But the running of fullback Ray Mendheim and quarterback Billy Lothridge provided Georgia Tech with all the points it needed.

ATLANTA (AP)—Statistics of the Georgia-Georgia Tech football game:

	GEORGIA	GEORGIA TECH
Rushing yardage	9	18
First downs	95	209
Rushing yardage	93	68
Passing yardage	8-18	8-16
Passes	1	1
Passes Intercepted by	6-35.5	4-32.8
Punts	3	4
Fumbles lost	30	18

A near record crowd of 53,052 was kept on its feet throughout most of the game by a wild series of fumble and pass interception exchanges. The contest was in doubt until early in the fourth period, when the Yellow Jackets marched 47 yards for the clinching touchdown on a three-yard pass from Lothridge to end Frank Sexton.

Bulldogs Troubled Too

Georgia, having ball control trouble itself, fumbled late in the first period and Tech capitalizedon this break for its opening touchdown. Mendheim recovered the fumble provided a large chunk of yardage in the 23-yard march and crashed over from a yard out. Lothridge kicked his first of two conversions.

Georgia had four scoring opportunities in the second period as every break seemed to go the right way. The Bulldogs recovered two fumbles deep in Georgia Tech territory, had a field goal fall short on the Georgia Tech 1-yard line and stopped Tech by inches on a crucial third-and-one situation.

But despite all these opportunities, the only time the Bulldogs were able to capitalize was on a 27-yard field goal by specialist Bill McCullough with only 41 seconds left in the half.

Bitter Loss for Georgia

It was a bitter loss for Georgia and Coach Johnny Griffith. It gave the Bulldogs a 4-5-1 record and their third consecutive losing season since Wally Butts retired as coach after the 1960 season.

Today's game was billed as a duel between Lothridge and Georgia quarterback Larry Rakestraw. Lothridge ended up with 112 yards rushing and passing to 116 for Rakestraw but had the added advantage of his touchdown pass, his two conversions and a 43.8 yard punting average.

Pennant Pitcher Now On Waivers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Lefty Billy Pierce, whose pitching was a big factor in winning the National League pennant for the San Francisco Giants in 1962, has been placed on waivers, club official Chub Feeney said Saturday.

"But we hope Billy will be with us in spring training," said Feeney.

Pierce, 36, won 16 games while losing six for the Giants in 1962 and didn't lose a game in Candlestick Park. He shut out the Los Angeles Dodgers, in the first playoff game, then relieved in the third and deciding game with the Giants in front 6-4 and retired the Dodgers on 12 pitches.

A three-hitter by Pierce in the sixth game tied the World Series but the New York Yankees won the title in the seventh game.

Pierce, who came to the Giants in 1962 after 15 years in the American League, had a poor season in 1963.

ALL-COAST FULLBACK

Coffey Carries Washington, 16-0

SEATTLE, Wash., (UPI) — All Coast fullback Junior Coffey bulled over for two touchdowns Saturday to lead Washington to a 16-0 victory over Washington State, give the Huskies undisputed possession of the Big Six championship, and make them the likely West Coast representative in the Rose Bowl.

Coffey, who had been demoted to the second string after a comedy of errors, Coffey was sparking a drive which penetrated to the WSU one. Coffee had packed the ball seven out of nine plays to that point, and then he fumbled.

Washington State's Clarence Williams scooped up the ball on his own three and raced 97 yards for nothing. The ball had been whistled dead.

On the next play Mathieson was tackled in the end zone as the final gun sounded.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Washington University officially won the Big Six berth in the Rose Bowl when conference faculty representatives voted the Huskies the honor Saturday night.

They'll meet Illinois on Jan. 1 in Pasadena.

A 16-0 victory earlier in the day over Washington State wrapped up the conference championship for Washington and made the voting only a formality.

The Huskies finished their regular season with a 6-4 record that included a 22-7 victory over Southern California, the Big Six runner-up. Their league record was 4-1.

Washington played in the Rose Bowl in 1960 and 1961, beating Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Cannady Elected New President Of Hunt Group

JONESVILLE (Special) — Ronald "Rip" Cannady was elected president of the Catahoula Independent Sportsman's Association in a meeting here last week.

Other officers are Ernest Guinn, vice president, and Jesse J. Crawford, secretary-treasurer.

Sam Frisby, area supervisor of International Paper Company, was guest speaker. He told the group that his company would not lease any of its holdings to any club or individual. He pointed out that the forest lands owned by them would be open to all hunters.

Frisby, who is also vice president of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, also slated that the idea of setting aside certain portions of the paper company land for deer habitat would be considered. However, he assured the group that plenty of beach and oak would be left interspersed among the pines. The group were concerned about the company cutting out all hardwood and other trees which would leave nothing for deer to feed on, especially during the winter.

"The annual "der Horn" contest was also announced and judges selected to select the winning horns. A prize of $15 will be given to the first place winner, and a prize of $10 will be awarded second place winner. The horns will be judged upon the unformness of the regardless of the number of horns regardless of the number bers only.

LSU Scouts Watch Star Erase Marks

HOUSTON (AP) — Don Trull set two National Collegiate passing records and scored three touchdowns Saturday to lead the Baylor Bears to a Bluebonnet Bowl football invitation with a 21-12 victory over Rice.

The invitation to meet Louisiana State in the Dec. 21 classic in the 70,000-seat Rice stadium was extended immediately after the game. The Baylor athletic council is expected to accept at a Monday meeting in Waco.

A dozen Louisiana State and Bluebonnet scouts were in the stands as Trull set national marks for the most pass completions and the most yardage gained on passes for a single season.

The Baylor victory nailed down second place behind undefeated Texas in the Southwest Conference regardless of the outcome of this week's delayed game with Southern Methodist. The Bears are 6-3 for the season and 5-1 in conference play.

Trull scored on two short plunges and on a 26-yard run but his passes figured in every Baylor drive.

The teams exchanged touchdowns the first times they had the ball, but Baylor broke the game wide open with a 21-6 lead after Rice fumbled on each of the first five times the Owls owned the ball in the second half. Two of the fumbles were turned into touchdown drives of 42 and 35 yards.

Trull completed 18 of 33 passes for 187 yards. This ran his season completions to 160, one more than the old mark of 159 set by Don Klosterman of Loyola of Los Angeles in 1951. The 187 yards for the day gave Trull a season total of 2,047, compared to the old record of 2,005 set by Stan Heath of Nevada in 1948.

State Golf Pros To Start Play In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Home golf course professionals from all over Louisiana will compete in the annual Louisana Golfer's Organization tournament here December 10-12.

The middle - of - the - week tournament, so designed so that home pros will be on hand at their own courses for weekend play, will offer $2,000 in prize money for the pros.

Amateurs can try for the Louisiana Open title, but the LPGO crown will be the pros' own. The two tournaments are held concurrently so that ameteurs can compete with the professionals.

Also scheduled is a pro-am division of the tournament. That, with a $1,000 golf equipment company hole - in - one contest will give the pros four cracks at the money.

Freddie Haas, sometimes touring pro from New Orleans will probably be the biggest name in the tournament, since the field is expected to be composed primarily of about 60 homecourse professionals. Haas competed last year, but lost out to Billy Capps of Franklin. Capps' and Cotton Hill of Shreveport tied in 54 holes last year, with Capps taking the playoff and the title. They shot even par under terrible weather conditions.

An important LPGO membership meeting is scheduled for the first night of the tournament, sponsored by Southern Specialty of New Orleans. Preliminary plans call for the organization to stage three area pro-ams a year as well as the Louisiana Open and to revive the Louisiana Cup matches which pit amateurs against home professionals.

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Dartmouth jarred the ball loose from Princeton's All-East fullback, Cosmo Iacavazzi, late in the fourth period Saturday and turned the break into the touchdown that brought the Big Green a dramatic 22-21 upset football victory and a tie for the Ivy League championship.

Jubilant Memphis Grinds Houston

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Squat fullback Dave Casinelli and sophomore quarterback Billy Fletcher teamed up to lead jubilant Memphis State to a 29-6 victory over Houston Saturday for the Tigers' first undefeated season in 25 years Saturday.

Casinelli, ranked third among the national scoring leaders going into the game, rambled for two touchdowns to bring his season scoring total to 84 points. Fletcher kicked a 37-yard field goal, and broke loose for an 82-yard kickoff return and dashed into the end zone from six yards out to give the Tigers a 9-0-1 season record, their first unbeaten year since 1938.

Gusty winds made the game a kicking battle as the Crump Stadium flag fluttered at half-mast in respect to the late President. The Texas team mounted several offensives, but Memphis State's alert defense kept Cougar quarterback Jack Skog bottled up until he hit end Clem Beard for a touchdown early in the final period.

A short Houston kick into the wind midway in the second quarter started the first Tiger scoring drive from their 45. Senior signal caller Russ Vollmer sparked the drive with runs of seven and nine yards, and passes of 11 and 15 yards. Casinelli bulled his way over from the one and Vollmer booted the extra point.

Fletcher got three shots at a field goal late in the second period when successive penalties nullified one from 37 yards, gave them another shot from 52 yards, and then finally allowed Fletcher to split the goal posts from 37 yards.

The Cougars scored early in the final period when Skog connected with Mike Spratt for 30 yards, then hit Beard on the next play in the end zone. The two-point try failed.

Fletcher then took the Cougars' kickoff up the middle, cut left and raced 82 yards for a tackle John Evans recovered a Houston fumble. Casinelli rambled through tacklers for 21 yards down to the Cougars' nine.

Four plays later, Fletcher raced around right end for the score. His kick was blocked.

Casinelli's 32 carries for 210 yards brought his season rushing total to 1,016 yards.

Trojans Crush UCLA Bruins To Close Action

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California's Trojans crushed UCLA 26-6 Saturday with a football attack that was equally devastating on the ground and in the air.

It was each team's Big Six Conferene finale.

The favored Trojans scored in each of the four quarters. The honors were divided between halfbacks Willie Brown, Mike Garrett and Ron Heller as quarterback Pete Beathard directed a perfectly executed game.

A crowd of 82,460, the largest college gathering of the year in Los Angeles, sat under summery skies to view this annual crosstown struggle.

Beathard sent Southern Cal into a 13-0 lead in the first half on a six-yard touchdown strike to Hal Bedsole and a two-yard plunge he made himself.

The UCLA Bruins pulled to a 13-6 threatening position in the third quarter as they sailed 85 yards—53 of them on a pass from Larry Zeno to Kurt Altenberg — with Zeno scoring from the three.

But the Trojans promptly reattacked on the dynamic running of Garrett. He uncorked one run of 46 and accounted for 62 of the 68-yard ground attack and left it to Brown to smash in 10 plays for its final touchdown in the fourth quarter. Rich McMahon drove the final yard.

By this time Coach John McKay had emptied his bench and the seniors—among them Beathard, Brown, linebacker Damond Bame and Bedsole—were given a rousing sendoof as McKay sent them to the dressing

Johnnies Crush Emporia, 54-0

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) —St. John's of Minnesota pulverized College of Emporia, Kan., with an unstoppable rushing attack and crushed the losers' vaunted offense in smashing out a 54-0 victory in a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics semi-final playoff football game Saturday.

The devastating Johnnie offensive produced a record triumph for an NAIA playoff contest.

St. John's now advances to the Camelia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif., Dec. 14. The Johnnies' foe will be decided next Saturday when Kearney, Neb., State entertains Prairie View A&M.

Carl Irwin's Boot Ends Game In Tie

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — End Billy Carl Irwin booted a 20-yard field goal late in the fourth period today to give heavily-favored Mississippi a 10-10 tie with scrappy Mississippi State, the Southeastern Conference championship and a Sugar Bowl bid.

Ole Miss' Sugar Bowl opponent will be Alabama, which lost 10-8 to Orange Bowl-bound Auburn.

Unbeaten Mississippi drove 72 yards in 16 plays to set up Irwin's fourth down kick as the Rebels elected to settle for a tie rather than try for a touchdown from the three.

Minutes after the game ended, President Marshall J. David of the Sugar Bowl announced in the press box Ole Miss had accepted an invitation to play in the 30th annual New Year's Day classic at New Orleans.

Ole Miss, the nation's No. 3 college football team, showed a playing edge throughout the game but was unable to overcome a gallant State spirit that produced key defensive stops and took advantage of every scoring chance.

The Rebels scored in the first period on an 80-yard march requiring 13 plays, with substitute quarterback Jim Weatherly passing 30 yards to sophomore halfback Mike Dennis for the touchdown. Irwin converted.

State, which made only two first downs in the first half, put them together in the second quarter in a drive from its 35 to the Rebel 31. At that point, guard Justin Canale dropped back and sent a 49-yard placement knifing through the uprights for a field goal. It was State's only march of the opening half.

The underdog Maroons brought the overflow crowd of 35,218 to its feet early in the third quarter with halfback Ode Burrell rifling his first pass of the season to end Tommy Inman on a 32-yard touchdown play. Inman took the pass at the 15 and fought free for the touchdown.

State set up the score with a magnificent defensive stand that held Ole Miss in check at its nine and pressured end Frankie Lambert into a short punt that was dead at the Rebel 32.

The game left Mississippi with seven victories and two ties, including a 0-0 tie with Memphis State in its opener. State, picked to finish ninth in the SEC, finished with six victories, two losses and two ties.

The spirit which produced an upset victory over undefeated Auburn 13-10 and a 7-6 triumph over Louisiana State in its last two games carried the Maroons through the Ole Miss fray.

Mississippi held a 10-3 edge in first downs, a 124-79 edge in rushing yardage and a 97-32 edge in passing yardage, but State came through with the key plays to cut short several budding drives.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Wichita University closed its football season Saturday with a 26-15 victory over Tulsa University and gained a share of the Missouri Valley Conference title.

Don't Quit Now, Jimmy, Cards Drooling

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

Jimmy Brown may be getting a bit tired from the pounding he's taken but this is no time to let down.

He's much too important to the Cleveland Browns' National Football League title ambitions. And of secondary importance, there's that NFL rushing record to be set.

So Jimmy will throw that powerful 232 - pound frame against the Cardinals at St. Louis Sunday and the Browns' hopes ride with him in this game which both clubs must win.

The Browns and Cards are tied with the New York Giants for first place in the Eastern Division. All have 8-3 records with three games left to be played. The Giants travel to Dallas Sunday to play the Cowboys (3-8).

In the Western Division, the Chicago Bears, whose position improved when the Green Bay Packers played a 13-13 Thanksgiving Day tie with the Detroit Lions, take on easy pickin's at home. The Bears play the Minnesota Vikings (4-7).

That Thursday tie gave the Packers a 9-2-1 record, compared to Chicago's 9-1-1. A Bears defeat along the way could tie the Western race. And it's an even-money chance that the Eastern race will end in some kind of a deadlock.

In Sunday's three other games, the Pittsburgh Steelers (still in the running with a 6-3-2 record) are at home against the Philadelphia Eagles (2-8-1); the San Francisco Forty Niners (2-9) are host to the Los Angeles Rams (4-7) and the Baltimore Colts (5-6) play the Redskins (3-8) at Washington.

Nears Rushing Record

Jimmy Brown needs only 30 more rushing yards to break the NFL record of 1,527 he set in 1958. But he and the Browns will want much more to insure a win over the Cardinals.

Brown is the NFL's workhorse with 221 carries, giving him a 6.8-yard average. He's gained more than 200 yards twice, more than 100 yards in five other games, and only twice was he held lower than 95 yards.

Two weeks ago, when the Cards beat the Browns 20-14, Jimmy was good for 154 yards in 22 carries. Last Sunday, in Cleveland's 27-17 win over Dallas, he was held to 51 yards in 17 tries.

Tired? Brown has scored only two touchdowns in Cleveland's last five games. At one stage he had a commanding lead in the NFL scoring race. He now ranks third.

Coach Blanton Collier is counting on a return to form by quarterback Frank Ryan to take some of the pressure off Brown. Ryan was benched two weeks ago when St. Louis beat Cleveland.

Showed Good Defense

The Cards are the NFL's No. 2 yardage team (behind the Giants) and showed a fine defense in beating New York last Sunday. They play their last three games at home and Coach Wally Lemm feels they have the "momentum" to win the Eastern title. Both clubs are in good shape for the game that will draw a sellout crowd of 32,800 at Busch Stadium.

Y.A. Tittle of the Giants also is close to an NFL record. He needs only one to tie and two to break Bobby Layne's record of 196 touchdown passes for a career. The Giants may have to go without fullback Alex Webster for the third straight week, although their backfield defense should be helped by the full-time return of Dick Lynch and Allan Webb.

The Bears have had an easy game coming, following their last two tough games against Green Bay and Pittsburgh.

However, the Bears, like the Giants, cannot afford to coast against a tail-ender. At this time of year, clubs like Minnesota and Dallas have nothing to lose with a shoot-the-works attack that could produce an upset over the big guys.

The results of Sunday's game and how they affect the league standings also will determine in what order NFL clubs will draft college players Monday at Chicago.

AT LAST MINUTES

Marvin Chipman Slams 6 To Get TCU By Mustangs

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Halfback Marvin Chipman slammed six yards for a touchdown in the closing minutes Saturday to boost Texas Christian to a 22 - 15 victory over Southern Methodist.

The Frogs, tottering on the brink of defeat, recovered an SMU fumble at the 27 and punched the distance in four plays to win the Southwest Conference thriller.

Only 2 minutes, 12 seconds remained as Chipman sifted through the Mustang defense for the crucial marker.

The game had no bearing on the conference race and both teams were eliminated from any bowl picture weeks ago.

The gambling Methodists had taken a 15-14 lead in the third period after tailback Billy Gannon drove in fromthe three and then took a two-point conversion pass from quarterback Mac White.

The game, played before 19,294 fans on a crisp, sunny afternoon, was riddled with fumbles, pass interceptions, penalties and heated disputes.

Linebacker John Hughes appeared late in the fourth quarter to have clinched victory for the Mustangs when he burst through to block a field goal by TCU specialist Jimmy McAteer at the 27.

But Dave Rettig a couple of plays later draped himself across a fumble by SMU quarterback Mac . White and the gates were swung open for the furious Frogs.

Missouri Boots Three Pointer To Outwit Rival

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Missouri combined a 22-yard field goal by Bill Leistritz with and a 102-yard run by Vince Turner with a recovered fumble for a 9-7 victory over arch-rival Kansas Saturday.

The winning field goal came after Missouri's only sustained drive of the game, 77 yards in 17 ground plays, to the Kansas five.

Turner's run stunned the record Kansas crowd of 45,000 in the first period. Kansas had moved 74 yards on the ground to the Tiger two-yard line. Fullback Ken Coleman was hit at the one, the ball squirted into the end zone. Turner picked it off and had a clear field for his 102-yard jaunt.

Kansas struck back in the second period after fleet halfback Gale Sayers grounded Tony Leiker's 67-yard quick kick at the Missouri one. The Tigers punted out to their 44, but Kansas drove in to score in 10 plays, Steve Renko plunging from the one. Gary Duff's kick put Kansas ahead 7-6.

Missouri made only one first down in the first half. Gary Lane, Tiger quarterback, who leads the Big Eight in total offense, played most of the second quarter and all of the last half on offense. He had spent a week in the student clinic with tonsilitis.

Sayers was held to 68 net yards in 13 trips by the tough Mizzou defense. But he reached 2,042 yards rushing for his career—917 this season—and became the first back in Big Eight history to reach the 2,000 mark in his junior year.

14-0 OVER VANDY

Faircloth Jigs; Volunteers Win

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Tailback Mallon Faircloth danced 72 yards for one touchdown and set up another with his head-down rushing Saturday to end his Tennessee football career with a 14-0 victory over Vanderbilt.

The 193-pound senior from the south Georgia peanut country became the first Tennessee back since the days of All-America Johnny Majors to pile up more than 1,000 yards gained in one season. He broke open a sluggish ball game in near-freezing weather late in the second period to give Tennessee the victory and a 5-5 season.

Tennessee was penalized almost as many yards as it gained, and two fist fights on the field provided most of the real action. Vandy's Commodores, unable to move on the ground, took to the air in almost every play but threatened only once.

Faircloth personally accounted for 179 yards on the ground as the big Tennessee line threw Vanderbilt backs for repeated losses.

Vandy left end Tommy Martin personally stopped two Tennessee scoring threats in the first period.

Vanderbilt go to the Tennessee 2-yard line seconds before the end of the first half on quarterback Jon Cleveland's passing but Tennessee guard Steve Delong, blocking back Ken Honea and center Frank Emanuel held fast against three charges.

It was Vanderbilt's seventh loss against one victory and two ties.

Faircloth's 72-yard scoring run from his own 28 in the second period was the clincher. Early in the third period he pushed again to the Vandy one where fullback Stan Mitchell leaped over for another score. Dave Leake kicked both extra points.

Oregon Smashes Oregon State On Berry's Guiding

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Quarterback Bob Berry led the University of Oregon to a smashing 31-14 football victory over Oregon State Saturday, completing 18 of 26 passes for 249 yards.

An alert, agile Oregon secondary intercepted four passes and made Oregon State's quarterback Gordon Queen an ineffective threat.

The game had been rated as close to even, especially with Oregon's brilliant halfback Mel Renfro on the sidelines with a wrist injury. But right from the start the Ducks were the masters.

It took them most of the first quarter to get a good drive going, but from then on the outcome was not in doubt on the cold, haze-shrouded field.

Oregon uncovered a fine kicker in sophomore Herm Meister. He opened the scoring with a 22-yard field goal, then booted four conversions.

Marshall Bridges Goes To Solons

NEW YORK (AP) — Relief pitcher Marshall Bridges was claimed by the Washington Senators from the New York Yankees for the $20,000 waiver price Saturday, The Yankees announced.

Bridges was shot in the left leg at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., in February and got off to a slow start this year. He wound up with a 2 - 0 record and 3.82 earned run average in 33 appearances.

Buckeyes Stomp In First Outing On Cage Courts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State tolled up a 21-point halftime margin Saturday and cruised to a 68-42 basketball triumph over the University of California at Davis in the opener for both schools.

All-America Gary Bradds led a first half assault with 18 points, hitting eight of nine field goals. Three other Buckeye starters were in double figures as the taller and more experienced Ohioans completely dominated the action.

A crowd of 10,521 watched Ohio take a 5-4 lead early in the contest. The Buckeyes were never headed. They led 21-12 midway through the first half and steadily pulled away to a 41-20 halftime bulge.

Davis	20	22—42

48-Yard Fielder Lifts Stanford Over California

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Braden Beck booted a sensational 48-yard fourth - quarter field goal that put Stanford ahead and the Indians swarmed to a 28-17 triumph over California Saturday.

The big game crowd of 82,000 saw Beck, a junior end, kick two other long field goals and Steve Thurlow add two Stanford touchdowns. California had rolled to a 17 - 9 lead on two touchdowns within three minute of the third period before Stanford's running game exploded for the victory.

With 11:18 to play, the Bears still led 17-15 and Stanford had a fourth down at Cal's 31. The crowd mumbled in disbelief when Beck set down his kicking tee even though he had kicked a 36-yarder in the first period.

But his boot from an angle slightly to the right sailed squarely through the uprights. Just for good measure, he added a 46-yarder for Stanford's final points.

OILERS-CHARGERS TODAY

Division Leaders In AFL Fight To Keep Pedestals

By RAYMOND C. MEANS
United Press International

The American Football League division leaders clash in San Diego today in what may prove to be a battle for survival.

The Houston Oilers, with a slight one-game lead in the East, play the San Diego Chargers, who hold a 1½ game lead over the tenacious Oakland Raiders in the West.

A Houston loss would drop the Oilers into a tie with the winner of the Boston - Buffalo game at Boston. A loss by the Chargers would cut their Western lead to one game with a tough schedule still remaining.

Kansas City visits New York for Sunday's other league game.

San Diego, on the basis of its league-leading offense, rates a 7½ point favorite over the Oilers. But Houston has won six of the eight league encounters between the two over the years, and the team is in its best physical shape since early in the season.

The Chargers could run away with the game on the ground. They have averaged 5.1 yards per running play this year and have the second and third leading ground gainers in the league in Keith Lincoln and Paul Lowe respectively. Houston has been vulnerable to good running, raking next to last in the league in rushing defense.

Houston's major weapon is the long bomb thrown by quarback George Blanda to receivers Charlie Hennigan, Bob McLeod and Willard Dewveall. Blanda's arm and toe have given the Oilers two league titles and three division championships in three years and cannot be discounted.

San Diego has been especially effective against Eastern teams this year, beating Boston, New York and Buffalo twice each.

The Boston - Buffalo match promises to be a fierce defensive struggle, with the loser almost certain to be eliminated from the division race Boston relies heavily on the running of fullback Larry Garron, but Buffalo has the No. 2 rushing defense in the circuit.

Buffalo combines the running of Cookie Gilchrist and the passing of Jack Kemp for the second best offense in the league, but Boston has the best defense.

The battle may turn into a kicking match. Boston booter Gino Cappelletti has recovered from rib injuries and could give the Patriots the edge. Boston is favored by 4 points.

The Kansas City - New York game appears to be the league also-rans, but New York still has a mathematical chance to win the Eastern Division. The Jets' attack is based on the passing of Dick Wood to Don Maynard and Blake Turner. Kansas City, unable to jell this season despite being preseason favorite, will have Len Dawson back at quarterback. Kansas City is favored by 1½ points.

Ohio State Has Furious Battle With Michigan

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Don Unverferth threw for one touchdown and ran for the second, but the Ohio State defense had to fight off a furious, last-minute Michigan attack to preserve a 14-10 football victory Saturday.

A crowd of 36,424, smallest in Michigan Stadium in 20 years, watched as Unverferth rolled around left end for the come-from-behind touchdown midway in the final quarter.

The Ohio State quarterback broke with tradition in this tradition-filled Big Ten battle when he passed to Paul Warfield for 35 yards and the first OSU touchdown. It came with 41 seconds remaining in the first half.

Michigan had held a 10-0 lead up until the long Unverferth pass.

With time running out, Michigan marched to the OSU seven. But a fourth down pass into the end fell out of the hands of halfback Dick Rindfuss. However, OSU couldn't move and punted. Michigan tried to pull the game out of the fire with sidline passes, but an Ohio State interception saved the game.

The normally ground-minded Buckeyes tried 14 passes and completed seven for 105 yards while Michigan, more of a passing team before Saturday, threw 13 times, completed five and gained only 35 yards.

Michigan opened the scoring with less than four minutes gone in the game when Bob Timberlake booted a 28-yard field goal. Jack Clancy had recovered a fumble by Matt Snell on the OSU 27 on the second play from scrimmage to set up the score.

The Wolverines marched 63 yards in 10 plays at the start of the second quarter with Rindfuss leaping in from two yards out to cap the march.

Ohio State threatened just before going in for its first half touchdown when it marched to the Michigan six. Unverferth passed to Warfield in the left corner of the end zone on fourth down, but the Buckeye halfback dropped the ball.

Foremost Cagers Seeks Opponent

RUSTON (Special) — The Foremost Dairies independent basketball team of Ruston, which starts playing after Jan. 1, is looking for opponents in Monroe or vicinity.

The team issued a warning to takers that it has won several tournaments.

Purdue Swipes Old Oaken Pail; Stops Hoosiers

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Purdue won the Old Oaken Bucket football trophy by beating Indiana 21-15 Saturday in a game that ended with both squads fighting in midfield.

Ron DiGravio, Purdue's all-Big Ten quarterback, threw his third touchdown pass of the game with less than three minutes to play, just 23 seconds after Indiana had gone ahead on a two-point conversion.

A couple of fleet sophomore halfbacks helped DiGravio.

Randy Minniear caught the Purdue quarterback's first and last scoring passes, and Gordon Teter took the second one.

Teter set up Purdue's winning touchdown by running back a kickoff 68 yards to the Indiana 25 after the Hoosiers took their late lead. DiGravio threw a strike to Minniear on the next play.

Church Hits 22, But Hogs Beat USL Five 71-65

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —The young, sporadic Arkansas razorbacks fought back from a four-point halftime deficit to whip Southwestern Louisiana in their basketball opener 71-65 Saturday night.

It was a typical opener, with the teams starting slowly and fouling often.

Larry Hogue and Jim Magness, Arkansas' co-captains, both were benched because of too many fouls, and Southwest lost Sam Thomas and Don Kessler to fouls.

But Hogue stayed in long enough to give Arkansas a lead it never lost. He put in six points as the second half began to pull the Razorbacks ahead, and the Porkers quickly expanded the margin to nine.

Dean Church, a red-hot overhand shooter who put in 22 points, went on a spree just before intermission to give the Bulldogs the halftime bulge.

San Jose State Led By Carter, Defeats Pacific

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Senior quarterback Rand Carter, passing for 20 points, led San Jose State to a 32-20 football victory Saturday over University of the Pacific before 6,000 in Spartan Stadium.

On the second play, after a bugler sounded taps in memory of President Kennedy, Carter threw a screen pass to speedster Walt Roberts, who went 83 yards for the first SJS touchdown.

Carter and Roberts teamed up for the two-point conversion pass, and in the second period Carter hit Jerry Colletto with a five-yard touchdown throw. His nine-yard fourth quarter pass to Roberts on the UOP one set up the third San Jose touchdown.

Fullback Herb Engel plunged over for that one and Roberts again took a pass from Carter for the two conversion points.

Pittsburgh Tops Hurricanes To Hold To Hopes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fred Mazurek led fifth-ranked Pittsburgh to a hair-raising 31-20 victory over Miami's supercharged Hurricanes Saturday night to keep alive the Panthers' hope of a football bowl bid.

A withering aerial barrage by Miami's George Mira kept the Hurricanes in striking range until the final period, when Mazurek's great running put the Panthers in position for a touchdown and a field goal.

Thus Pittsburgh, still uninvited to any of the New Year's Day games, remains eminently eligible, possible for the Cotton Bowl if Navy passes it up, or for the Gator Bowl.

Mira shocked the strongly favored Panthers by passing the Hurricanes to a touchdown in just five plays after the opening kickoff. The lead then seesawed through the third period, which ended with Pitt nursing a two-point margin, 22-20.

The Hurricanes threatened to go ahead early in the fourth with a drive to a first down at the Pitt four, but the Panthers made a successful goal line stand.

Then Mazurek directed Pitt 98 yards to a touchdown scored by Rick Leeson on a one-yard plunge, and again took the Panthers to the Miami seven, from where Leeson kicked the field goal.

GOOD HATCHET JOB

Dupree Powers Florida Victory

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Fullback Larry Dupree tuned a hatchet job on Florida State's line Saturday to provide all the muscle Florida needed for a 7-0 victory over its in-state rival.

Dupree, only a junior but twice All - Southeastern Conference back, plunged over from the 2 for the only touchdown at the start of the second period. Jimmy Hall kicked the conversion.

Dupree made all the difference in Florida's attack, battering the Florida State line with consistency and telling effectiveness.

Florida State, which has never beaten the Gators, lost the ball four times on fumbles and once on an intercepted pass.

Sophomore Ed Pritchett replaced Steve Tensi as the Seminoles' starting quarterback and looked good both passing and running.

Fullback Larry Brinkley also turned in a good offensive performance for FSU, but it was defensive quarterback Charlie Calhoun who did the most to keep the Seminoles in the game. Calhoun intercepted a pass in his own end zone to stop one Florida drive, then minutes later ended another by recovering a fumble on the FSU 5.

Tensi did not come into the game until the final period. He threw a series of last-ditch passes but lost the ball on a fumble to end the Seminoles' final drive.

Dupree, who was Florida's workhorse all season, picked up 131 yards and carried the ball 31 times, a Florida single game record.

Florida's lefthanded quarterback, Tom Shannon, kept Florida State guessing by alternately passing and running on the option. Halfback Allen Trammell twice took handoffs and passed for completions.

The only real threat mustered by FSU came at the beginning of the final quarter when it moved to the Florida 5 but was penalized back to the 10 and lost the ball on downs.

The key play of the game was a faked field goal at the 7 by Florida's Jimmy Hall, who then ran around right end to pick up a first down at the 4 at the start of the second period and set the stage for Dupree's touchdown.

The win gave Florida a 6-3-1 record for the season and FSU finished with a 4-5-1. It was Florida's fifth win in the six-game series with FSU. One ended in a tie.

Big Ten Titlist And Runnerup Get 2 On Team

CHICAGO (AP) — Champion Illinois and runnerup Michigan State each grabbed two berths on the 1963 All-Big Ten football team named by The Associated Press Saturday.

Center Dick Butkus and tackle Archie Sutton, part of Illinois great defensive team, were selected on the squad along with end Dan Underwood of Michigan State and teammate Sherman Lewis, one of the speedish halfbacks in the country.

Except for Ohio State, which for years has dominated All-Big Ten football teams, every other club in the league placed one man on the first team.

Lewis and Butkus, along with tackle Carl Eller of Minnesota, were unanimous choices. Joining Lewis in the backfield were fullback Tom Nowatzke of Indiana, halfback Lou Holland of Wisconsin and quarterback Ron DiGravio of Purdue.

Other members of the first team were end Chuck Logan of Northwestern, and guards Mike Reilly of Iowa and Joe O'Donnell of Michigan.

Butkus, Sutton and Nowatzke were the only juniors to make the otherwise senior club.

There were no repeaters from the 1962 team although Eller and Lewis made last year's second team and Butkus and Holland moved up from the third team.

Paul Warfield, Ohio State halfback on the 1962 first team, dropped into the No. 2 backfield which also included Tom Myers of Northwestern, Paul Krause of Iowa and Jim Grabowski of Illinois.

Rounding out the No. 2 team were ends Bob Hadrick of Purdue and Cloyd Webb of Iowa, tackles Bill Keating of Michigan and Roger Pillath of Wisconsin; guards Tom Jenkins of Ohio State and Earl Lattimer of Michigan State, and center Frank Marchlewski of Minnesota.

Moreland Hits 18; Baltimore Beats Detroit

NEW YORK (AP)—Walt Bellamy scored 11 of his 36 points during a four-minute period in the fourth quarter and led the Baltimore Bullets to a 120-101 victory over Detroit Saturday night in the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader.

Bellamy pulled the Bullets safely out front in the fourth period after the Pistons, who lost their fifth in a row, had closed to within six points, 91-85.

Bellamy then hit on three three-point plays and added another basket as the Bullets built their lead to 109-91.

The Bullets led throughout, moving ahead quickly in the first quarter as the Pistons connected on only four of 24 attempts from the field. Baltimore led 37-15 at the quarter, and upped the margin to 28 points, 43-15 before the Pistons finally got rolling. Then, when Detroit threatened, Bellamy took over.

George Bork's Record Shown

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP)—George The Bomb Bork, most prolific passer college football ever has known, finished his incredible season with these marks Saturday:

Passes attempted, season—415

Passes completed, season—271

Yards passing, season—3,514

Touchdown passes, season—35

Riding "shotgun" on Northern Illinois' offense of the same name, Bork paced his team to a 21-14 victory over Southwest Missouri in the Mineral Bowl, for the game he completed 27 of 41 tosses for 437 yards and all three touchdowns. He already held all national records in the above departments.

Bork's passing yards left him just six yards shy of two miles.

IF 49ERS LOSE TODAY

San Francisco Gets First Choice In NFL

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers will have first pick in Monday's National Football League draft if they lose Sunday's game to the Los Angeles Rams. If the 49ers win, the No. 1 selection will be up for grabs with Philadelphia, Washington, Dallas and San Francisco as possibilities.

As the 49ers had to grab Lamar McHan from the scrap heap when John Brodie was unable to play, the management undoubtedly will go for a quarterback. It could be Pete Beathard of Southern California for George Mira of Miami.

Five of the 14 NFL teams will have extra choices in the draft of college talent. The session starts at 10 a.m., EST.

A total of 280 will be drafted in the 20 rounds. Although each club retains its first-round pick, several other rights have been traded. Chicago has 24, Green Bay 23, Los Angeles 22 and Detroit and San Francisco 21 each. Dallas, New York and St. Louis have the regulation 20. Cleveland, Minnesota and Philadelphia each has 19, Baltimore 18 and Pittsburgh and Washington 17.

The exact order of selection will be determined by standings after Sunday's game, with the teams picking in reverse order to their position. If there are ties, a flip of the coin will determine the order.

As the owners and coaching staffs will be very much aware of the American Football League's draft Saturday in New York, there will be a rush to sign the players as soon as possible.

There is a backlog of 64 players sellected as futures last year because their original class graduated in June.

Under a self-imposed rule, the NFL cannot use a player until his original class graduates. Among those futures already taken are quarterback Don Trull of Baylor (Baltimore), end Vern Burke of Oregon State (San Francisco), quarterback Dennis Claridge of Nebraska (Green Bay), tackle Whaley Hall of Mississippi (Detroit) and tackle back Mike Talliafero of Illinois (New York), center Ken Dill of Mississippi (Detroit, and tackle Ernie Borghetti of Pitt, (Cleveland).

With the current crop of NFL quarterbacks getting a bit old, the new boys will get plenty of attention. Mira of Miami, Jack Concannon of Boston College, Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech, Dick Shiner of Maryland, Larry Rakestraw of Georgia, George Bork of Northern Illinois, Perry Lee Dunn of Mississippi and Craig Morton of California probably will be picked.

Charley Taylor and Tony Lorick of Arizona State are two of the better running backs. Others are Marv Woodson of Indiana and Joe Don Looney, who was ousted at Oklahoma because of disciplinary problems.

Other backs in everybody's scouting book are Paul Warfield of Ohio State, Mel Renfro of Oregon, Paul Martha of Pitt, Willie Brown of Southern California and Sherman Lewis of Michigan State, despite his size —5-foot-9 and 152 pounds.

Bob Brown of Nebraska, Scott Appleton of Texas, Herschel Turner of Kentucky, Dick Evey of Tennessee, Carl Eller of Minnesota, Ken Kortas of Louisville, Bob Crenshaw of Baylor and Ray Kubala of Texas A&M are well-liked interior linemen.

The ends who excite the pros include Bill Truax of Louisiana State, Billy Martin of Georgia Tech, Hal Bedsole of Southern California, Jim Kelly of Notre Dame, Bob Lacey of North Carolina, Dave Parks of Texas Tech and Chuck Logan of Northwestern.

The men who play in bowl games and those who wish to retain their eligibility for other sports can't be signed immediately. The NFL and AFL will dig deep for the others.

SECRETLY HAPPY

Tigers' Hobdy Hiding Smile

By COLLIE J. NICHOLSON

GRAMBLING (Special) — Presumably it was a spoof, but the lines were vaguely familiar — "Texas Southern of Jackson State will win the Southwestern Athletic Conference championship."

The speaker was Fred Hobdy, poker faced Grambling College cage mentor, making his disarming prediction for public print.

Hobdy is always reluctant to put his Tigers on the spot and knowledgeable SWAC seers seldom, if ever, take his candid comments seriously.

Grambling is a strong favorite in the eight team race.

The 1963 NAIA "coach-of-the year" wears a wide, unforced smile in private circles. Grambling had a 30-3 record last spring.

He admits his Tigers have height, speed, poise, confidence and the problem of finding a replacement for all America Hershell West.

"Of course we can't wipe out the handicap," he laments wistfully, "but Wilmar Frazier, 6-10, all - American, Willis Reed, 6-10; Johnny Comeaux, 6-6; Ken Martin, 6-7, and two outstanding freshmen, James Jones, 6-5 and Foster Thomas, 5-11, should provide sufficient offensive strength."

Reed, a 230-pound all-around wonder, scored 699 points as a junior and starred for the U.S. in the Pan American games and the World Basketball Tournament.

He is receiving wide acclaim in slick magazines as a dazzling professional prospect. His ambition is to make the 1964 Olympic squad.

The Tigers spent endless practice sessions in November working on fundamentals and a pressing defense. Hobdy tested the results against the freshmen in the annual Black and Gold game Thursday with the varsity scoring a 102-47 victory.

Grambling demonstrated a fetish for stinginess that should frustrate many a high-scoring outfit in the SWAC race.

Hobdy's versatile crew will open the season with Mississippi Vocational in Itta Bena Tuesday night on a note of guarded optimism.

The team returns to the home pavillion for the annual Grambling invitational tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

United Press International rated Grambling third in its preseason small-college poll behind Wittenberg and Evansville last week.

Wildcats Throw Dual Punch At Virginia Cagers

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky's ninth - ranked Wildcats threw their one-two punch of Ted Deeken and Cotton Nash at Virginia Saturday night and overpowered the Cavaliers 75-64, in the college basketball opener for both schools.

Deeken, a 6-foot-4 senior from Louisville, Ky., and Nash, a 6-5 senior from Leominster, Mass., scored 28 points each and sparked a strong Kentucky defense.

Game scoring honors went to Virginia's Chip Connor, who had 30, most of them coming after the issue already had been settled.

Kentucky, which led 43-29 at halftime, had little trouble keeping the visitors out of reach in the final period and built up an 18-point margin, 59-41 with 11 minutes to go.

Divy Den Takes Crecent Cash

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —T.A. Grissom's Divy Den staged a stretch drive to win the featured $3,250 Crescent City Purse at the Fair Grounds track Saturday.

Howard S. Cohoon's Sun Ponder was second in the mile and one-sixteenth event while the Dormal Stable's Count Dormal was third.

Divy Den, timed in 1:46, returned $9.20 to win.

Sun Dipper and Levenia Prince paced the seven - horse field until the middle of the stretch when Jocky Robert L. Baird brought Divy Den from fourth place to take the lead and win by one length. It was the seventh victory for Baird, the leading rider here, since the season opened on Thanksgiving Day.

The favored Causeway ran a disappointing sixth.

The crowd of 10,169 bet a total of $512,713 on the nine-race card.

SIDLE'S STAND-IN

Sub Engineers Win In Auburn Success

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Mailon Kent, a substitute quarterback who has played in the shadow of brilliant Jimmy Sidle, came in twice Saturday to engineer all of Auburn's scoring in a 10-8 upset victory over Alabama and a trip to the Orange Bowl.

The 9th-ranked Tigers ended four years of frustration against the Crimson Tide and Woody Woodall's first period field goal marked the first points Auburn has scored against Alabama since 1958.

Immediately after the game, Auburn announced acceptance of a bid to meet Nebraska in the Orange Bowl at Miami Jan. 1 and Alabama accepted an invitation to play Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

Kicks Field Goal

Woodall's 32-yard field goal came the first time Auburn got the ball. The Tigers also scored on Kent's pass to halfback Tucker Frederickson in the third period. Alabama countered with an 80-yard dash by Benny Nelson and quarterback Joe Namath's two-point conversion.

Stern defensive play and Jon Kilgore's excellent punting in a wind that reached 30 miles an hour made the difference for Auburn in the Southeastern Conference battle before a capacity crowd of 55,000. Those two factors made the breaks that counted, among them four Alabama fumbles.

A fumble on a punt return by Nelson at the Alabama 5 set up Auburn's touchdown. Two plays failed to gain and Kent replaced Sidle to throw a perfect strike to Frederickson.

Nelson made amends for his fumble late in the same period when he cut through right guard and outran everyone for 80 yards and a touchdown. Namath ran it across for the conversion.

Kent, who had played only about six minutes before Saturday, also guided the drive that set up the first period field goal, passing to right end Bucky Waid for 12 yards on the big play.

Fullback Eddie Versprille was Alabama's big gun most of the way, gaining 51 yards in eight attempts. The stiff wind raised havoc with Namath's passing. He attempted 17 but completed only four.

OVER STATE RIVAL

Grisham Pulls Sooners, 34-10

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Jim Grisham scored four touchdowns and set a school rushing record as the Oklahoma Sooners rolled to a 34-10 football victory Saturday over traditional rival Oklahoma State.

The 211-pound junior from Olney, Tex., bulled his way over and around Oklahoma State defenders while piling up 218 yards rushing. He carried 30 times.

Grisham's rushing mark erased the previous record of 215 yards set in 1951 by Buck McPhail against Kansas.

The All-Big Eight Conference fullback seldom failed to gain at least five yards and ripped off gains of 22, 17, 35 and 20 yards, the last for a touchdown.

The victory, Oklahoma's 18th in a row over its cross-state rival, clinched second place in the Big Eight for the Sooners and gave them a 44-8-6 advantage over Oklahoma State in the ancient rivalry.

Oklahoma State, ending its season with 1-8, scrapped to a 7-7 halftime tie and went ahead 10-7 early in the third quarter on Charles Durkee's 30-yard field goal.

But with Grisham leading the way, the Sooners broke it open with a touchdown in the third quarter and three in the final stanza.

The Sooner defense limited Oklahoma State to only 30 yards on the ground while Oklahoma racked up 340 yards.

The Cowboys, who failed to win a conference game in Phil Cutchin's first year as coach, surprised the Sooners late in the second quarter when sophomore Larry Elliott grabbed an Oklahoma punt and sped 44 yards to the Oklahoma 12-yard line.

Quarterback Mile Miller scored from the one three plays later, and Durkee's extra point gave Oklahoma State a 7-7 tie with 1:34 left in the half.

Mrs. Nash advanced to the last stage by defeating Mrs. Ed Pohlman and Mrs. McMahan gained the right to try for the title by ousting Mrs. Edna Donelson.

Mrs. Charlotte Walker dfeeated Mrs. John Kelson for the championship consolation.

In the 27 hole medal play first flight, Mrs. Malcolm Smith has posted a score of 58 for nine holes. Other entrants have not entered scores yet.

Channel Work For Ouachita

With Sam Hanna

Will Help Tensas

From information received here several days ago, the 9-foot channel project in the Ouachita River should be a great assest to the game and fisheries of this area.

This is not to mention the importance of preserving water, since the new channel will put more water in the Ouachita. It also will hold more water in the Tensas River.

Jim Davis, fisheries biologist here for the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, has received information on the effect of the project to the river.

This phase of the project, of course, does not take in the economic purpose of the channel, since a 9-foot channel is expected to boost the economy of this area.

Rather, the information that Jim Davis has is more on the line of what will happen to the river once the new channel is installed by means of four locks and dams at Jonesville, Columbia and two in Arkansas.

For example, the channel will raise the water level by 16 feet from Columbia to Monroe. Lake Lafitta, a 60-acre lake near Bosco, will be doubled in size.

With more water in the Ouachita, water will back into Bayou Lapine by four miles, also three miles back into Cheniere Creek, according to the information that Jim Davis has.

With the new channel, the water level on the river will vary, however.

For instance, the level of the river from Monroe to Sterlington will be raised about nine feet. This will increase the level of the river lakes, including Moon, White, Horseshoe and Wall's.

This will push water back into Bayou D'Arbonne and DeLoutre, flooding the flatlands in places. While this will benefit the hunter and the fisherman, the channel will create a number of cut-off lakes, which will be dammed at one end, open at the other.

Jim says the lakes will vary in size, ranging from about 40 acres to about 120 acres—at Buckhorn Bend just below Monroe, at the mouth of the D'Arbonne, at the mouth of River Styx outside Monroe and another at the mouth of Bayou Bartholomew.

You can readily see that the channel, if all the anticiptations come true, will mean as much to the sportsman as it will to the businessman who hopes to see the economy boosted.

In addition, it will mean an increase in level for the Tensas River, although we don't think it will be as much of an advantage as in the case of the Ouachita. Areas will be flooded below Clayton while officials expect the Tensas to rise as far upstream as Cooter's Point.

With work to begin soon on the Columbia locks and dam, the completion of the 9-foot channel is expected within the next five years.

It'll be a great help.

Hunting Seasons Open

Chances are by now you will have sat in a wet duck blind or stood on a cold deer stand or walked several miles behind a set of birddogs.

If our plans at this pre-Thanksgiving writing go according to schedule, we will have joined that army of deer hunters.

The Louisiana sportsman shouldn't have any trouble now finding a sport to occupy his time for the next few weeks. If anything, he'll have trouble making a choice.

Because the quail season opened Thanksgiving Day, the duck season and the deer season opened Friday, and the fishing is still fair.

On top of that, the squirrel and rabbit seasons are still open, the last split of the dove season opens December 7th and the woodcock and snipe seasons are open to add variety to your bag.

We'll have a wrap - up next week on the opening of the seasons.

Firing Range Project

A big need came to light to Monroe a few days ago when city officials pointed out that a city ordinance prohibits the firing of guns inside the city limits, which take in the Selman Field firing range.

Actually, the Monroe council made note of this in an effort to cut off the possibility of a fatal accident at Selman Field. Numerous persons were out at Selman Field during the week, testing their guns for the seasons ahead.

Conditions were dangerous — we were out there — since the firing range is not supervised.

But something should be done to offer supervision for the firing range, since it is much better for people to do their shooting out there rather than out in some rural section with nothing to stop the bullets except a human or animal.

Mayor Howard said he thought the firing range would be a good civic club project, which indicates that the city does not plan to do anything about it.

Perhaps the Ouachita Wildlife Unit will want to talk with the city administration in hopes that something can be worked out. With all the interest in guns around here, the firing range is desperately needed.

Actually, supervision at the range has been overlooked too long.

Fisheries Biologists Needed

The Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission now has just four fisheries biologist to cover the entire state. Two of the biologists, Jim David and Jan Hughes, are located in Monroe.

The other two are Sam Stokes at Alexandria and Kenneth Lantz at Opelousas.

Four fisheries biologists!

The latest biologist to depart was Vic Lambou, who was recognized as one of Louisiana's best. Vic left Baton Rouge for a higher-paying job with the Oklahoma Fish & Game Department.

At one time Louisiana had 11 fisheries biologist, but still this wasn't enough to adequately cover the state. Now we have four.

Jim Davis is assigned to North Louisiana — everything from Alexandria north. Think of the lakes and streams in this immediate area alone. He can't possibly give adequate service to the entire north section.

Of course, the problem is the same old story. Louisiana trains the biologists, then loses them to other state and federal agencies for more pay.

Steps will have to be taken to correct this problem, or the Louisiana fisheries program will suffer.

Four fisheries biologists!

Little Man's Corner

The seasons opened and the little men made news afield.

Bow hunters continued to bag deer, including Carey Ellis Jr. and George (Son) Ineichen of Rayville. They got theirs in Madison Parish.

Louisiana hunters getting the jump in Mississippi included Percy Rountree, the Ferriday newspaper publisher who killed a spike on Yucatan Island. Walter Smith of Vidalia bagged two, including a 4-pointer, but Mrs. Jack Parker also got two on Yucatan.

Hunting on Davis Island, Oscar Wurster of Jonesville killed an 8-point buck.

Meantime, the fishermen continued to have pretty good luck. Vacel Razer of Lake Providence landed four good bass in Lake Providence while P. A. Gill caught four also. Mrs. Bill Ragland Sr. caught a nice string of large white perch.

Fishing the River Chute, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Foutz caught 14 white perch.

From Monroe, W. C. Jones and Bud Calahan caught the limit of bream on red worms in Lake St. John. Charley Milstead of Monroe got the limit of white perch in the Blue Hole.

Vidalia fisherman Hy Standiford caught 29 white perch at Deer Park while Don Mulvihill of Vidalia got the limit of white perch.

Friday was a big day for 12-year-old David Glen Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Patterson, 607 Alabama, Monroe, who killed his first deer, a heavy 8-point buck, at Young's camp in Caldwell Parish. Shooting from a stand, he caught the animal broadside, using a Browning automatic 16 - gauge shotgun. His father accompanied him on the hunt.

Andrew Fitzgerald, 113 Cryer St., West Monroe, who has been hunting deer for the past four years, scored his first success around 9 a.m. Friday, when he killed a 10-point buck in the Russell Sage area. Hunting with a party of four, he brought down the deer with his first shot, using a 30-06 rifle.

Deer kills reported from Concordia Parish on opening day of the season nicluded:

W. J. Burris, Ferriday, 6-pointer, using 308 rifle. His son, Bill, bagged a six-point also.

Hugh Arthur, 6-point, using 12 gauge shotgun. His son, Bobby, got a 3-point, using 12 gauge shotgun.

Sheriff Noah Cross, 4-point with 12 gauge shotgun.

Edgar W. Jones, Ferriday, 6-point, using 12 gauge.

In Tensas Parish, J. N. Waltman, Ferriday, killed an 11-point deer with 12 gauge shotgun.

Hunting was good on opening day in East Carroll Parish areas, with four hunting clubs reporting a total of 58 deer killed.

At Nyanza Hunting Club, when 20 were killed, seven of eight Fortenberry brothers, all of Lake Providence, killed deer. The one who did not get a deer was F. E. Fortenberry, parish game warden. Instead, his 15-year-old son bagged one.

LA. TECH BASKETBALL

Bulldogs Open With Maroons

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's cagers hit the road Monday for their annual season opener with Mississippi State, the Southeastern Conference powerhouse.

It will be a doubleheader at Starkville, with Coach Scotty Robertson's Tech Bullpups taking on the State frosh in a preliminary tilt. Word out of the State camp is that Coach Babe McCarthy has his best freshman team in years.

Coach Cecil Crowley will start an experienced outfit against State and will have more bench strength than a year ago. His varsity whipped the Pups 94-76 in a warmup contest Tuesday night before 3,000 Bulldog fans.

Crowley will start 6-3 Joe Abendroth and 6-3 Ray Penny up front with Jerry Hood, 6-4, at center and Butch Miller, 6-1, and Ron McNabb, 6-0, in the backcourt.

First line reserves will be guard David Hruska, 6-0, center Gene Lee, 6-5, and forward Joey Barron, 6-3. All three of these boys were impressive in the game against the frosh, with Lee perhaps the outstanding performer with his scoring and rebounding.

McNabb, senior who prepped at Neville in Monroe, will captain the Canines this year. The Techmen won 10 and lost 13 last year and finished 4-6 in the GSC race.

They expect to do better this time out, despite the rough schedule. Tech's home opener will be Dec. 7 against East Texas State.

Crusaders Upset Boston College

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Holy Cross overcame the odds, a chill capricious wind and one of the nation's top offensive stars Saturday and upset Boston College 9-0.

The Crusaders, two-touchdown underdogs, parlayed a first period safety, a fourth period touchdown and a superb line into the victory.

Jim Marcellino scored the touchdown, going over from the three after sparking Holy Cross' solitary offensive splurge of the gray, cold afternoon.

But it was the Crusader line, anchored by All-East center Jon Morris, that spelled the difference.

The Holy Cross defense muffled Eagle quarterback Jack Concannon, the first draft choice of the Boston Patriots of the American Football League just before game time. He was able to complete only one pass in the first half and ended up with six completions for the day.

Broncos Step Aside; Patriots Pick Concannon In First Bid

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Concannon, Boston College's fine quarterback, was drafted No. 1 in the American Football League Saturday by the Boston Patriots, who acquired the first pick from Denver in a late trade.

Many of the big names in this year of the quarterback were passed over in the early rounds as AFL coaches and scouts concentrated on massive line talent.

The Draft, of course, only established rights in the AFL. The National Football League will hold its annual draft of the same crop of college talent Monday in Chicago. None can be signed until all regular season games and bowl games are over. Wide open bidding is expected.

Pete Beathard, Southern California's bullet passer was grabbed by the Kansas Chiefs in the first round, the second of 200 players to be selected in 25 rounds.

The New York Jets, who have been priced out of the market in recent drafts, picked Matt Snell, a Locust Valley, N.Y., boy who palyed fullback at Ohio State. The new owners who took over the Jets this season are confident they will be able to hold their own in the scramble to sign the collegians.

Denver gave up its first pick in a deal that brought Boston's No. 1 and No. 3 round choices to the Broncos as well as a player to be announced later. The Broncos, hungry for offensive linemen, quickly snapped up Bob Brown, a 269-pound guard in Nebraska's Orange Bowl-bound Cornhuskers.

Two agile tackles were next in line in the first round. The Buffalo Bills took Carl Eller, 6-foot-5, 241-pounder from Minnesota, and Houston quickly drafted Scott Appleton, the 6-3, 235-pound bulwark of the Texas line.

Oakland's first round pick was fullback Tony Lorick, a 9.7 sprinter, top flight punter and alert receiver from Arizona State. Another Arizona State back, Charley Taylor, was taken by Houston in the second round.

San Diego, drafting for lineman and linebackers, selected linebacker Ted Davis of Georgia Tech in the first round.

Such name quarterbacks as George Mira of Miami, Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech, Dick Shiner of Maryland and Larry Rakestraw of Georgia were not picked in the early rounds.

Indiana's Marv Woodson, a halfback who recently underwent knee surgery, was drafted by Denver and Paul Warfield, fleet Ohio State halfback, was taken by the Buffalo Bills.

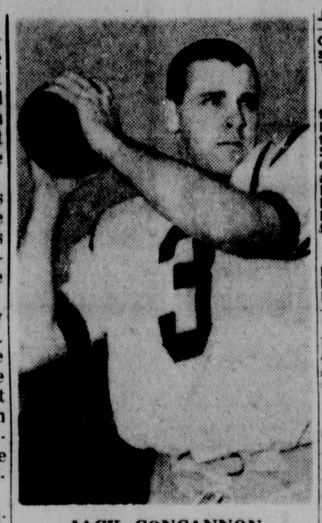
Kansas City selected Joe Don Looney, the Oklahoma halfback who left the team in a mid-season controversy.

Looney was drafted in the sixth round that also saw Willie Brown, Southern California halfback, picked by San Diego.

Bill Sullivan, president of the Boston club, was enthusiastic about the deal that gave him a chance to pick Concannon.

"He is the best all-around athlete in the Boston area since Harry Agganis," said Sullivan. "The whole city is excited about him."

Concannon has a quick release for his passes and can hit either short or long targets with accuracy while running full speed. He ranked fourth in the nation in total offense and had gained 1,513 yards passing and running going into Saturday's season finale with Holy Cross.



JACK CONCANNON
. . . First Choice

If the Pats can sign Concannon, who also has attracted much attention from NFL scouts he will be given a good chance of beating out the veteran Babe Parilli for the quarterback job next fall.

Don Klosterman, the Kansas City talent scout who looked over Beathard for the Chiefs, called the Southern Cal player "the best potential pro prospect I ever saw."

His most enthusiastic boosters call Beathard "the new Paul Hornung," for he can throw bullet passes as well as run the option. The San Francisco 49ers of the NFL also were reported interested.

The 14th round was the first one on which teams could pick futures—players whose classes are graduating but who have another year of eligibility, either because of injury or because they purposely stayed out a full season.

The first player picked on this 14th round was Bob Hayes, the world record holder for the 100-yard dash and a halfback at Florida A&M. Hayes was selected by Denver.

The sprinter is expected to run in the Olympics in Tokyo in October before considering a pro football career. If he decides to play pro ball he will be lost for almost the entire 1964 season.

All eight picks in the 19th round were futures.

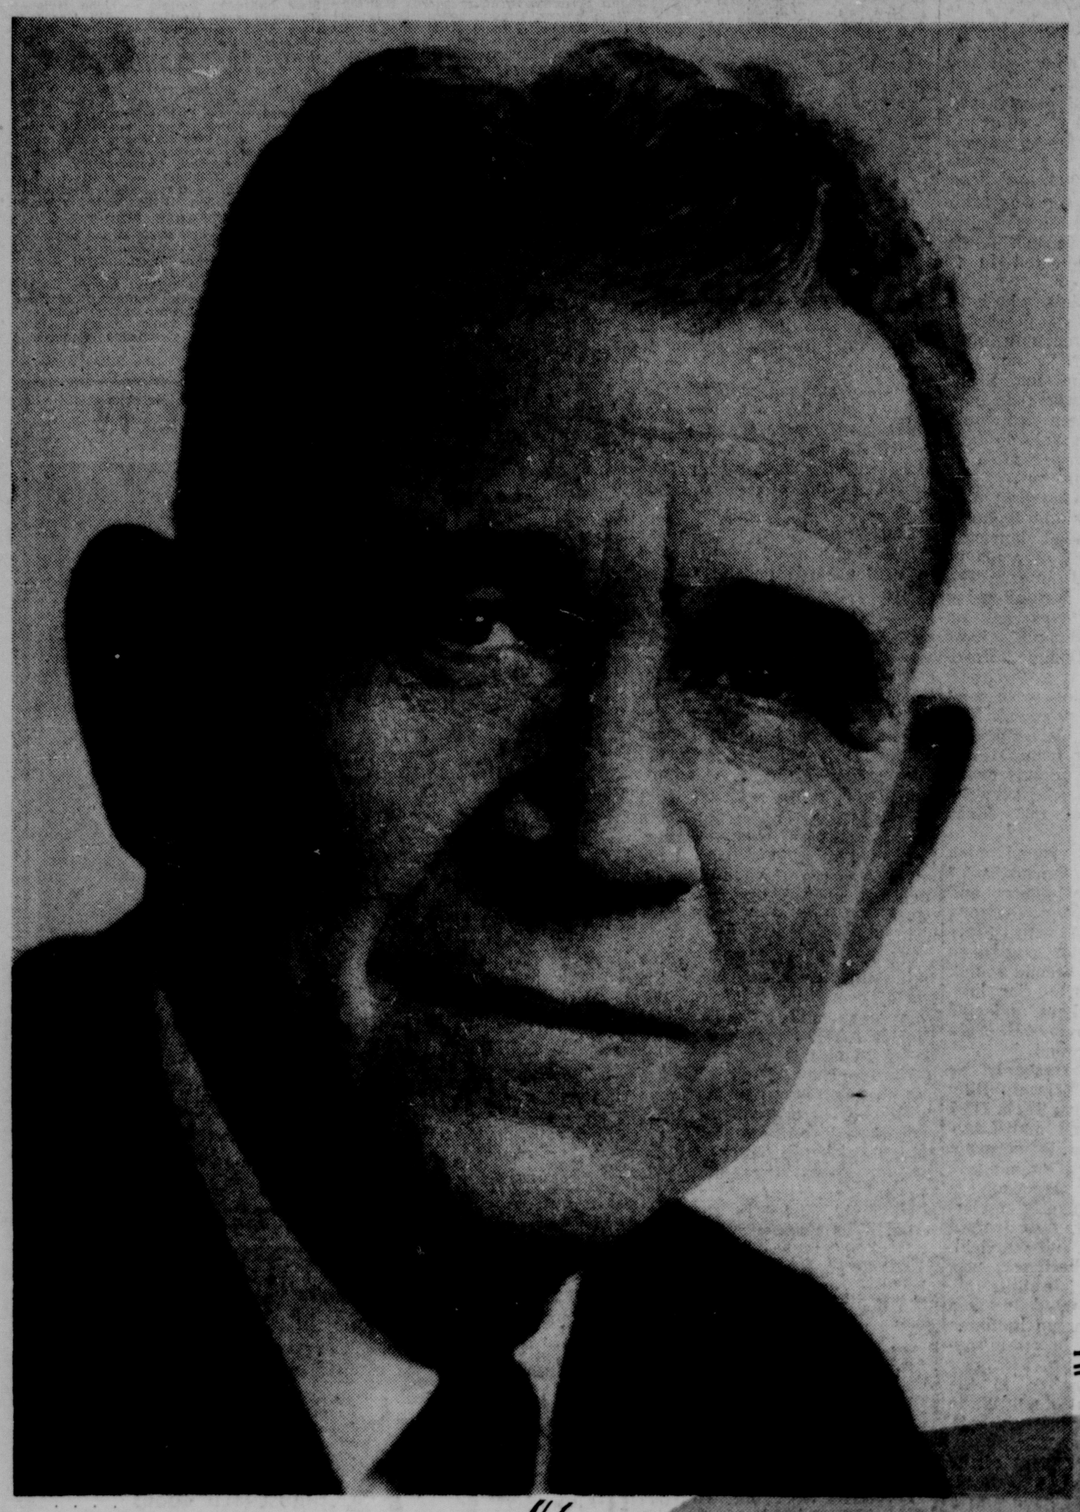
KENNON



PROVEN QUALIFIED!!

Judge Robert Kennon . . . A Real Friend To The Working Man

"I lived up to every promise made to the people in my previous, successful campaign for Governor. I raised the income tax exemption to $5,000 per couple, reduced gasoline tax by two cents per gallon and removed all taxes on household furniture, saving each family in Louisiana $1,409. HAS ANY GOVERNOR EVER DONE MORE TO HELP THE LABORING PEOPLE AND THE LOWER-INCOME PEOPLE?

Our senior citizens received two pension increases during my term as Governor. When I am elected Governor this time, they will again have my full cooperation and support because their pension increases have not offset the tremendous increase in living costs and medical expenses.

During my previous tenure as Governor, I established Citizens' Committees to make recommendations for improving our State's fiscal affairs so as to get full benefit out of every tax dollar. By following a sound fiscal policy, I improved the services of every department of our State and, when I left the Governor's office, I LEFT IN THE STATE'S TREASURY IN EXCESS OF SIXTY - ONE MILLION DOLLARS. My policies as Governor brought outside industry into our State at an unprecedented rate, industrial payrolls skyrocketed and 30,000 permanent new jobs were created. I expect to repeat this performance in even greater measure during my next term as Governor."

"If elected Governor, I pledge to work diligently to carry out every promise in my platform and to give our State four years of the type of government that will benefit all the people of Louisiana"

Robert F. Kennon

The bride is the daughter of H. W. Folds of Pioneer and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. F. Moody Swindle, Perryville. Mrs. Swindle, a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, is on the faculty at Neville high school. Mr. Swindle is now attending Northeast.

At right: In a candlelight ceremony Friday, November 29 in First Baptist Church, West Monroe, Miss Judith Diane Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Parker, 1307 Ridge Avenue, became the bride of James E. Fletcher Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Fletcher, 1518 Nat, all in West Monroe. After a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas the couple will be at home in West Monroe. Both are seniors at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Fletcher-Parker Wedding At First Baptist Church

In a candlelight setting Friday, November 29 in the First Baptist Church, West Monroe, Miss Judith Diane Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Parker, 1307 Ridge Avenue, became the bride of James E. Fletcher Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Fletcher, 1518 Nat.

Dr. Clifton R. Tennison officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. A white satin prie dieu beneath an arch of similax, flanked by two baskets of pink gladioli on pedestals formed a setting for the exchange of vows. Twin candle trees and six branched candelabra were used in the background, and pink bows marked the pews.

Ronny Brothers, organist, presented a concert of wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Fleta Davis.

Preceding the ceremony candles were lighted by Ken Fletcher, brother of the bridegroom and Miss Debra Fowler, his cousin.

Escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage, the bride was wearing a full length gown of peau satin, featuring a fitted bodice with scoop neckline and long sleeves tapering to pearl appliqued points at the wrists. Two large front pleats formed an A-line skirt and released into a chapel train, embellished with pearled appliques. Back interest was created by a bustle effect formed by two large peau satin roses. Alencon lace appliques reembroidered with pearls traced the neckline and extended over the skirt front. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a tiara of pearls. She carried a white orchid, showered with stephanotis and lily of the valley atop a white Bible, and wore a strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Attending the bride were Miss Faye Parker, maid of honor and Mrs. Larry Furlow, matron of honor, wearing gowns of mauve rose peau de soie and bridesmaids, Miss Linda Fletcher, Miss Sharon Peters, Mrs. Stanley Hodge, Miss Donna Parker, Mrs. Randall Walker and Miss Linda Welch, dressed in blush pink peau de soie. Styled identically on sheath lines their gowns featured scoop necklines, elbow sleeves and circular detachable overskirts with flat front bows. Pink feathers in the center of a large bow of pink illusion formed their headdresses and they wore matching slippers and short white gloves to complete their costumes. The honor attendants carried bouquets of feathered chrysanthemums in blush pink and the bridesmaids' bouquets were of deep pink feathered chrysanthemums.

Flower girls were Nan and Jan Kerrigan, identical twin cousins of the bride, who wore long white crystal taffeta frocks, accented by pink peau de soie sashes. Circle crowns of pink roses formed their headpieces and they carried baskets of rose petals. All of the attendants wore single strands of pearls, gift of the bride.

Mr. Fletcher attended his son as best man and ushers included Larry Parker, brother of the bride; Kenneth Parker, Louis Tyner, Bob Patterson, Robert Fowler, Henry Pender and Joe Moore. Ring bearer was Rusty Rainbolt.

Mrs. Parker's gown for her daughter's wedding featured a mauve pink lace bodice and satin sheath skirt with side drape of silk chiffon. She wore matching shoes and hat, long white kid gloves and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Fletcher, mother of the groom, chose an ensemble of winterberry silk and wool jacquard tailored in fitted sheath style, with matching velveteen pillbox, shoes and bag. Her corsage was also an orchid.

RECEPTION

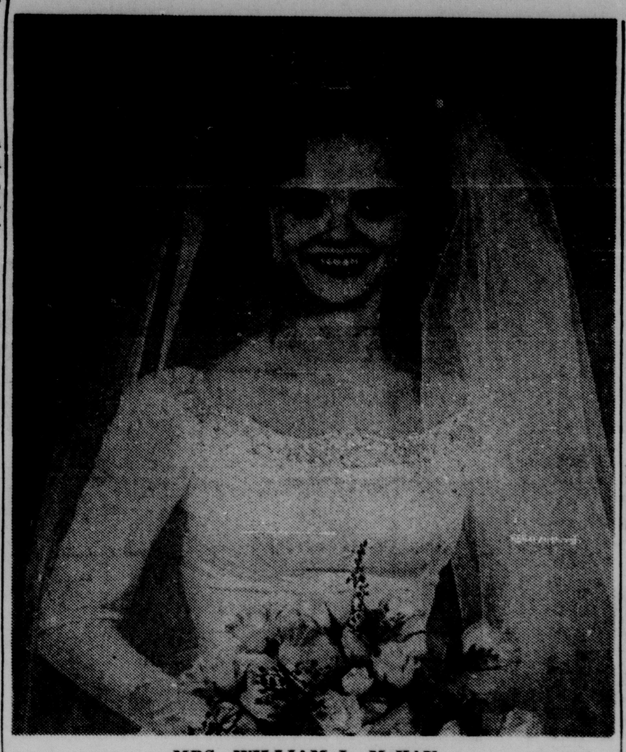
The pink theme of the wedding was further carried out in the reception which followed the ceremony in the church social room. All the reception assistants were dressed in pink peau de soie with matching shoes and corsages.

An arrangement of pink roses and pink candles in a silver epergne formed the central decor for the bride's table which was covered in pink, overlaid with a lace cloth. The tiered all-white wedding cake was served by Mrs. Miller Watson, assisted by Miss Charlotte Daniel. Alternating at the punch bowl at the opposite end of the table were Mrs. Dave Wadsworth and Miss Wanda Adcock. Mrs. Donald Hale presided at the guest book from a table graced with a memory candle, entwined with pink roses and greenery.

Tea girls were Misses Paula and Karen Bauer, Biddy Dupree and Marion Ashley. Miss Kathy Parker and the flower girls distributed rice bags to the guests.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride donned a black silk and wool suit with Persian lamb collar, cranberry velvet hat and black lizard accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will establish a home in West Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of Crowville high school, attended Louisiana Tech and is presently a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College where she is a member of Student of Louisiana Teacher's Association. Mr. Fletcher was graduated from West Monroe high school and is presently a senior in accounting at Northeast. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Pi Sigma Epsilon, Scabbard and Blade and is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.



MRS. WILLIAM L. McKAY

Sandra Edwards Becomes Bride Of William McKay

The wedding of Miss Sandra Edwards, 3511 Hippolite and William L. McKay, 307 Orange, was solemnized Wednesday, November 27 at 6 p.m. in Central Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Edwards, Beaumont, Texas, formerly of Monroe, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McKay, 307 Orange.

Rev. Carl Owens performed the double ring ceremony before the altar which was decorated with baskets of white gladioli mounted on white columns against a background of branched candelabra holding lighted tapers.

Mrs. E. W. Robertson, Natchitoches, organist, played appropriate wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Isola Dixon.

Wearing a gown of white silk peau de soie the bride was given in marriage by her father. The fitted bodice featured long pointed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline, accented by Alencon lace. A narrow cummerbund was attached to the waist by strips of Alencon lace and the bouffant skirt ended in a watteau chapel train, which was caught at the waist by a silk peau bow. Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion cascaded from a crown of seed pearls and pearl teardrops. Her bouquet comprised a yellow throated white orchid surrounded by stephanotis.

Mrs. Joseph Mahfouz, Anderson, Indiana, served her sister as matron of honor. Her gown of peau de soie in topaz shade, was styled with fitted bodice and bell shaped skirt. Her headpiece was a topaz pillbox with a circular veil of tulle attached by a peau button. Topaz satin slippers and short white gloves completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums, encircled with maline and net.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. H. B. Bennett, and Mrs. Luther Buckner, Monroe; Mrs. James R. Hoskins, Gretna and Miss Linda Phillips, Lake Charles, cousin of the bride. Their gowns of chamois peau de soie were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant and their chamois headpieces were open crown pillboxes. Satin shoes in chamois and short white gloves completed their attire and they also carried bronze chrysanthemums. Flower girl was Miss Margaret Shepard, Vidalia, niece of the groom, who wore a full-skirted chamois frock with black velveteen shoes and short white gloves and carried a bouquet identical to the other attendants.

Serving as best man for his cousin was Earl Griffin of Natchez. Groomsmen were Fred Peters, Fort Benning, Ga., Will Rice, Winnsboro, Richard Burgoyne, Monroe and Jim Hopson Delhi. Ushers were Aubrey A. Wolleson and Robert Dhu Thompson, both of Monroe. Candles were lighted by David Edwards, Beaumont, Tex., brother of the bride and serving as ring bearer was Conrad McKay, Metairie, nephew of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Edwards wore a model of forest green peau de soie with fitted bodice and slim skirt, overlaid with Chantilly lace. Forest green satin shoes, matching bag and hat and long white gloves completed her ensemble. Mrs. McKay, mother of the groom, wore a champagne brocade gown with matching satin slippers and bag, complemented by a green hat and jewelry.

A reception followed at the Y.W.C.A., where the reception rooms were decorated with baskets of white gladioli. Guests registered in the bride's book which was placed on a satin covered table, holding a memory candle. Mrs. Bill Shepard, Vidalia, sister of the groom, presided at the table. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Ralph Ward served the white bride's cake and Miss Patsy Dixon served the chocolate groom's cake. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Buck Lawrence while Miss Carolyn Wroten poured coffee. Teagirls were Misses Penny Renegar, Pineville and Ann Dixon, Monroe.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to New Orleans the bride was wearing a red wool suit with self fabric hat and black kid accessories. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 3511 Hippolite. Mrs. McKay, who is on the faculty at West Monroe high school, was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school, attended Arkansas State Teacher's College, Conway, Ark., and graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. McKay graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and attended Northeast. He is now employed in Monroe.

The old flattened look in posteriors is out, claims a well-known foundation garment manufacturing company. The new, rounded, natural look is in.

Naturally, the company just happens to have a new style girdle designed to mold gently any derriere not curvaceous enough by itself.

Now Spray Yourself New Pair Of Shoes

AP Newsfeatures

Competition among shoe dressing companies has become so keen that women can do just about everything with their shoes but change them into pumpkins.

Want a patent leather finish? Just spray it on. Want to change the color of your present patent leather shoes, belts or handbags? There are six different fashion color containers from which to spray.

Maybe you want fake leopard, dalmatian, zebra or any shoes.

Another company has the "fur pile" in a plastic squeeze bottle. You squeeze this over another coat of color while it is wet, and later add the spots and stripes with a brush and a bottle of tan or black.

Matching velveteen at-home, skirts or trousers is easier. You just squeeze the same pile (a snowy substance) onto the shoe after it has been painted with one of the 18 designer colors available.

Once you are weary of velveteen, or fur shoes, or you need to match your shoes to something else, you remove the velveteen with a bottle of conditioner.

On Dit'

by Denise

We have said it before, but must repeat: there's nothing so helps party atmosphere as having dressed-up guests. Your man in a sport shirt may look fine for fishing, but in a dinner jacket he looks better to his lady. Thus attired, he provides proper background for setting off her elegance.

All of which leads us into comment on the Big Timers' winter formal Saturday. This affair got the dressing - up season off to a long head start. Members gathered at Bayou DeSiard Country club beginning at eight for a social hour preceeding the dance. Music provided by Paul Neighbors and his orchestra began at nine.

It seemed to clothes-watchers that some eighty per cent of the ladies were in floor-length ball gowns. White was the overwhelming favorite choice for color; slim skirt, choice of line. JANIS STRAUSS was stunning in a white embossed brocade sheath cut on perfect lines. A panel of the material fell from back shoulder to hem, covering the skirt slit which provided dancing room . . . Another slender white dress was MELBA NUGENT's crepe ornamented only by a quilted motif at the bodice and two panels like wings from her shoulders . . . White and pink velvet combined with a pink velvet rose were used for the cummerbund of HELEN EDWARDS' white taffeta . . . HAZEL CALLOWAY's white crepe was styled with straight skirt, and collared overblouse . . . Beading and brilliants trimmed the overblouse of JESSIE WALTON's white crepe sheath . . . and BESS COURTMAN's Grecian-draped white chiffon bared one shoulder.

Other white dresses noted on the dance floor included LOUISE KLAM's strapless chiffon, accented with a bow embroidered of sequins at the dropped waistline . . . and JANE SHERROUSE's white crepe with cowl collar stitched with pearls and rhinestones . . . SHARRON BONNER wore a draped silk jersey with long sleeves . . . and BARRIE SPENCER chose a sleeveless sheath of sheer white wool highlighted by a band of Egyptian embroidery around the skirt.

Colors pale and colors vivid were also seen, making a constantly changing kaleidoscope on the floor. DOT MASUR was in gold: white satin bodice worked with gold sequins; gold satin skirt . . . A full length matching coat topped RENEE TILLERY's brown cloque dress . . . Several shades of pink were noted, including MARIE BERNSTEIN's vivid strawberry, marvelous with her hair . . . and DOT AMMAN's mauve crepe, edged with silver beading at the bodice and on the panel falling from her left shoulder . . . and DOT BREARD's pink taffeta, worn with a matching stole . . . Envelope folds of the material highlighted VICKY HILL's blue peau de soie . . . while JUDY WORTHEN chose satin: cream - colored bodice with skirt of rich cafe-au-lait . . . LOUISE BIRD wore a sheath of green velvet, sleeveless with modified cowl collar. . MAYDRON JONES' choice was pale blue silk, styled with dropped waistline, beaded bodice . . . Also blue was BYRNIE SMITH's floor - length satin . . . A band of tapestry formed the cummerbund at the lifted waistline of JUDY TURPIN's black velvet . . . Jet beading decorated the line where ELLEN ABINGTON's eggshell satin bodice met the black satin skirt.

'Twas good to see MAVIS and JOE POWELL, "back home" from Orange, Texas, for this party. Mavis was wearing a red velvet sheath, worked with medallions of silver beading.

After the dance a few friends, including the Powells, were invited for breakfast at the home of PEGGY and JOHN CLAY. An open fire burned on the hearth of the family room, where seasonal arrangements of autumn foliage were used. Peggy decorated the dining table with a pair of heavy brass candlesticks, wreathed with artificial grapes in shades of brown and bittersweet, and holding large bittersweet candles. Single small candles were used with grapes on each of six individual tables.

On the buffet was a large brandy snifter filled with beautiful fresh strawberries which guests nibbled as a first course. Hot dishes on the table included bacon, several styles of sausage, baked bananas, eggs scrambled with mushrooms, grits au gratin, and hot biscuits with a choice of jellies and preserves.

Welcoming the WALTER HASTINGS, the KENT ANDERSONS entertained at a reception at the Paragon club Saturday night. The Hastings have recently moved back to Monroe after a residence of several years in Lake Charles and are making their home at 2212 Island Drive. As she greeted her guests at the entrance to the main dining room, Yvonne was wearing an after-five dress of eggshell satin, styled with raised waistline and a fold of the material falling to the hemline in back. Betty chose full skirted white chiffon with a drift of ostrich feathers floating at the hem. Her corsage was a green orchid.

Centering the refreshment table was a tiered wicker epergne filled with large chrysanthemums and pompons in shades of yellow and bronze. Fall foliage and flickering votive lights highlighted the arrangement. Over one hundred guests called to welcome the Hastings.

A beautiful drive through the fall-bright countryside and welcoming gardens gay with beds of chrysanthemums set the mood for open house at the home of the BERNARD BIEDENHARNS Sunday afternoon. Set in the rolling hills just out of West Monroe, the house nestles into a setting of overhanging trees, murmuring stream, and terraces banked in yellow and red blooming plants. On the entrance porch, a basket of fruit and flowers set the harvest motif noted throughout the reception area. Twin swags, each a basket filled with pheasant and fall fruits and tied with red velvet ribbon, hung at each side of the door.

Betty and Bernard greeted guests in the hall, which was decorated with a brass jardiniere holding a vertical arrangement of gold and bronze chrysanthemums. The same blooms were used in a large pyramid which was placed on the living room coffee table.

The lavish abundance of Indian Summer was epitomized in the decoration used on the dining room table. An Italian brass cornucopia stood at one corner and spilled a river of plenty diagonally across the bare table. Yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, both large and small, were used with autumn foliage, wheat, fall fruits, Indian corn, colorful vegetables. Candles shaped like turkeys were intermingled.

A standing buffet was served, with a menu highlighted by roast beef with hot biscuits; slices of hot pizza; hot crab meat; liver pate; turkey and ham with breads for sandwiches; assorted dips, cheeses, and nuts; "Lizzies" and other small confections. Several hundred guests called between the hours of eleven and three.

Honoring FAY and J. D. WINK, who are to move to New York this week, three couples entertained at an evening party Monday night. Hosts were the JAMES AYCOCKS, BILL DENTS, and JAMAR ADCOCKS, in which home the affair was held. Arriving guests noted in the entrance sunset-colored Gerber daisies with candles of the identical shade in a pewter sugar and creamer. Mass arrangements of holly, with red, red berries, were used in living room and playroom.

Holiday red set the theme of dining room decorations. Red roses and pine boughs filled a silver bowl which centered the table. Colorful cranberry punch was served from a milk glass bowl, and coffee from the silver service opposite. On the credenza was a silver ewer containing red roses with holly. Turkey and ham were served, with cheese straws, salted pecans, and several candies and cakes. Causing most comment were delectable miniature muffins or prune cake with burnt caramel icing. Some twenty-five couples were invited for a farewell visit with the Winks.

And speaking of those who move away, BRENTS WITTY was in town this week as guest of the JOHN LOKERS. Brents and his family moved to Louisville last year and are much missed. While "back home" here, he improved the shining hours with some deer hunting on Davis Island.

Our poem today is "Do It Now," by Berton Braley:

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing,
If you like him or you love him, tell him now;
Don't withhold your approbation till the parson makes oration
And he lies with snowy lilies on his brow;
No matter how you shout it he won't really care about it;
He won't know how many teardrops you have shed;
If you think some praise is due him, now's the time to slip it to him,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.
More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend,
For it gives to life a savor, and it makes you stronger, braver
And it gives you heart and spirit to the end;
If he earns your praise—bestow it, if you like him, let him know it;
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over and he's underneath the clover,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

MISS GEORGIA ANN BUTLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Butler of West Monroe, will become the bride of Morris E. Eaves, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Eaves, West Monroe on Saturday, December 24. The ceremony will be performed in the Chapel of First Methodist church, West Monroe.

Phony Fur Demand Grows

There is such a demand for simulated furs that the animals in the fake fur jungle are getting scarce. Manufacturers are really on a safari to fill consumer demands. This is proof that men, women and children like simulated fur fabrics for their own intrinsic values . . . . not as imitations of something else . . . . .for they no longer regard them as "fake furs."

Leopard is king of beasts in this year's fake fur jungle . . . but jaguar, ocelot, civet and snow leopard are close behind. Others that are popular are make-believe zebra, tiger, pony, calf, baranduki, otter, broadtail, mouton, mink, seal, chinchilla.

The chemist's test tube has been breeding animals so fast that one manufacturer boasts he has an "unborn calf."

HOLIDAY TOWELS

To convert white fingertip towels into personalized Christmas gifts, decorate them with green rick rack overlapped to form a wreath — adding red braid and ball fringe for the bow and berries. Or shape alternating strips of white and red rick rack into candy canes.

Always select colorfast trim so the fancy towels can be safely machine-washed in hot soap or detergent suds.

Men Turning To Plastic Pocket Hankies

Ladies have given up their handkerchiefs for cleansing tissues. Now men are turning to plastic pocket hankies.

One company offers two styles. The valet peak has four little corners neatly arranged. The Ivy League is a crisp rectangle of white above the pocket.

Since it is plastic, the hanky never needs laundering and can be wiped clean with a damp cloth. It also contains a hiding place for a handy comb and nail file.

For the man so successful he is above fashion criticism is the executive handkerchief, otherwise known as the hanky-panky. It is a 17-inch square red bandanna billed as 100 per cent Wash and Blow.

John B. Holstead III Claims Bride In Houston

Miss Marilyn Louise Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Page Morris, Houston, Texas became the bride of John Burnham Holstead III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burnham Holstead II, of Ruston, on Saturday, November 23 in St. John the Divine Episcopal Church in Houston. Mr. Morris gave his daughter in marriage. For her wedding the bride chose a gown of ivory peau de soie combined with re-embroidered Alencon lace. The sculptured bodice of lace was fashioned with portrait decolletage and Allegro sleeves. An elevated band of the silk encircled the waistline and held a panel of the peau de soie that overlaid the back of the bell shaped skirt and cascaded into a court train. Petals of the French lace held her tiered veil of silk illusion. She carried a crescent bouquet of bridal roses, ivory friesias and gardenias.

Spotted Furs In High Favor

As for that "first" fur, whether it's sportive or sophisticated, it too can be chosen from a great variety, since fashion is by no means limited to mink. Spotted furs, for instance, continue in high favor. Due to the increasing rarity of leopard, the spotted look is most often achieved with such furs as jaguar, ocelet and cheetah.

Both elegant and sportive interpretations appear in fur seal, Persian lamb, American broadtail, opposum, beaver, otter, sheared raccoon — to name just a few of fall's leaders.

MRS. JOHN BURNHAM HOLSTEAD III

New Knit Hats Fashionable For Brisk Days

Chilly and stimulating autumn is here, the time when feminine thoughts turn to such goodies as warm hats, scarfs and gloves.

Four new knit hat designs, both fashionable and warm, that will "go to your head," are making news among the "girls" anticipating the chilly holiday shopping trips.

The hats causing the stir this fall, are the glamorous turban, the saucy cloche, the flirty pillbox, and the ribbon-accented toque. All are of 100 per cent wool, with the exception of the toque, which is a blend of mohair and wool. These delightful creations come in a wide choice of colors and are modestly priced, belying their expensive look.

Long scarfs and gloves of wool can be easily coordinated with the hats to assure additional warmth.

BIGGER BEDS DEBUT

Bigger beds are due to arrive in many homes this fall. With over-sized bedding easy to come by, more and more people are taking advantage of the comfort offered by the larger king and queen beds.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES ORVILLE BARENTINE JR.

Netherland became the bride of James Orville Barentine Jr., also of West Monroe. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James Orville Barentine of Mineral Wells, Texas.

Rev. E. W. Caughron performed the double ring vows at 8 p.m. on Saturday, November 23. Two pedestal baskets of white gladioli formed an improvised altar in the living room, and pink carnations were used elsewhere about the home.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white wool suit with white veiled open crown pillbox, pink and white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Aubrey M. Simpkins, who served as matron of honor, were a pink wool ensemble with black and white accessories and a white corsage. Bobby Barentine attended the bridegroom as best man.

Mrs. Netherland, mother of the bride, was wearing a light blue dress with black accessories and the bridegroom's mother chose a gold wool suit with black accessories. Both wore corsages of white chrysanthemums.

At a reception following in the home, Miss Wanda Wilkins and Mrs. Roger D. Lewis, wearing pink velveteen frocks with white corsages, presided at the bride's table. Pink carnations, flanked by pink candles, entwined with ivy formed the central decor with the white cake, trimmed with pale pink roses and the crystal bowl of pink punch at opposite ends.

The couple has established a home at 301 S. Second in West Monroe. Mr. Barentine is a graduate of Bolton high school, Alexandria and the bride will graduated in the spring from West Monroe high school.

Current Shoe Styles Give Yule Shopping Comfort

This year's Christmas shoppers will be light-footed as well as light-hearted in stylish leather casual footwear.

Current fashion — informal and easy to live with — has given women a new lease on comfort, reports Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America. The latest leather shoe styles, including boots, walking shoes, ghillies and spectator pumps, will stand any hard-working Santa's helper in good stead during her annual Yuletide shopping daze.

The leather boot is one snappy-looking answer to a lady shopper's prayers. But handsome is as handsome does. Leather boots effectively protect you against winter's winds and snows, and suppleness and light weight of the new leathers will see you through a full day without flagging. Boots are now available in a variety of styles, colors and leather textures, and may reach from above the ankle to the knee.

Once associated only with dowdy old ladies, the walking shoe is now available smartly styled in smooth, grained, waxy and brushed leathers. Ghillie ties and other lacing effects, perforated trim, high-rising tongues and ornamental buckles offer touches of individuality. The walking shoe's sturdy, flexible leather soles keep bundle-toters bouncing, and their fashionable low or mid-heels give additional support to busy feet.

Always in good taste, this season's leather spectator pump with the ubiquitous lowered heel is ideally suited to shopping. Leather uppers and leather soles provide flexibility and a firm foundation, while leather linings hold in the natural warmth of the foot, allowing moisture to escape.

Common sense dictates against wearing shoes with openings at front, back or sides while braving the bargain counters at Christmas. In addition to bargains, you're likely to pick up snags, smudges and smashed toes.

Be smart — and look smart. Make the shoe store the first stop on your Christmas shopping tour, and buy a pair of comfortable leather casuals. It will be the merriest Christmas your feet ever had.

ALL IN ONE LOOK

Full skirts that button over slip-on-bloomer shirts reflect a campus look that has graduated into business and home life.

MR. AND MRS. BILLY JOE McKNIGHT

Double Ring Vows Unite Rayville Couple

Serving as best man was William Lawrence, Ruston and ushers were Thomas McKnight, brother of the groom and J. W. Rhodes, Vidalia. Ricky McKnight, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McKnight, West Monroe, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

A reception followed in the church parlor where the bride's table was covered with a white cutwork cloth over gold and centered with an autumn arrangement. Mrs. Virgil Johnson of Epps served the tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Edward McBroom of Rayville, poured the gold punch. Mrs. Cecil Vaughn had charge of the guest book.

After a wedding trip to Holly Ridge the couple is at home at present north of Holly Ridge. The bride, a graduate of Holly Ridge high school and Bish Matnis Institute, is employed by a Rayville attorney. Mr. McKnight graduated from Holly Ridge high school and after three years in the United States Army is now employed by Olin Mathieson of West Monroe.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Keep Doors Locked To Insure Privacy

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I live in a large apartment house in Los Angeles. Most of the tenants are older people who are scared to death of burglars so they keep their doors locked and bolted. I was born and raised in Clinton, Iowa, and nobody in our town ever locked his door. I've made quite a joke of my wacky neighbors and have sworn I would never lock my door no matter what. Now this is the problem:

I have relatives in this city who don't even bother to knock. They come right in and yell "Yoo Hoo." It doesn't make any difference if you are undressed, in the bathtub, or what. They just go from room to room looking for me.

Should I just tell these people to please knock and hope they will not be insulted or should I eat my words? — WISHING PRIVACY

Dear Wishing: Look, friend, Los Angeles is a far cry from Clinton.

Put a bolt on your door and use it. One of these fine days somebody will wander in and it won't be your Aunt Minnie from Sioux City.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's former wife is a lush. She lives 600 miles away and cails him collect about three times a week. She babbles on and on about how the kids miss him and when is he coming to spend a few days with them.

I know the woman is sick sick sick and I wouldn't mind so much if the calls were helping her but she always phones when she's in the sauce and doesn't remember the next day that she spoke with him.

This woman wears a leopard coat and drives a Chrysler. (My coat is a smart tweed and I ride the bus.) My husband pays heavy alimony and support money for their two children.

Our phone bill was $58 in September and $64 in October. My husband refuses to get an unlisted number because he's afraid the children might be ill and he wouldn't know it. What shall I do? — NOT MRS. BELL

Dear Not: A collect call cannot be completed unless the receiving party accepts the call. So it's up to your husband to refuse her calls if he doesn't wish to speak to her. Suggest that he call her periodically to check on the kids.

Confidential to EENY MEENY MINY MO: Why don't you straighten yourself around and tell Eeny and Meeny that there ain't no Mo?

Confidential to FRIEND OF YOUR BROTHER: Look, Bub, I don't have a brother, I suggest you put your imagination to work on the Great American novel and leave me alone.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Martha Jane Watkins to Ernest Lee Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Williams of Winnsboro, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Watkins of West Monroe. The ceremony will be held Monday, December 23 at 8 p.m. in the home of the officiating minister, Rev. James E. Downs, 1123 Evergreen, West Monroe. A reception will follow. The couple will reside in West Monroe.

THE MARRIAGE of Miss Jo Rene Myers to Gerald Patrick Goff of New Orleans is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wesley Myers of Lake Providence. The wedding was solemnized November 23 in the presence of immediate family members with the Rev. Patrick Murphy officiating. The couple will be at home in New Orleans.

Long Gowns Will Sweep Holiday Dance Floors

Floor length gowns will predominate in the evening silhouette for the upcoming holiday season.

Fabrics are lush and plush—brushed, piled, twisted and haired — bold and beautiful. And there is an extravagant use of fur. Mohair appears in rich prints, giant plaids and solids. Baby fine mohair knits giltter with gold threads while a new gossamer sheer mohair knit is as fine and lightweight as a spider web.

Metallic knits gleam against white mink coats silk lined to match. Textured tweeds are bright toned or winter white. Plaid, herringbone, houndstooth tweeds and minute checks run the gamut from pants to evening gowns.

A casual trench coat in Indian lamb fur is lined in red clan plaid to match a dress beneath. A knit in the identical shade of Magellan fox matches a Magellan fox fur cardigan coat. Gray flannel is ball trimmed, self-fringed and contrasted with brigh mohair, combined with check knit and often detailed with lace. There is even a gray flannel stretch.

Classic black watch plaid is unexpectedly used everywhere from a coverall combined with delicate lace blouse to an elaborate jet embroidered evening gown. Patchwork designs create bright toned at - home skirts and interesting horse-blanket tweeds. Corduroy is exotically printed while white outing flannel is marked with floral designs.

Knits range from fine flat surfaces to classic ribs and contrasting cable patterns. Rows of imported lace from bodices, sleeves and collars of dresses and shirts. There is a strong statement in black velvet for cocktails and evening. Notable is a black velvet trench coat buttoned in large rhinestones and casually self sash tied.

Color enriched by texture and dramatized by silhouette pervades the collection. Plaids move from bright gold and black to red clan into subtle tones of green clan and black watch. Reds are rich and muted deepening into cranberry or shading into pink.

Know 'Leg' Styles For Furniture Identification

Take a look at the legs — according to the American Hardwoods Association, it's a short cut to recognizing furniture styles.

Every type of leg styling plays a triple role in the function of furniture. They must be engineered to hold weight and remain evenly balanced.

Their size, shape and color must harmonize with the style of the furniture and continue the overall effect of the wood.

The swelling "knee," often embellished with a scalloped shell design identifies Queen Anne furniture as quickly as the softly curving chair lines.

In contrast to this comparatively unadorned type of leg, Louis XV reproductions feature ornate "leg art." During this period, furniture became smaller, more feminine and bore every type of elaborate ornamentation including carving, enamel, gilt and painted panels.

The succeeding Louis XVI "straightened" the look and turned to elegant legs reminiscent of miniature Greek columns with fluted effects.

The famous Chippendale leg varies its posture between its early cabriole stance with carved "knee" to the later straight-legged design. Back legs of Chippendale chairs are almost invariably straight, with the feet featuring a scroll, claw and ball or leaf design.

Sheraton, an early modernist who invented twin beds and roll-top desks preferred slender, tapered legs, delicate in appearance, and often reeded.

Provincial furniture is the happy result of simple woodworking imitations of gilt-and-glory furnishings, and can be found in the "country" flavored type which includes Early American or in the formal style with richer upholstery and decoration. Bun feet are characteristic with curved or straight stretchers between the legs.

Lipstick Red With Lilac Too Theatrical For Home

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: The walls in my living room are a true lilac color, the rug is in shades of gray, the sofa and a chair are gray. I ordered two sectional chairs and to give the room a lift it was suggested that they be covered in lipstick red. I believe red will go with the gray, but will it go with lilac walls? Would you suggest another color? What color for draperies, pillows and accessories?

A: I think lipstick red against lilac walls would be more than theatrical. I would much prefer a citrus or green olive for the chairs. Have the draperies in a pleasant print in pale gray with lilac and green; pillows in print, too, and green for accessories.

Q: We have pale yellow walls in a bedroom shared by two small boys and a baby girl. It is a rather dark room. We have bunk beds for the boys and, of course, a crib for the baby. There are two chests and a toy chest in the room. I'd appreciate your help.

A: If possible, paint the chest and the crib the same color as the walls, and the toy chest a brilliant yellow. If you can find a cotton plaid in yellow, red and white, have curtains and spreads for the bunk beds of this, or, you might find white and yellow stripe ticking. Crib should have a pale yellow cover. Toys will contribute their share of cheerfulness. A shelf to display stuffed animals and other objects of a child's delight is a good idea, too.

Q: The couch and chair in my living room are a spice color. What suggestions do you have for walls, carpet, a chair and draperies? We have open-beamed ceilings.

A: Since not every house has exposed beams, make the most of them. Paint walls white, leave beams in natural wood finish. Have draperies in white or a print in white with lime, spice and Bristol blue. If you use the print, repeat it on odd chair. If draperies are white, have chair in a lime or a Bristol blue. Rug could be an avocado green.

Q: I have a gray bedroom set; rug is green. I plan to paper walls, which are now green. Would you suggest a change of color for walls, bedspread and draperies?

A: If you like stripes, then use a narrow, gray and white wallpaper with white woodwork and ceiling. Have soft, filmy white curtains, also a white bedspread with dust ruffle in pale shade of green rug. Have white and green accessories.

Cartons Give New Twist To Holiday Candles

Here's the twist everyone can do. It's so easy to make a handsome twist candle — and others with melted paraffin, string and all purpose dye. Molds are various sizes of paper cups or for the twist a milk carton.

To make the twist candle, melt a pound and a half of paraffin in a clean coffee can over boiling water, remove from heat and add two or three teaspoons dry dye. Stir to disperse the dye. Cut off the top of a quart carton and prepare the mold by threading string through a small hole in the bottom and attaching it at top around a pencil. Seal the hole in the bottom with cellophane tape.

Pour colored paraffin into mold and allow to set until firm but still pliable. Tear off center part of carton and gently twist top and bottom.

Light dye colors are best for candle making as the color deepens in the denseness of the wax. Also, since all purpose dyes are made to be water solsable primarily, there will be some undissolved dye left in the can. This should be discarded along with the can.

Milk carton candles take about eight hours to harden completely. Remove carton and trim as desired.

LOW SILHOUETTE

The bold new silhouette — the low and the low swirling torso sets the pace for a new fashion direction.

Tortoise Gets New Prestige In Look-Alikes

Unlike the olden days when the tortoises made stylish glasses and handbag fittings, the tortoise is enjoying new fashion prestige.

As mock turtle soup does not need turtle, the tortoise look of jackets, leather pants and handbags currently in favor does not need tortoises, which ought to please tortoises very much.

International socialites bought up lots of those tight-fitting, lustrous tortoise shell (look) sports pants designer John Weitz made last spring. Now he has made a double-breasted hip-length jacket of leather with the same shell-like surface.

Knits Appear Sporty, Sultry

It's a case of: Anything fashion can do, knits can do, if not better, at least first, as knitwear gets a fall boost from fashion's two directions—sportive and sultry.

Raglan sleeves, sportive shifts, layered separates — these are all in the knitwear tradition. As for the sultry and sophisticated side of fashion, knits have always had the where-withal to flatter and follow a figure.

Zooming popularity of knits is attested to by the many knitwear divisions recently inaugurated, as makers of dresses turn their special attention to this important area of fashion.

For fall knits make new fashion moves in the direction of texture-in-depth providing a new look in knitwear.

MR. AND MRS. SONNY OTWELL

Otwell-Pylant Vows Are Read In Home Scene

The Downsville home of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Carland, great aunt of the bride, was the setting for the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Evelyn Pylant and Sonny Otwell, both of Downsville. Rev. Ables officiated at the ceremony at 7 p.m. Monday, November 25 in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Loyd Pylant and Mr. Otwell is the son of Sylvester Otwell, all of Downsville.

Roses graced the coffee table in the living room where the vows were exchanged. Mrs. Geraldine Frost, at the organ, played the traditional wedding march and at conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Emma Lee Carland played "I Love You Truly."

For her wedding the bride wore a gown of mauve chiffon with a white lace veil attached to a velvet bandeau. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

A reception followed in the home at which Mrs. Elizabeth Frost presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Erma Lee Carland served the tiered wedding cake. After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Downsville.

EVEN IF you're all thumbs you can have attractive Christmas packages if you follow the tips Mrs. Lowman gives in today's column.

Patience And These Tips Lead To Pretty Packages

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here it is the first of that month when YOU KNOW what happens! There are signs of Christmas everywhere. Maybe you are one of those people who really enjoy wrapping gifts because you are good at it and use your creative urge for artistic beautiful results.

On the other hand, you may be like I am. I have five thumbs on each hand when I try to wrap a gift and my finger either gets caught in the ribbon or the ribbon is too loose when I finish. Today I bring help for my readers with five thumbs which may also be useful to more expert gift wrappers.

Here are some suggestions from a professional gift wrapper to make this task easier and the packages prettier.

Some basic materials you should have: several gift wrapping papers, including one solid color, tissue paper (white and two bright shades), a cellophane tape, colored ribbon and spool wire for bows. If you have time to be fancy add sparkling sequins, decorative gummed seals and colored construction paper for cutouts.

Ribbon should be only a decoration. Do not depend on it to hold your wrapping together. Use cellophane tape to secure the edges. You can conceal the tape by overlapping the ends of a small piece, sticky side out, and placing this between the edges to be sealed. Then press together firmly.

If a box is too big for one sheet, tape two sheets together before you begin wrapping.

Never make a bow from the ends of the ribbon you tie around the box. Make the bow separately and use the ribbon ends to tie in place.

If you are working with a round box, tape the ribbon to the bottom so it won't slip before you have tied it securely.

Soft ribbon is easier to work with than stiff ribbon.

If you have odd ends of ribbon left over cut them into matching lengths, about four to seven inches, and tie them together in the middle with spool wire and you have a pinwheel bow, particularly effective when made with different colors of ribbon.

If you are wrapping homemade jams or jellies, place the jar on several different colored sheets of tissue, and draw the tissue up into a pouf at the top. Hold it in place with wide ribbon.

Deep blue paper with gummed stars sweeping across like a comet's tail is different and effective. A silver pinwheel bow can be the comet's head.

A child's package can be cleverly decorated with ribbon pierced through with little lollipops.

For a very small box cut colored felt to size and glue to the box itself. Tie with gold or silver string and thread some little bells into the bow.

Pleat a strip of heavy colored or metallic paper and make random wedge - shaped cuts into it while it is still folded. Cut the edges off slantwise. Then fan it out to make a sunburst decoration to be glued to a package.

Use Practical Method To Pack Gift For Mail

Packing a gift for mailing? Make sure it is both securely wrapped and present-pretty.

For mailing safety, use two boxes — an inner gift box and an outer mailing box. Make sure both are strong enough to protect the article. Even soft items such as clothing should be packed in boxes which will withstand possible rough handling and arrive intact. If breakable articles were not cushioned firmly at the store, use crumpled tissues to fill in the spaces.

Of course you'll wrap the inner gift box prettily, but be sure to choose packable decorations. Avoid paper with glitter trimmings. The glitter rubs off easily and probably will be in the bottom of the box when your gift arrives.

Also, eliminate fluffy bows and novelty ornaments which are easily crushed and flattened. Select tailored trimmings for mail-proof beauty. Fasten ribbons with an attractive gummed sticker or use a knotted cluster of streamers.

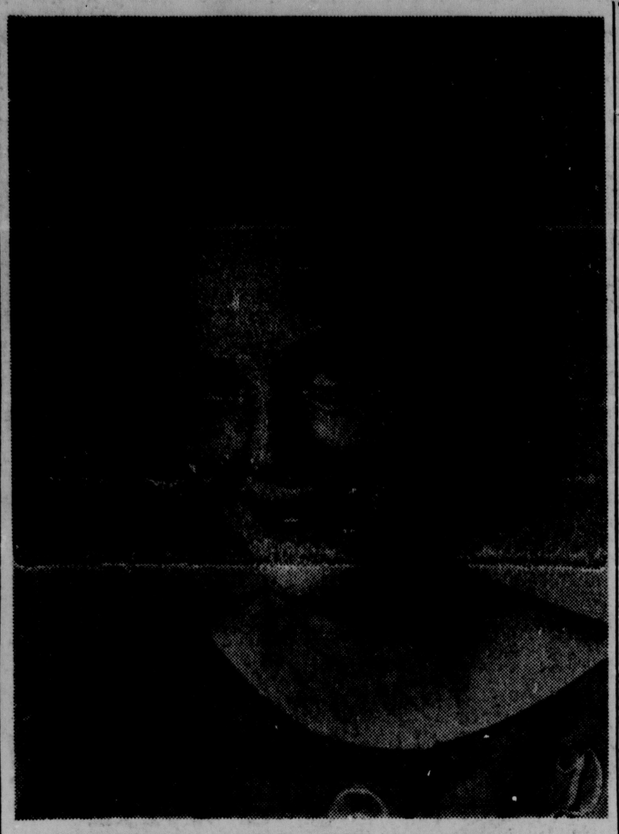
Now for the packing. Select a strong mailing box, just slightly larger than the gift box. To keep your gift safe and pretty, fill in the space between gift and mailing boxes with crumpled tissues in a variety of colors. By mixing aqua, pink, white and yellow you'll create a pastel potpourri of color that gives a festive greeting as soon as the mailing box is opened.

Be sure to wrap the outer mailing box with heavy paper and secure with sturdy twine. The address label should be typed or printed with indelible ink.

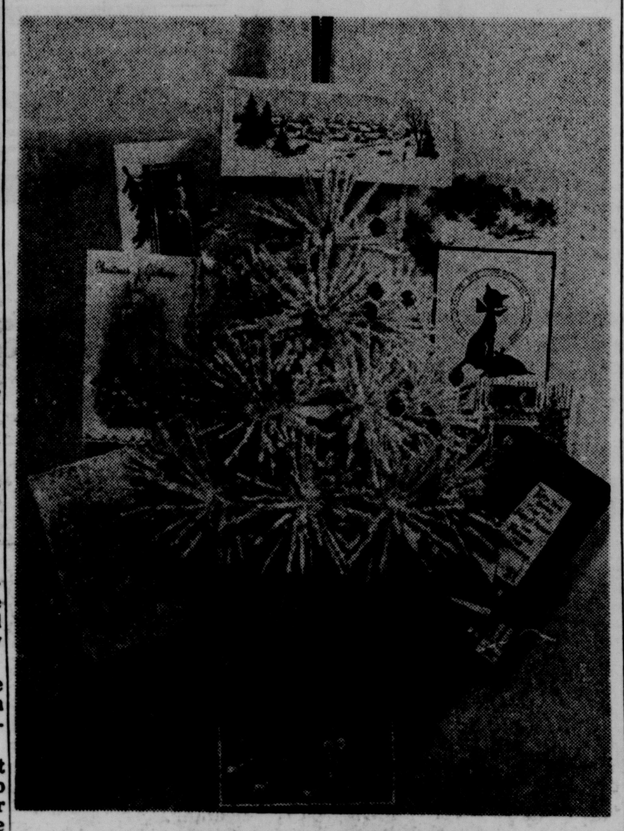
And don't forget your return address.

FREER SHEATH

A semi-fitted look created in a freer moving sheath places less emphasis on the waist. The shirt sheath is one of these — an easy slim with a shirt sleeve that is cuffed and linked with gold or large self buttons. There is a great accent on the sweater look with a new subtle shaping and fluid line. This is apparent in bulky cardigan sweater dresses and costumes, as well as in exquisitely fine knits.



FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE of Miss Nelwyn Dumas and Donald Dee Sutton, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Sutton, Sterlington is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dumas of Sterlington. December 15 is the date chosen for the ceremony which will take place at 4:30 p.m. in the Assembly of God church in Sterlington. Rev. J. E. Barton will officiate and a reception for the family will follow.



CHRISTMAS CARD TREE

Display Christmas Cards Around Toothpick Tree

Christmas cards are put to work as a frame around this Toothpick Christmas Card Wall Tree. It is attractive, easy to make, and fun for the family.

This is made with round toothpicks, 16 1½ inch styrofoam balls, styrofoam base, Aerosol snow spray, tiny glass ornaments, and the Christmas cards you receive.

Make toothpick balls by sticking (like pins in a cushion) about 100 round toothpicks, evenly spaced, into each ball.

Prepare the base by making a hole for hanging, centered one inch from the top of the base. Directly underneath the hole and centered, stick a toothpick ball into the base.

Next place two toothpick balls, below and flanking the single ball. Center three toothpick balls underneath the preceding row and then place four toothpick balls to complete a pyramid shaped Christmas tree. Apply pressure to imbed toothpicks in the base. This completes the first layer.

Start a second layer by placing one toothpick ball on top of and centered between rows one and two. Make a second row, using two balls beneath and flanking the single ball. Do the same for the third row using the remaining balls.

Gently apply pressure along the sides of the second layer's third row so that the middle ball bulges slightly upward. Press the second layer gently into the first layer. You may want to add an additional toothpick ball, centered and below the tree for a trunk.

Spray with aerosol snow spray and hang miniature ornaments. Place a piece of holiday ribbon through the hole and hang on a wall hanger or flank your living room mirror or mantel with two of these Toothpick Wall Trees.

As your Christmas cards arrive, pin them to the exposed portions of the base.

This unique decorative piece will be the highlight of your home's holiday decor.

REVERSIBLE MINK — For frigid days or gala holiday wear is this coat of Emba Autumn haze, natural brown mink, designed by Jo Copeland, which can be worn completely reversed to a beautiful beige and gold brocade.

New Costume Jewelry Carries A 'Golden' Look

Ever since time began, women have known that jewelry flatters them and draws admiring attention. This Fall's exciting new designs and styles in jewelry of all kinds are bringing a special sparkle to every woman's eye and adding glamour to her wardrobe, says the Jewelry Industry Council.

Everywhere the popularity of karat gold jewelry is growing, and the variety of styles to choose from seems almost limitless. While many new pieces feature traditional patterns, some plain gold jewelry is being shown in neo-modern designs using various kinds of finishes for more interesting effects.

One of the most dramatic new trends is the extensive use of colored jewelry, with pins and earrings being set with high quality aquamarines, amethysts, garnets, opals, topaz quartz and the various varieties of Linde stars.

The fashion importance of gold filled jewelry has been skyrocketing, thanks to more and more imaginative and tasteful designs in pendants, pins, bracelets, necklaces and earrings. Through the use of precious stones, this jewelry is reaching new heights of popularity.

PINS IMPORTANT

Pins, one of the most important jewelry items of the season, carry such interesting stones as black onyx, smoky topaz, jade, carved tiger eye, carnelian and even ivory and carved jade. Gold filled bracelets and necklaces, in a variety of finishes, are available in many styles to suit today's fashions.

Costume jewelry this season carries a fascinating "gold look", the result of gold colored fringe, mesh, braid and woven finishes. With the dramatic use of colored stones, the pins, necklaces, bracelets and earrings have taken on an air of special importance.

NECKLACE FOR SHIFT

The popular shift dress has brought about two distinct necklace lengths, a long one that is attractive on a high or round collar, and the choker that adds to the boat shape or open neckline.

A new mid-length necklace of two or three strands and made in handsome gold finishes is making its debut.

All signs point to the fabulous popularity of rings of all kinds. As a result, there is an unprecedented variety of ring designs using colored gems, diamonds, pearls and other attractive stones such as Linde Stars, turquoise, opal, jade, tiger eye, coral and many more.

Domeshaped and stone-studded rings have strong fashion appeal, while those with a large single stone, often with flanking diamonds, are in great demand everywhere. Where the stone is the focal point of the ring, the setting shows as little as possible.

The spokesman reported that all bidders had been notified of the change.

JONESVILLE (Special) — The Jonesville First Baptist Church will host over 28 member churches of the Ouachita Baptist Association Monday at 7:15 p.m. in an observance of "M" night or Mobilization night, announced the Rev. Ray Walters, training union director of the association.

According to the Rev. Walters the featured speaker will be the Southern Baptist Convention's first missionary to Vietnam, the Rev. Herman P. Hayes. The Rev. Hayes and his family have been in the Far East country since 1959 said Walters.

Mobilization night, observed in over 32,000 Southern Baptist churches throughout the world, is a special time for launching the training union program in churches for the coming year. Goals are established for the year's work and are presented to the members at that time.

Johnson Tells African Leader Of Rights Aim

LOME, Togo (AP)—President Johnson told an African leader Saturday he intends to continue his predecessor's campaign against racial discrimination.

The new President mentioned this in a message to Togolese President Nicolas Grunitzky, replying to a message of condolences received from Grunitzky after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

President Johnson's message said he would carry on "the fight which the late president so ardently waged for a world of peace and justice. The policies which he practiced, and in which I participated as vice president, will be continued."

"I firmly believe in the late president's policy for the elimination of racial discrimination in all its forms. This policy remains unchanged and will be pursued."

CURTAIN CALL

The Strauss Playhouse box office on Lamy Lane will function today from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to take reservations for "The Glass Menagerie." The box office will not be manned Monday and Tuesday, but will reopen Wednesdays through next Sunday during the same hours.

There will be a showing of The Glass Menagerie" tonight at 8:15, following which the run will be interrupted until next Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Anyone wishing to see tonight's performance should telephone FA 3-1235 after 2 p.m., but there is still time to reserve for next weekend by writing Box 868. A limited number of memberships are still open for those who have not yet joined.

Out of respect for a work of such renown, executive director Richard M. Clark and designer Lonny Fraze have lavished more effort on "The Glass Menagerie" than one night thing needed for a play of only four characters and a single set, but its very simplicity demands a subtlety and sensitivity of approach to elicit all its hidden values.

APPEAL ANSWERED

Our appeal for miniature glass animals was answered by Betty Slakter, Jan Evans, Mary's Flower Shop and the Flower Shoppe. Thanks to those who offered ceramic animals, but these would not do. Mrs. Maurine Nelms loaned the old time phonograph and records, pieces of furniture of the Eula Davenport, several pieces of furniture of the right vintage and the West Side Flower and Gift Shop, some artificial blooms.

Tryouts for "The Sandalwood Box," the children's play to be given during the Christmas holidays, attracted Mary Ann Atkinson, Mary Bass, Diane Biegenwald, Kitty Bright, Bethia Brown, Ewing Brown, Carole Cooper, Cindy Easterling, Nancy Garrett, Jan Hamilton, Bruce Harrison, Rande Herrell, Lidonna Lancaster, Martha Maxwell, Marion Meriwether, Nellie Neal, Randy, Raymond and Ronnie Perry, Gail, Lesley and Sandy Sherman, Cathy Smith, Betsy Taylor, Rick Taylor, Suzanne Velasco, Cathy Wilson and Ken Wilson.

PARENTS

Among the many parents present, we were delighted to see Mrs. Paul Neal, the former Audrey Evans, who used to be very active in Little Theatre. She appeared in "Our Town and "Ladies Of The Jury," and served a term as vice president.

Since there was more talent available than Lonny Fraze could use in the play, we might take this opportunity to observe that casting has to take into account not only the abilities of each individual, but how the members of the cast will blend with each other. This may involve heights and weights, voice qualities, even coloration of hair and complexion. Hence each part must be cast with the others in mind and it sometimes happens that someone of outstanding talent cannot be used solely because he or she would not complement the others properly.

HIGH HOPES

We mention this because people naturally come to tryouts in hopes of a part and sometimes cannot understand why they were not chosen. It may have nothing to do with talent and no one's feelings should be hurt if they miss out on a part. On the contrary, the experience of having auditioned will give them that much advantage and confidence if they will tryout another time, as we hope they will.

Since the cast of "The Sandalwood Box" has recently been announced, we will await a later column to talk about its members. We do urge one and all to step forward who might have time to assist with the construction of the sets. Lonny could use help mornings, afternoons or evenings. The work requires no experience and offers fun and companionship, not to mention the satisfaction of seeing your handiwork delight the enthusiastic youngsters expected at the show.

The new office and workshop are now enclosed and roofed, so weather should not hinder us from early completion. Frank and Bill Eason's long-standing devotion to Little Theatre is reflected in the personal attention this job is receiving.

oducing Group Launches Project On Long Term

NEW YORK (AP) — A new off-Broadway producing group called the Aldana Theater is launching a long-term project at the One Sheridan Square playhouse.

Aldo Bruzzichelli, formerly associated with Le Theatre Nouveau in Paris, is directing and has lined up a schedule of works by Jean Genet, Eugene Ionesco and Isaac Babel.

SHOW GOES ON

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Repertory Theater Company is making sure it will have transportation to get to the next city on its cross-country tour this winter.

The group, headed by Eva Le Gallienne, will use buses, trains, airplanes, helicopters, horse-drawn carriages (as part of a local pageant), and horse-drawn sleds in case of heavy snow.

ALEICHEM TO MUSIC

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking ahead a season, producers Harold Prince and Fred Coe have lined up Jerome Robbins to stage and choreography a musical based on Sholem Aleichem's stories, "Tevye's Daughter" and "The Old Country."

The show will be the first Prince-Coe collaboration but will mark reunion of Prince and Robbins, who worked together in "West Side Story." The new musical is being composed by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, with libretto by Joe Stein. Rehearsals are scheduled to start in June, and Broadway premiere is penciled in for September.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Seasonal Designing

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fifth District Garden Center guest for the T.V. program last Wednesday was Katherine Mickel Foster, M.D., also an accredited flower show judge of the 5th District LGCF, and member of Monroe Garden Club.

Her interesting program was quite timely for the Thanksgiving season as well as the Christmas Holidays. It was entitled "A Nutty Pastime." A short review of her booklet of the same title was given in the beginning of the program during which time Dr. Foster gave a few interesting facts about the nuts and trees mentioned in the Bible: as, the nuts that Jacob sent to Egypt as part of the "First Fruits" were pistachio nuts, closely related to the Teil Tree. Oak-like pistacia terebinthus, mentioned in Isaiah 6:-13. Zechariah's prophecies were in symbols, among which was the oak. As many as six species of oak are to be found in Palestine. Isaiah 44:14 mentions the oak.

ACCORDING TO LEGEND

According to legend, when Joseph, Mary and the Baby Jesus were fleeing from the soldiers of King Herod, they hid in the forest under a huge pine tree beside the trunk. This concealed them from the soldiers. Because this tree was blessed by the Christ child, we are told that even today, if we cut a small pine cone length-wise we can see the imprint of the hand of Christ.

In Jesus' time, we are also told, Walnut trees grew on the shores of Galilee, and the dye made from this nut was used for his coat, described as "rich-brown".

Associating these thoughts, what could be more suitable to use in wreaths, plaques and other decorations at Christmas, or anytime.

Because of many requests for help about the hobby of Dr. Foster, in the making of permanent wreaths and plaques, she has written the booklet, "A Nutty Pastime," which gives the steps in this artistry of nuts. She states that although the purpose, form (from the three basic forms; sphere, cube, and pyramid) and pattern are important — it is also important to use your own imagination and creative ability. Insert your own individuality in each design that you create. This is true of all the arts.

INSPIRED

After we see and admire these beautiful wreaths and swags and plaques we first think how simple they are to make — and, we immediately are inspired to go make one. This is where it is so important to seek the first steps to take. It is not as simple as it appears.

It is so much easier after we are told how to wire the nuts after finding an interesting assortment in different shapes and sizes. Also, there are cones of all kinds. Then, too, we must know how to begin. Dr. Foster told us to make a desired shape (or form) on a piece of wrapping paper, a pattern. Hold this in place to be used to determine the scale and proportion, enlarge or reduce size if needed. The framework for the wreath, etc., can be of one-quarter inch or one-half inch hardware cloth or pegboard. Pegboard is expensive and must be bought in sheets. There are advantages to both materials. Hardware cloth gives a closer design. Wire frames from florists and the new type styrofoam are excellent framework materials.

Our native materials are: all shapes of acorns, Louisiana pine cones, hickory nuts, walnuts, pecans, cottonburrs, tallow berries, etc., pods, magnolia, daylily, yucca, okra, sweet gum, beech nut, peach seeds, and many others. From the grocery store we can get chestnuts, brazil nuts, pecans, almonds, filberts, and walnuts. Many materials are imported, such as, pinion cones, eucalyptus pods, deodar roses, coconut roses, bottle tree pods, tonilla pods, acorns — from other states.

It is helpful to know that we may use a hot ice pick, hand or electric drill to bore the holes in the nuts for wiring. Drill No. 18 is suggested and No. 22 florist wire, or battery wire is good to use. Shellac each individual nut or cone for best preservation. To make rosettes or flower forms from cones use a long handle clipper for best results in cutting the cones. Always use various forms and sizes to add interest, and relieve monotony in the design. If you plan to use foliage, as magnolia leaves, these should be glycerinized. The lovely light shades can be obtained by using bleach (purex or chlorox) on various nuts.

After wiring the nuts, etc., to the forms it is wise to cover the back side with felt backing to prevent scratching the walls, tables or wherever used, and, when not in use, store away in moth balls or spray with D.D.T.

FINISHED DESIGNS

Some of the finished designs that Dr. Katherine Foster showed were: the Christmas Tree, a Traditional design made on one-quarter inch pegboard, brown in color. The design was filled in with pine cone rosettes, acorns, pecans, small cones and okra pods. It was very effective when used on a blue - green background or hall wall, over the low bookcase or over mantle flanked on each side with woodtone candles. The star design was very interesting to be used on the wall as a plaque or placed on the table as a center piece with a tall candle centering it. The S-shaped swags are very versatile since they can be placed together forming a wreath, or placed horizontally on a table for a runner design. Table trees, cone-shaped, are really popular now. The simple door swag with the lovely outside ribbon bow at the top was quite effective. To each of the designs greenery may be added for color as well as artificial fruits (for color). Permanent plaques were made by framing the designs that were made on square pieces of wood. Two of these were shown on the program. One of these was made to hang over the fireplace in Dr. Foster's home.

The booklet "A Nutty Pastime," is available at the Garden Center. Hope you saw the program. I know you enjoyed it if you did. Thanks, Katherine, for sharing your wonderful hobby.

Next Wednesday — The Clarklea Garden Club of Bastrop, will present the program. Mrs. Everett Harvey is the president of this federated garden club.

DOUBLE-DUTY BAG

Double-duty for holiday shopping bags: On Christmas morning, have two ready for action — one to hold the paper and ribbon you want to keep, one to hold the scraps to be thrown away. Beforehand tuck away in one of the shopping bags a whisk broom and dustpan and a bottle of pine cleaner with a cellulose sponge for instant clean-up.

Growing, Showing Tips Given

(Editor's note: The following is another in a series of articles prepared and written by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club discussing the various problems of growing and showing of Camellias in the Monroe area.

In discussing how and where to properly plant Camellias, there seem to be two principal problems, namely, where and how.

A Camellia should be planted in well-drained soil that is partially shaded and is neither too acid nor too alkaline. Dense shade is unnecessary; in fact, the "shifting shade" of pine trees is ideal. If the soil is poorly drained and remains soggy for a long time after heavy rains, something else should be grown in it instead of Camellias. If natural drainage is fair, but not good enough, camellias can be grown successfully in raised beds if the beds are large enough to allow roots to spread during the period of years. However, a bed of this kind should be prepared and allowed to settle several weeks before a camellia is planted in it.

TESTING KIT

An inexpensive soil testing kit can be obtained easily, or soil specimens can be taken to a parish agricultural agent's office for testing. Many people believe that camellias should be grown in soil having a PH of 4.5 to 5.0 but the best results may be obtained in soil that is only slightly acid or just a little below a PH of 7, which is the dividing line between acidity and alkalinity.

The first step in the proper planting of a camellia is to dig a hole about twice the diameter of the plant ball. If this hole is dug in fairly heavy clay, it should be refilled with a mixture consisting of equal parts of course, sharp sand, peat moss or well-rotted dairy manure and good, loamy garden soil or woods mold. If the hole is dug in sandy soil that contains very little natural humus, it should be refilled with a mixture of one-half soil, one-fourth peat humus and one-fourth well rotted dairy or stable fertilizer.

COMPOST USE

A good compost can be used if available, but leaves that are not thoroughly rotted will cause considerable settling later and use up nitrogen in the soil decomposing the leaves. The mixture should be settled firmly in the hole with a reasonable amount of water, and the plant should then be put into place in such a way that its base will not be lower than, but preferably slightly above, the level of the surrounding ground after the plant has finished settling. In some sandy soils, camellias have been known to settle two to three inches in a year's time. This is very important, because the crown roots of the plant should not be covered with more than about one inch of soil and no camellia is expected to be healthy and produce good blooms if planted too deeply.

The Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club welcomes any questions about the camellia growing or displaying. The questions will be answered by qualified persons. The questions should be sent to Box 761, Monroe, Louisiana.

QUESTION: Some time ago you wrote about replacing a washer in a kitchen sink faucet. I read it, but neglected to save it. Can you tell me something about this, bearing in mind that I am not much of a handyman?

ANSWER: Fixing a faucet leak is something we apparently can not write too much about, since we get more questions on this subject than any other.

As far as your imagined lack of skill goes, very little of it is required for replacing a faucet washer. But don't neglect the most important part of the job: be sure to turn off the water before beginning, either at the valve under the sink or at the main shut-off valve in the house.

Place friction or adhesive tape around the large nut under the faucet handle to prevent damage to the fixture. Using a wrench, turn the nut counter-clockwise. When it is completely loose, turn the faucet handle in the same direction as though you were turning on the water.

NEW SEPARATE COLORS of bush-type sweet peas are bing introduced for 1964, including Catalina, a light amethyst color on a white background; Pinkette (shown here), ruffled, fragrant flowers of a salmon-pink on cream; Rosette, heavily ruffled flowers of intense deep rose; Scarlette, bright scarlet-cerise waved and ruffled flowers, and White Pearl, with four or five pure white flowers on each stem. The low growing plants may be used in borders, beds and window boxes, and need no staking.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Garden Book For Yuletide

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

A great many gardeners like to give books for Christmas presents to other gardeners. Below will be found a list of some new and some old gardening books for the South. If any have to be ordered by your book store, there will be ample time to get them in hand.

For new gardeners in the South: Hudson's Southern Gardening, Tupper & Love, 1953 - about five dollars. This is a big general book on everything from lawns to shrubs and trees. For identification of trees, shrubs and wild flowers of the South: Coker and Totten, Trees of the Southeastern States, Chapel Hill, N. C., The U. of N. C. Press, $4.00; Green and Blomquist, Flowers of the South, U. of N. C. Press, $5; Vines, Robt. A., Trees, Shrubs and Woody Vines of the Southwest, U. of Texas Press, 1960, $25. Dormon, Flowers Native to the Deep South, 1958, Claitor's Books Store, Baton Rouge 2, $7.50 or more.

LITTLE BULBS

If Southern gardeners have in hand Miss Lawrence's "The Little Bulbs," Criterion, 1957, $4. and the amazing Collin's "Guide to Bulbs," published by Collins in London at St. James' Place for 30 shillings ($4.20), they will have two books absolutely packed with information. Miss Lawrence's adventures with the smaller bulbs can send you on a fascinating experience indeed.

Collin's Guide was written by Patrick M. Synge, one of the bigwigs in the Royal Horticultural Society who has access to the very latest information about any and all the bulbs. In fact, he has incorporated into this volume the information gathered from all the big bulb people in England and in Holland.

COLORED PICTURES

If you have been following this columnist's experiences with the more unusual bulbs, you will find most of them pictured in colors in Collin's Guide, and the time it takes to get this book will be well worth the wait. All the anemones are pictured together in color, all the colchicums, all the crocuses, all the tulip species, many kinds of lilies, all the bulbous irises, all the musk hyacinths, chionodoxas and scillas.

The tiny narcissi and many of the modern daffodils are there. So are the zephyranthes, and the anemones. There are, in addition, numerous black and white photographs, and certainly anyone would be delighted with the two full-page color plates of the little hardy cyclamens about which your columnist has been writing so much during the past few years. Once you see them, you will set out to grow hardy cyclamens.

COLLIN'S GUIDE

We cannot say too much about Collin's Guide to Bulbs because it is the definitive book on this subject, combinging the best information and colored photographs from all sources up to the present time. It will surely remain the authority for years to come.

Dr. Hume's Azaleas, his Camellias and his Hollies — all published by MacMillan are classical. Those who might like a more inclusive book on the azaleas will want Frederic P. Lee's "The Azalea Book," 1958, Van Nostrand.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

If your automobile developed a squeak some time ago, the chances are you hardly notice it any more. But someone else riding in your car is likely to hear it immediately. The same thing is true of squeaky floors. While the noise may no longer bother you, it is likely that guests are quickly aware of it.

The treatment for a talking floor depends on whether it is a first floor over an unfinished basement or a second floor with a plaster ceiling underneath. In the former case, the squeaks can be silenced from the basement. In the latter, they must be attacked from the top, which means that some marring of the floor is inevitable. If the floor is to be covered with a rug, this is of little concern. If it will be visible, extra care must be taken to match the patch with the surrounding surface.

When the underside of the first floor can be seen from the basement, your job can be made easier by using an assistant, who will be asked to do nothing more than walk back and forth. While he is doing this walking, on the offending floor, you stay in the basement, marking with a chalk the places where the squeaks are audible. Where the individual boards in the subfloor are not tightly attached to the joist, drive a wedge between them to fill the space. Where a joist appears to be warped, place a piece of 2 by 4 or 2 by 6 between that joist and the next one, nailing it securely. Or you can buy metal bridging made for that purpose. If the squeak appears to be caused by friction between the subfloor and finished floor, pull them together with a screw driven in from underneath. Be sure the screw is not so long that it protrudes through the floor.

Attractive Model Homes Spark Sales

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Builders who complain they can't sell their houses should fire their wives who decorate them. Garish decorating of amateurs keeps many good houses from moving, says "project doctor" James Mills of New Canaan, Conn. Mills advises builders who are having trouble moving their houses.

"Many builders leave the selection of important items in the home to their wives or just anybody. You'll find all-black baths with gold-type fixtures, dramatic colors in some rooms that would nauseate you, horrible lighting fixtures and other gagged-up doo-dads. Many ideas are picked up from cheap hotels visited in resort areas or from cheap magazines," he explains.

Often the builder's wife goes to a local store and makes a deal to snap up some surplus stock at a big bargain.

Mills travels over the country in his job as president of Home Facts, a service organization, sizing up areas at builders' request where homes are not moving. He finds fixtures and model home furnishings often keep an otherwise good house from being sold. But fortunately bad decorators are in the minority.

"Many model homes are pretty terrible and the furnishings are deterrents. The poor use of color or wall coverings often gives a nightmarish look to an otherwise good house," he says.

There are other reasons why homes do not move, of course, he says, such as ridiculous standards for home fashions set even by some good magazines.

"A recent list of musts for a new home put out by a magazine included a cathedral ceiling, garbage disposal, dishwasher, barbecue rotisserie. And you aren't considered with it unless you have luminous ceilings, double lavatories and a single-control mixing faucet," he says.

This makes the average woman unhappy about what she can find for what she can afford to pay. If she insists on having extras, it may mean several feet looped off the house to cut costs.

Mills feels it should be more desirable to give a woman a large pantry to solve her storage problems of those large boxes of cleaning powders and foodstuffs and all sorts of small appliances.

"The No. 1 disease in this business is where builders have been adding little bits and pieces of added features to a house. One builder in Texas sold 107 houses in 1961 and 1962 but only eight houses in 1963. His competitor was giving more square footage for $3,000 less. The result was the builder who was failing had to revamp his thinking and strip his new houses to basics."

Homemakers Quite Busy

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

This is the month that all homamakers are mighty busy with all activities centered around Christmas, so there's not much time left for gardening. But if you, Mrs. Gardener, want to spend some time outside, there's plenty which can be done this month. There're always the clean-up jobs, raking leaves, clearing of flower beds in preparation for spring planting. Make new beds so they can settle before planting time.

It's time to cut back your dahlias, but be sure to leave a few inches on each stalk. Be careful not to bruise tubers. Allow them to air dry for a half day to dry out the soil on tubers, then store in peat moss or sand. If stored in the open, some varieties will shrivel badly especially if the atmosphere is extremely dry.

FASHIONS

Your well groomed look this fall consists, we may say of six looks, the sportive look designed for fun. One version of the sportive, which is most popular, is a combination of the jumper with the vest dressed and the wrap around skirt.

The shift look is the newest version which take on sleeves and sometimes a belt, depending on the figure in the dress.

The lifted waistline look, simplicity is its essence. Its center of interest could very nicely camouflage a larger than need be waistline.

The fourth look in fashion is the natural look. A dress for just about anybody, for just about any place, and just about any time. It is a basic dress that would prove functional in just about any wardrobe.

Next is the lowered waistline look. This emphasizes a smaller waistline and hides a larger hipline and is up to the minute fashionwise.

The last is the at home look and this is the long skirt for those who want an elegant and casual air.

Your home demonstration agent and associate agent, Donna M. Moore, will be in Baton Rouge December 2-6 attending the annual state meeting of Extension Agents. Our secretaries will be on hand to mail you a bulletin or any other way in which they can help.

10 AND 25 YEAR MEMBERS

The president of the 10 and 25 Year Home Demonstration Club, Mrs. Roy Welch, wants you to be sure to call her at FA 5-2708 or Mrs. J. R. Frantom at FA 3-3152 for reservations. Remember the date for the banquet is December 6 at 7 p.m.

SHIRT COLLARS

The day of the "turned" shirt collar may be gone forever. U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists have found a way to make long-lasting collars and cuffs for men's cotton wash and wear shirts. An interliner of wash and wear fabric is bounded to outer layers of untreated cotton cloth. Together, these give shirt cuffs and collars the wash and wear qualities of the interliner and the high resistance to fraying and abrasion of the untreated cotton.

JUST TALKING

Did you know: Russian women wear their hats indoors?

Did you know it takes 16 yards of woolen cloth to make a Scotsman's kilt, but only six yards of cloth to make an Indian sari.

Did you know that 1,600 separate pieces are needed to make a suit for outer space.

A REPEAT

A number of homemakers have called about depressions and dents in rugs where furniture used to stand. Hold a steam iron or ordinary iron with a damp cloth over the area. Then brush the pile back into normal raised position. Be careful on Acrylic and Nylon carpeting not to touch the hot iron to fabric.

A THOUGHT

The most disagreeable person is the complainer.

Area 4-H Club Youth Wins National Congress Honors

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Ronnie Nolan, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Nolan of Farmerville, has won top honors for his 4-H Club entomology project at the National 4-H Club Congress now being held in Chicago, Ill., it was announced Sunday.

Ronnie took first place over 4-H Club members from all over the United States. He was awarded a $500 college scholarship by the Hercules Powder Company.

A student at Farmerville High School where his father is principal, Ronnie has always been interested in insects. His mother says that even when he was too small for school, "he would beg his Dad to take him to filling stations to catch bugs."

He began his 4-H entomology project because a friend had a good collection. The friend helped Ronnie get started, and now Ronnie helps others. He has aided three different graduate students at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute with their collections, as well as several 4-H Club members.

In describing how he makes his collections, Ronnie says he used a net to catch the insects and kills them by placing them in a jar containing carbon tetrachloride for 24 hours. The insects then are pinned and identified. Butterflies and moths are put on a stretching board for 36 hours before being placed in the collection box in their proper order.

Ronnie says the project has taught him to identify insects and to control the harmful ones.

"I have learned also the importance of knowing insecticides and how to use them and the importance of keeping up to date with new insecticides," he says.

His work with insects has helped him with his forestry project, Ronnie says, because he has learned which ones harm pine seedlings and how they can be controlled. He also puts his knowledge to practical use by identifying insects that harm the ornamental plants around his home and controlling them.

Ronnie plans to use his scholarship to attend Louisiana State University, where he will study entomology. This decision is directly related to his interest and success in the 4-H entomology project Ronnie believes. His father agrees, pointing out that the project has "created in Ronnie a greater interest in the field of biological science."

An unusually active 4-H Club member, Ronnie has five additional projects: forestry, home grounds beautification, safety, citizenship, junior leadership. He served as president of his local club for two years, and as vice-president for one year. He also has served as parish vice-president.

The company was the first to enroll employes in a University of Hawaii "Peace Corps" — type program for private businessmen, their wives and families.

The course lasts two weeks and emphasizes "dos and don'ts for Americans aboard in Asian countries.

RONNIE NOLAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Nolan, Farmerville, displays his vast insect collection which makes up a part of his 4-H entomology project. The project has earned him national honors at the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago and a $500 college scholarship.

Proclamation On Alcoholism Week Is Issued

December 1-7 has been proclaimed Alcoholism Information Week in the Twin Cities. A joint proclamation was release Saturday by Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard and Mayor J. Allan Norris of West Monroe.

The two officials also praised the work of the Twin Cities Council on Alcoholism, citing a "noteworthy achievement in alerting the public to the danger of alcoholism, a disease which ranks among the four major health mental illness and heart disease."

Their announcement noted that five million Americans are afflicted by alcoholism.

"The cost of alcoholism in human suffering, in disintegration of family life, in economic attrition to the individual and to the community is incalculable," the text of the message continued.

Noting the council's information program this week, the mayors urged "the men and women of our communities to support the Twin Cities Council of Alcoholism in its campaign to alert our citizens to the dangers of alcoholism."

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) — Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe said Tuesday Gov. Jimmie H. Davis "would do better by talking more to the press to keep the people better informed."

Adcock said his own trouble was that he "talked too much." "My wife refers to this as my open-mouth policy," he said. "I think Gov. Davis' trouble is that he doesn't talk enough."

FREE ELECTORS

District Senators Supporting Move

BATON ROUGE —U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long took a public stand against the unpledged electors bill Monday, but senators from northeast Louisiana united behind it as the Legislature convened.

Long appeared in the capitol to issue a statement before the Senate referred the bill to the Senate Finance Committee for a public hearing at 2 p.m. today.

"Many people do not understand that the unpledged elector bill would deny to the people of Louisiana their right to cast their votes in favor of the candidate of their choice," Long said.

But seven Monroe area Senators said in a poll that they would vote for the bill when it comes to the floor of the Senate probably Wednesday.

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) — Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe said Tuesday Gov. Jimmie H. Davis "would do better by talking more to the press to keep the people better informed."

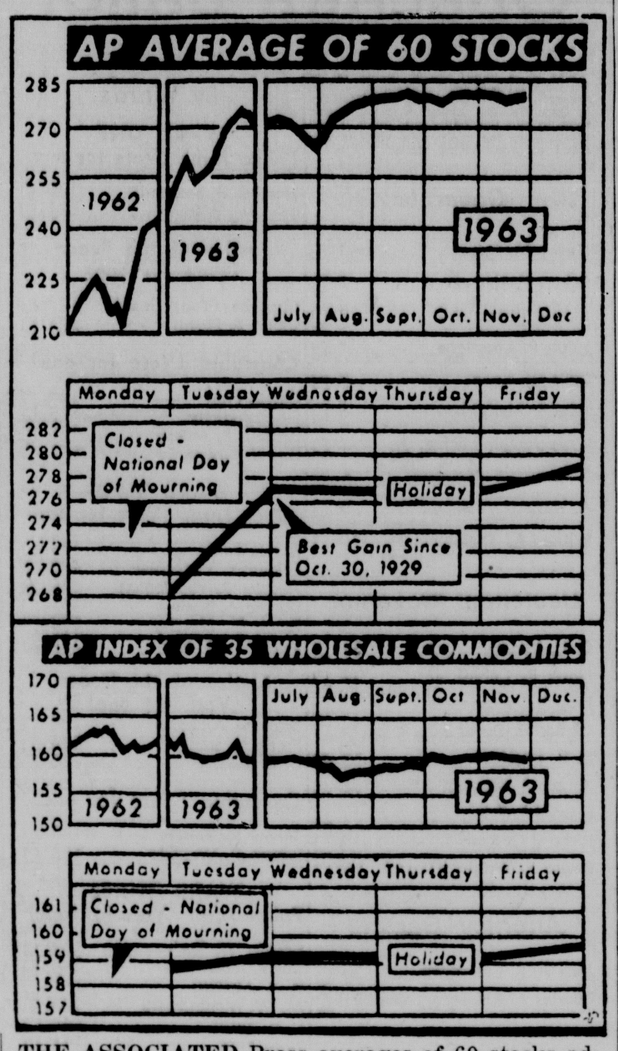
Stock Gains Match Best Weekly Rise



THE ASSOCIATED Press averages of 60 stocks advanced sharply this week closing at 279.6 up from 268.3 a week ago. This equalled the largest weekly gain on record, set. Nov. 2, 1962. The commodity index closed higher at 159.7, up from last week's close at 158.8. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) —Recovering from the shock of President Kennedy's assassination, the stock market last week rolled up an advance equal to the greatest weekly rise in market history.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks spurted 11.3 to 279.6, matching the gain it made in the week ended Nov. 3, 1962, when stock prices soared on President Kennedy's successful confrontation with Russia over the missile bases in Cuba.

That was the largest gain in history for the AP average, far exceeding its previous record of 8.4 made in the week ended Dec. 7, 1929.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials last week advanced 39.05 to 750.52, exceeding its rise of 35.56 made in the record-shattering 1962 week.

Confidence in President Lyndon B. Johnson was the key note of the week's rally and this was accompanied by a continued flow of good news from the economy and various corporations.

Brokers were already talking about the "Johnson" market as previously they had referred to the "Kennedy market" and the "Eisenhower market."

As Wall Street faced its final trading month of the year, it was borne in mind that industrial issues have risen 41 times in the past 65 years and that a rally at the year end is a tradition.

The performance of the market during November—climaxed by the great plunge on news of the Kennedy shooting and by the even bigger rebound last Tuesday — showed a slight loss. The AP average was down 1.9 on the month and the Dow industrials were off 4.71.

The trading week was cut to three days by closing of the stock exchanges on Thanksgiving Day and on Monday, which was a day of national mourning for the murdered President.

Volume for the week totaled 19,368,730 shares compared with 26,852,771 for the five-day trading week previous.

The Tuesday advance this week was the greatest since 1929 for the AP average and the biggest in history for the Dow industrials.

In the dramatic Memorial Day week of 1962, the spread between the decline and the temporary recovery was even greater — but both events fell within the same week, cancelling each other out.

AT HOLIDAY SEASON

Oil, Gas Activity Drops In District

Activity skidded last week in the 15 northeast Louisiana parishes of the Monroe Oil & Gas District, apparently under the influence of the Thanksgiving holiday season.

There were a total of 11 completions, according to a weekly area report from Manger Duncan S. Cook, but several of that number had been finalled weeks before, and only recently were gauged.

Completions were found in seven parishes — two each in Catahoula, LaSalle, Ouachita and Union, and one each in Concordia, Morehouse and Tensas. The five finals in Ouachita, Union and Morehouse all were in the Monroe Gas Field, center of much recent activity.

There were four new locations staked during the week in Morehouse Parish, all in the Monroe Field, three in Concordia, two each in Tensas and Avoyelles, and one each in Catahoula and Ouachita Parishes.

The week's only recompletion was in LaSalle Parish — Hunt Oil's Louisiana Delta Hardwood Lumber Co. No. H-125, recompleted at 5504 feet in section 13-5-3E of the Sandy Bayou Field.

Seventeen wells were plugged and abandoned during the week and there were 73 inactive wells in the district. Locations numbered 71; 47 were active overall.

These particulars appeared on Cook's report, released late last week through the Monroe office of the Louisiana Conservation Department, minerals division:

Humble To Buy Some Tidewater Oil Facilities

Tidewater Oil Co. and Humble Oil & Refining Co. have announced that they have entered into an agreement for Humble to buy Tidewater's California refinery, its marketing facilities and certain of its transportation facilities in California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii and five foreign super tankers for $329,000,000.

Under the terms of the agreement, Tidewater retains title to all of its properties except those mentioned specifically. Hence, Tidewater will continue in the West and in the mid-continent and Southern areas as an oil and gas producer and in the East as a refiner and marketer.

By disposing of its western refining and marketing, Tidewater will obtain funds to reduce its substantial debt and to enable it to expand its production operations in its Western and Southern divisions and become a more effective competitor in refining and marketing in the areas in which it will continue to refine and market.

Humble, one of the nation's largest crude oil producers, has no refinery on the West Coast. Humble is a well-established marketer in the East, Southwest and parts of the South. With the acquisition of Tidewater's California refinery and marketing facilities, Humble expects to become a strong competitor in the West Coast markets.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — In Madison County Saturday, J. L. Drilling Co. tested its wildcat, the Hardeman No. 1, sec. 24-9n-1w, on pump in an effort to evaluate the commercial worth of oil shows found in the Selma gas rock.

The reopened wildcat has been under test for several weeks with swabbing operations recovering oil and salt water with the well failing to flow.

The zone under test is at 4,790-4,805 feet. The venture was abandoned in August at a depth of 10,495 feet by C. A. Lee. New President Knows Oil And Gas Industry

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—President Lyndon B. Johnson possesses a detailed knowledge of the problems of the oil and gas industry.

Never before has the nation had a president so familiar with the complexities of the industry that so frequently has been embroiled in Capitol Hill controversy.

Johnson possibly would rate as an expert on the industry's two most pressing Washington problems — natural gas price controls and the controversial 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance.

He battled for the natural gas bills that were vetoed in 1950 and 1956. He led successful Senate floor fights that defeated efforts in 1958, 1959 and 1960 to cut the tax allowance the industry considers so vital.

The circumstances surrounding Johnson's ascendancy to the presidency have minimized public comment by oilmen but the general reaction to the change is no secret.

The oilmen expect no miracles. They expect no abrupt policy changes.

But they are hopeful there will be a gradual change, particularly within the executive branch, that will lead to frank and open discussions on oil problems.

Many oilmen opposed President John F. Kennedy politically but a major portion of their criticism of him involved administrative procedure instead of party philosophy.

In recent months, numerous oilmen criticized Kennedy's executive branch for making what they termed secret reports and studies on the industry without consulting with oilmen.

The criticism became so widespread that on Nov. 7 three of the industry's top spokesmen conferred with Kennedy at the White House.

Only one result of the conference was announced—Kennedy's assurance the industry would be given an opportunity to comment on future oil studies before they reach the report stage.

It is known, however, the oilmen also were advised the administration normally bases its oil decisions on recommendations from the Interior Department.

Ironically, it was Kennedy's rejection of a late 1961 Interior report on oil imports quotas that led to the charges of secret reports and studies. In turning down Interior's recommended 1962 imports quotas, Kennedy ordered an inter-agency petroleum study.

The report was completed in September, 1962, but was not released until last July. One recommendation that really upset oilmen said complete abandonment of import controls could lead to a substantial reduction in the price of domestic crude oil. Interior's representative on the study group dissented.

While they were members of Congress, Kennedy and Johnson were on opposite sides on both natural gas legislation and on proposals to cut the depletion allowance.

Kennedy, in the House, voted against the Kerr gas bill in 1950, and, as a senator, against the Harris-Fulbright bill in 1956. As a senator he twice voted for a graduated reduction of the 27½ per cent tax allowance.

Johnson was chairman of a Senate subcommittee that held hearings on the Kerr bill that President Harry S. Truman later vetoed as not being wise public policy.

There had been speculation Kennedy would ask Congress last January to cut the depletion allowance. Instead, he called for an overall study and recommended four other actions that would have boosted the industry's annual tax bill an estimated $380 million.

Johnson frequently has been credited with persuading Kennedy not to make a direct attack on depletion.

Kennedy said his four recommendations would plug "unintended defects" in the tax laws.

The Kennedy-Johnson ticket was elected in 1960 on a Democratic platform that earmarked inequitable depletion allowances as among the more conspicuous loopholes under which "certain privileged groups legally escape their fair share of taxation."

Quarterly CSC Dividend Hiked At Board Meet

The board of directors of Commercial Solvents Corporation has increased the quarterly cash dividend on the common stock for the 1963 fourth quarter to 22½ cents per share and voted a one per cent year-end common stock dividend. An initial dividend of 13¼ cents was declared on the new Commercial Solvents 4½ per cent Series A Convertible Preferred Stock, covering the period Nov. 8 through Dec. 31, 1963.

The common stock cash and stock dividends are payable on Dec. 31, 1963, to common stockholders of record at the close of business on Dec. 6. The Series A Preferred Stock cash dividend also is payable on Dec. 31, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Dec. 9, 1963.

The CSC 4th quater cash dividend on its common stock is a 12.5 per cent increase over the previous payment of 20 cents per share for the 1963 third quarter. The action by CSC's Board brings the total of common stock cash dividends for 1963 to 82½ cents per share, as compared with 80 cents for 1962.

The company paid a one per cent common stock dividend at the end of 1962.

Cotton Futures End Week Mixed

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices of cotton futures in the domestic market lost ground last week to end with mixed net changes. At the close of trading Friday, active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were up $1.35 to off 50 cents for the abbreviated week.

Relatively sharp advances at beginning of the week were attributed to short covering and replacement buying and to trade pessimism over the outlook for new legislation. However, new reports from Washington pushed prices down.

Sale Of Auto License Plates Begins Monday

Monday marks the start of the public sale of 1964-65 auto license plates, but renewal by mail is still urged by Fred Ussery Jr., district manager of the Monroe office of the Louisiana Department of Revenue.

Motorists have until February 6 to get their new tags, but Ussery cautioned against waiting until the last minute because of long lines and unnecessary delays.

He continued to stress the mail program of vehicles registration as the most convenient way to purchase new license plates.

Applications for new tags can be picked up at the revenue office at 611 N. 3rd St., then mailed in at the driver's leisure.

The new plates will cost $6, but will be valid for two years.

Ussery reported that more than 1,200 tags were purchased during the advange mail program initiated this year by the local office.

These plates were put into the mail over the weekend and should reach their owners by Monday.

Churchill Gets Greetings On 89th Birthday

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill celebrated his 89th birthday Saturday, looking pink, fit and jovial—the recipient of hundreds of greetings from his world of admirers.

He spent the day quietly with Lady Churchill at their London residence in Hyde Park Gate. Once he went to a first-floor window to wave happily to a small crowd outside.

The World War II leader — wearing his well known blue and white dotted bow tie and his famous green zip-fronted siren suit—was for once without his cigar.

But his other constant companion stood as ever beside him. On this occasion, Lady Churchill was holding the curtains back.

Follow the contests and keep informed by reading your local newspaper daily.

Be Informed--Know Your Candidates

Ouachita parish and Northeast Louisiana along with the rest of the state will ballot Saturday, December 7 on numerous state officials as well as local officers.

The Morning World and News-Star, as a public service, presents information concerning the qualifications and duties of all offices at stake in the Democratic Primary along with background and other information of the various candidates for the various offices. The articles are based on information supplied by the candidates. Each one was sent a questionnaire asking for the information as well as a picture. We have used both pictures and information on all those who answered. On those who did not do so, we listed their name at the end of the articles on the particular office which they were seeking. Some answered the questions, but did not furnish a picture. Therefore, we were unable to use pictures of those candidates.

Last Sunday we ran information on state candidates, plus Senate and Representative for Ouachita Parish. Today, we present the Ouachita Parish candidates for central committee and police jury.

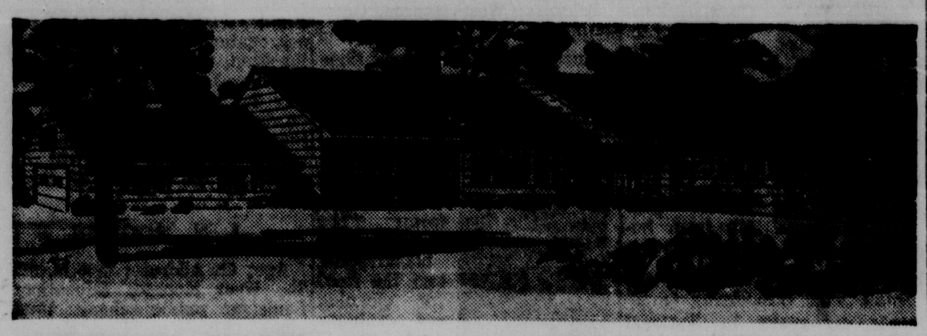
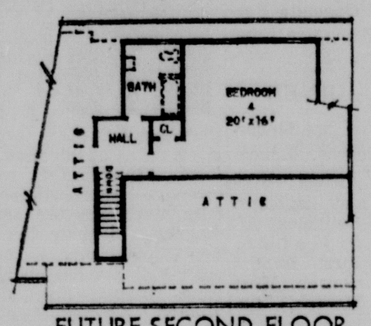
THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Expandable Ranch Flavored With A Farmhouse 'Charm'

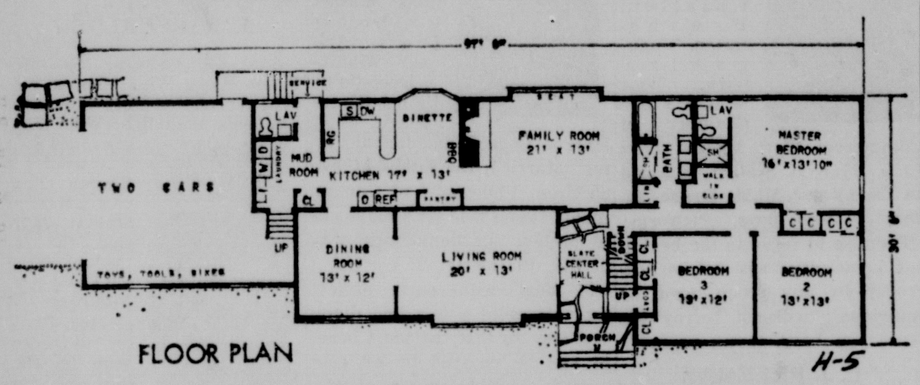


FARMHOUSE FLAVOR: All the charm of an old homestead, and all the modern conveniences of present day suburbia, are featured in this lovely ranch. The house has three main-level bedrooms with attic expansion room for a fourth bedroom and bath.



FUTURE SECOND FLOOR

FLOOR PLANS: The attic expansion area is over the sleeping wing only, allowing for a fourth bedroom and bath. The main level of the house contains 2,114 square feet of living area.



FLOOR PLAN

H-5

YEAR-ROUND PICNICKING: An indoor barbecue is only one attractive feature of the informal area of this home. This is an artist's view of the dinette; the kitchen counter is at left. The bow window overlooks the backyard.

The distinctive three - section facade of this expandable ranch gives it a comfortable farm house look from the outside and assures an even more practical benefit within — clear separation of living areas.

This separation — or zoning, as architects refer to it — is essential to well ordered living, but often difficult to achieve in a one-level house.

In this home, however, the sleeping area is clearly placed off to the right of the center hall; the daily living area to the left, with the formal rooms in front and the informal rooms in the rear.

A product of Architect Lester Cohen, this is design H-5 in the House of the Week series.

A valuable bonus of the design is the expansion attic which provides economically built-in space for a large fourth bedroom and a full bath and still leaves plenty of attic room for storage. Moreover, this extra bedroom is located directly over the sleeping wing, keeping the zoning of that important area intact.

At the heart of the main-level plan is the family room. It is entered directly from the foyer, thus giving it the same prominence as the formal living room; it is nicely proportioned (actually a shade larger than the living room), and contains a large fireplace and cozy window seat overlooking the rear yard.

Architect Cohen arranged the housekeeping area carefully: laundry, lavatory, dinette and pantry all within a few steps of the efficient U-shaped kitchen.

The house contains 2,114 square feet of living area not counting the upstairs expansion which can be finished off whenever the need arises or the budget permits. Over-all dimensions, including the attached two-car garage, are 97'6" wide by 30'6" deep.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The slate surface of the front porch is continued into the large center hall, a practical as well as decorative feature and in keeping with the rustic flavor of the home. Cohen also suggests judicious use of wood wall paneling in the hall, family room and other areas to continue the farmhouse motif.

The sleeping wing contains three bedrooms and two full baths (one of them adjoining the master bedroom, back-to-back with the main bathroom for plumbing economy) with an abundance of closet space and a minimum of hall area.

An attractive colonial bay window highlights the formal living room, and an archway connects it with the dining room as the two rooms can be used together, as for a buffet affair, or separately for intimate gatherings.

An excellently laid out ensemble of garage, mud room, lavatory, kitchen and dinette form the housekeeping area, equally accessible to both the formal rooms and the informal family room. The lavatory is especially well placed, handy to both the garage work bench and the backyard.

A highlight of the family area is an indoor barbecue. Another excellent feature is the large closet designated as a pantry, an old fashioned necessity which has all but vanished in most of today's homes. There also is another nicely placed closet in the mud room, ideal for rain boots and the like as well as the ironing board and other washday items.

The exterior of the house is uncluttered; architect Cohen has relied on a pleasing combination of materials and the staggered effect of the components to produce interest. The house has all the homey charm of an old homestead, and all the up-to-the-minute living features of modern suburbia.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La. and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-5.

College Here Put On AAUW Qualified List

Northeast Louisiana State College has been placed on the qualified list of the American Association of University Women, according to official word received here from Dr. Blanche H. Dow of Washington, D. C., AAUW president.

Women graduates of Northeast State, including those who graduated with a recognized baccalaureate or higher degree prior to AAUW listing, are now eligible for membership in the Association, President Dow said. And the college is eligible for corporate membership in the AAUW as a result of the recent action by the organization's board of directors.

"We are glad to welcome your institution as one qualifying for AAUW eligibility," she wrote NLSC President George T. Walker.

In order to be eligible for AAUW recognition a college or university must have full regional accreditation as a degree-granting institution; provides basic libera leducation; make adequate provisions for women students to develop self confidence, skill in human relations and competence in citizenship; provide well organibed residence halls, a program of physical education for women and counseling for women students, and offer professional opportunities for women on the faculty.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When you have any—ANY—dial with indentations on it (such as washer, dryer, TV set, radio) that is dark in color and the numerals are so worn off that you can hardly see them . . . just paint them with white shoe polish, let dry, then wipe with a damp cloth.

The numerals will be nice and white again and easy to see.

Mrs. S. Majetich

* * *

Jolly Ho . . . it works!

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I hang clothes in my basement to dry. So . . . I leave the clothespins on the line and hang similar things in the same place each week. This saves time digging for clothespins and carrying around a clothespin bag. This same procedure could be used on any woman's clothesline.

I use cocoa instead of flour when "flouring" a pan when I bake a CHOCOLATE cake!

Mrs. James C. Johnson

DUSTING MITTEN

DEAR HELOISE:

I use a plastic bag as a mitten over my hand BEFORE I dust my furniture. Now, no more oily hands for me.

My dusting rag is then put away in the same plastic mitten by turning the plastic bag wrong-side out and inserting the rag.

Grandma

STEWED ONIONS

DEAR HELOISE:

When boiling onions whole for stews, etc., before putting them into the liquid, stick a fork into them in several places, and no matter how large they are, they will cook whole and not fall apart!

Nothing cleans eyeglasses like vinegar. I keep a small atomizer bottle filled with vinegar in my bathroom cabinet and use it to keep my glasses sparkling clean.

Mrs. Gladys Schuster

FULL-BLOWN FLOWERS

DEAR HELOISE:

To keep your artificial flowers and corsages from being crushed, put them into a small plastic bag and BLOW into it as if it were a balloon.

Twist the ends of the bag tightly so as not to let the air escape. Fold the end back and wrap it securely with a rubber band. This will keep the flowers from crushing!

Mabel Seybert

HIGH TEA

DEAR HELOISE:

For a good-tasting pot of tea, I mix black tea and green tea together in my tea canister. I use about one-third green tea and two-thirds black tea, but it can be varied according to one's taste.

Those plastic, stacked vegetable bins are great for small toys, blocks and so forth in a child's room. They take very little space.

Marion M.

SHOE SCUFFS

DEAR HELOISE:

I find that new felt markers are very good for covering scuff marks on my shoes. Being a working girl I keep one in my purse for quick cover-ups. Especially on black shoes!

Charlotte Burris

FLUTED GELATIN

DEAR HELOISE:

When preparing individual gelatin salads either for home or party fare . . . use little fluted paper baking cups—the ones that are used for muffins — and put one inside each space of a muffin tin. Then fill with your favorite gelatin mixture.

Chill, then when ready to serve simply peel away the paper, and you will have a perfectly molded salad with a pretty fluted edge!

Carolyn Pippin

A NEAT SLAM!

DEAR HELOISE:

I got this handy hint from a gal who's got three daughters and . . . it works wonders for my three boys!

If you hate open closet doors as we do, put an ordinary screen door spring on them. And then "look out, kids! that door is going to close."

Copy Cat

BEAR WITH IT

DEAR HELOISE:

I clean children's stuffed toys by placing cornmeal in a large bag with the toy. Just shake the bag vigorously, then gently brush the meal out of the toy, and it will be clean.

Mrs. M. A. Querry

FOR MEN ONLY

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband used to complain that he could not wear a heavy sweater without a sport shirt under it, because it irritated his neck.

I bought some two-inch-wide velvet ribbon (which exactly matched his sweater) at my dime store and sewed it inside the neckline. Now all his sweaters are very soft around the neck and not irritating at all! He loves it.

S. W. Bashore

BRIGHT IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

If you are out of soap-filled pads, you can do a beautiful job of scrubbing those pans which have burned-on pudding (or what-have-you) by loosely crumbling a six-inch-square piece of aluminum foil into a ball and using it as you would any soap pad!

It sure comes in handy between shopping days. Gets everything off, can be thrown away afterwards, and often they can be rinsed under the water faucet and reused a few times!

Lubbock

FOR BUSINESS GIRLS

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have no lunch pail or are one of those girls who like to be sneaky . . . use a knitting bag to carry your lunch in!

Knitting bags come in many different shapes. The long ones are excellent to hold thermos bottles.

Nobody knows you are taking your lunch, and it's quite fashionable.

And did you know . . . that these knitting bags can be covered with material to match your outfit? Yes, all one has to do is go to the dime store and buy grippers. Make extra covers, apply grippers, and change the bag daily with each suit.
